U.S. Troops Get Tough Resistance From Reds

Iran Is Put Under Ban Two Months

Gangsters Blamed

New Premier Declares Security Threatened by 'Elements'

Tehran, Iran, March 20 (AP)—The Shah proclaimed martial law today in this terror-ridden, strategic Middle Eastern country whose oil riches make her position vital in the east-west cold war.

The martial law, limited to Tehran and imposed for a period of two months, came amid a wave of rumors that new terrorism had taken the lives of Iranian officials. One rumor, totally unconfirmed here, was that Governor-General Manouchar Egbal of Azerbaijan Province on the Soviet border had been slain along with his provincial chief of police.

Four hours after the martial law was proclaimed, a column of eight tanks rumbled down one of the city's streets and past the U. S. embassy, which has been the scene of demonstrations against foreigners. This was the first show of force by the government under the martial law order.

Action Is Completed

Even as the proclamation was broadcast, the Iranian Senate completed action on approval for nationalization of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, focus of the nationalist anger which has been generating public tension in Iran.

The presentation of the martial law proclamation to the Shah was the first action of the new cabinet formed by Hussein Ala, pro-westerner named premier after the assassination of his predecessor two weeks ago.

It announced that "all gangsters and opportunists who create disturbances will be punished." The broadcast proclamation asserted that "gangster elements have been trying to upset the security of Tehran."

Took Drastic Step

Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi took the drastic step in a move to suppress the terror which has brought the assassination of American-supported Premier Ali Razmara March 7 and the shooting of the deputy chancellor of Tehran University, Dr. Abdul Zanganeh, yesterday.

The new military governor-general, Abdul Hejazi, made an appeal by radio to all groups in the capital to maintain peace. The city was quiet, althought unpaid government workers demonstrated in front of the Parliament building.

The six-hour strike of the telegraph workers ended when the government paid them the wages which had not been given them for their last month's work.

The strike, however, had held up news to the outside world of the proclamation, issued by the Shah at noon (4 a. m., E.S.T.).

Johnston Seeks New Provisions

Washington, March 20 (AP)—Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston wants a sizeable kit of new anti-inflation powers including several changes in pricing provisions of the Defense Production Act, informed officials said today.

Although Johnston believes the basic remedy is to reduce buying demand through higher taxes and stiffer credit control, he has sent a sheaf of recommendations on price and black market control to Charles E. Wilson, mobilization director.

Some are expected to show up in a presidential message to Congress next month on extension of the mobilization law due to expire June 30.

Because the final decision belongs to President Truman, Johnston has not made his views public. But informed officials said it is "safe to assume" he has requested these changes:

Revision of the parity provisions which restrict food price control; some federal subsidies to absorb cost increases; broader power to license industries as meat slaughterers are now licensed; and a year's extension of rent control, written into the mobilization act.

Goes to Florida

Johnston was in Key West today, conferring with Mr. Truman on other business—the wage control dispute which, because of labor's walkout from federal mobilization agencies, has paralyzed the Wage Stabilization Board.

As for the price control program, Johnston is known to believe that any efforts to keep the cost of living in line are likely to be wrecked by the parity provision of the Defense Act. Farm prices may not be subjected to ceiling, the law provides, until they reach parity, declared by law to be fair to producers and consumers. Many commodities have not yet done so.

Whether Mr. Truman ultimately would recommend a revision in the face of certain opposition from farm spokesmen, was considered uncertain.

Favors Subsidies

Johnston also is understood to favor government subsidies. This also would require legislation. Federal payments to producers or processors would be used to offset rises in production costs. Many officials dislike this technique, which means that cost increases are paid out of taxes.

To prevent black markets, Johnston is expected to seek further authority to license industries in which severe shortages develop. Slaughterers already are licensed. But the Office of Price Stabilization lacks authority to reach other fields.

By licensing firms individually, OPS prevents the sudden appearance of fly-by-night operators, existing solely to sell at above-ceiling prices.

Electrol Resumes Work for U.S., Has $8,000,000 Jobs

Plant Operating on Two 10-Hour Shifts to Produce Hydraulic Parts for 19 Leading Aircraft Firms; 400 Now Are Employed

A major local industry which effectively helped move the wheels of national defense during World War 2, is again back at work for Uncle Sam with nearly $8,000,000 in contracts.

Electrol Incorporated, 85 Grand street, works today on two 10-hour shifts to produce important hydraulic parts for 19 of the nation's great aircraft plants, and the job, employing 400 workers, is among those of top importance in the country.

Hydraulics, in the plant's own terms, "is as old as Archimedes, as new as guided missiles. It is the most versatile method known of applying power to do a job."

Force applied to one end of a hydraulic system can work at any point in the system, can flow around corners without moving parts, can store energy, and has infinite variety of control.

High Production Quality

Electrol, with such magic to produce, brings advanced techniques to the solution of hydraulic problems. It builds complete components and systems under one roof, and in both war and peace times, the plant has established a record of high production quality.

The plant converted in 1940 from the manufacture of oil burners to full participation in the defense effort, and after V-J Day it benefited by its prior performance record and with labor force and equipment of proved versatility, it went after new business.

War-developed products were converted to peace-time use and Electrol's engineers found new and important uses for hyrdaulic parts. They were used in peace-time aircraft and for aiding in performing other mechanical services and the plant's wheels rolled on until the tempo was again stepped up for defense production.

Electrol is proud of its production record and stresses that "All parts ever submitted for acceptance had higher performance than that called for.....and as always in production for modern military airplanes, nothing less than perfection will do."

Inspection Is Rigid

All materials for the U. S. Navy and Air Force are submitted to rigid inspection. They get full chemical and physical analysis, and each piece is subject to Electrol inspection before it is run.

When parts are made it is determined that the material from which it is formed can endure required stresses and specified hardness so that it will stand up and function under the most severe conditions.

In the plant's processing from the raw material, there are turret lathe operations which do the turning and boring before the parts go to milling and drilling. Then, because of the close tolerances necessary, a rigid inspection is made. The tolerance is from one-tenth of a thousand to a normal range of one and a half thousandth.

All parts made are completed within the plant. It is equipped with all facilities to take care of every condition in the process of making Electrol parts from raw material to the completed unit from milling and drilling.

Rigid Ban Is Put on Use Of 'Parallel'

MacArthur Orders Full Blackout on Mention of Distance to 'Certain Line'

Battalion Halted

Reds Hurl Back Yank Troops After Fight All Day

Tokyo, March 20 (AP)—United States troops battling northeast of Hongchon on the central Korean front today ran into "very stiff" Communist resistance.

Red troops fighting from well dug in hill positions hurled back an American battalion after a day-long fight.

In Tokyo, General MacArthur ordered a news blackout on the distance to a certain line on the Korean peninsula.

(Correspondents were not allowed to say specifically what this line is, but it obviously refers to the politically important Parallel 38.)

It is one of the most rigid news restrictions placed on correspondents since the war began.

At latest reports, sent before the ban, the allies were reported less than 17 miles from the border to Red Korea.

The U. S. Eighth Army said holding elements were on the line at 10 scattered points across the peninsula. Patrols were known to be operating much closer to the border.

Reds Hang On

In the action northeast of Hongchon, allied air and artillery attack failed to knock out the Communists. The Reds fought back.

The contested hill commands a junction of the road leading northeast of Hongchon and a lateral road running east. Much enemy activity has been reported on both roads during the last two days.

Elsewhere on the central front allied troops advanced against increasing enemy resistance.

An armored patrol advancing on Chunchon met some mortar and small arms fire from Chinese rear guards. Allied officers said they still believe the city will fall without a fight. Chunchon was once the Chinese headquarters in South Korea. It is eight miles south of the old boundary between North and South Korea.

North of Seoul on the western front American units ran into heavy small arms, mortar and artillery fire. The resistance was south of Uijongbu. The exact location was not given.

Mines Cleared Away

In Seoul itself mines were being cleared from the streets and roadways while the rice rations were doled out to long lines of civilians.

On the west central front ROK (Republic of Korea) soldiers led the Allied advance. AP Correspondent William C. Barnard said the South Koreans made the deepest penetration of Communist lines.

Activity on the east-central front was confined to patrol skirmishes. A field dispatch said an American patrol found about 100 Communists dug in on the high ground overlooking the river north of Pungam.

Artillery and air attacks forced the Reds to withdraw.

Twelve B-29 Superforts Tuesday pounded Hamhung on North Korea's east coast. Four other Superforts hit a bridge near Kowon, south of Hamhung.

Censorship was lifted on the capture of the Chungbyong reservoir and power station 15 miles northeast of Seoul. They were captured intact three days ago. United Nations troops, the Eighth Army said, have advanced beyond that point.

Rear-Guard Fighting

Moderate rear-guard action was reported during the day. Chinese and North Korean Communists were reported at three widely-separated points: east of Uijonbu,

'Mrs. X' Tells Tale Of Son's Tragedy As Heroin Addict

Boy, 16, Began Smoking Reefers, Now He Writhes in Jail, Pleads

Baltimore, March 20 (AP) — "Mom, I'm helpless."

"Then you can't leave it alone," Mrs. X said in despair.

That's part of how a mother told the Baltimore Evening Sun she finally realized her 15-year-old son was a dope addict.

He started smoking "reefers" —marihuana—she related. Soon, he was pawning possessions for a "needle"—heroin.

Mrs. X said she then had to give him money for drugs.

"Oh, I know it sounds awful," she sobs. "But I talked it over with my husband, and we didn't know who to turn to. We thought if we did anything else we'd get our child in trouble."

The son, Paul, now 16, is in jail. Mrs. X visits him and describes him rolling on the floor in agony, crying:

"I got to have a needle! I got to have a needle!"

The story of Mrs. X and her son is one that has aroused Baltimore to an all-out battle against drugs. And a self-searching query how they can better help those who have succumbed.

Other Parents Tried, Too

Mrs. X tells how she and other worried parents tried to do their own investigating.

They drove to dance halls and ice-cream parlors.

"It was all in the open.

"There were about 20 teen-agers" in one place, she said. "Every one of them was under the influence of drugs.

"The boys were all wearing these drape suits, and the girls were in tight dresses, and their hair was bleached.

"Their eyes were all glassy, and their heads flopped this way, that way. It was pitiful."

She told the police. "Catch them with the stuff," they said.

"Catch them with the stuff," she says. "I see them out there every night, selling it — like candy."

Several Are Caught

Federal narcotics agents recently have caught several with the "stuff." Their court testimony told of the growing sale of drugs in Baltimore. Of peddlers giving it to teen-agers to make them addicts to build up a trade.

Mrs. X is getting some help now, although it may be too late for her own jailed son.

Parents from all over the city will respond to a "call to arms" tonight at a meeting by the Citizens' Committee on Youth Problems. They'll map plans to fight drug addiction among Baltimore's youngsters.

Youth Council Named

Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro this week named an emergency Youth Council of leading citizens for the same purpose. And yesterday he asked the city solicitor to study legislation to compel drug addicts to remain in a hospital until cured.

The city's legislators are joining the attack at the general Assembly now in session in Annapolis. House Speaker John Luber last night introduced a bill to confiscate any cars carrying drugs. Already signed into law is his bill to give mandatory prison sentences to anyone convicted of selling drugs to minors.

A Baltimore state senator also has introduced a bill to give progressively stiffer mandatory sentences to anyone selling drugs.

Library to Close

The Kingston City Library will be closed March 23, Good Friday, at 1 p. m., and will remain closed thereafter for the day, it was announced today.

Spring to Arrive Wednesday, 5:25 AM

New York, March 20 (AP)—Spring arrives tomorrow, at 5:25 a. m., Eastern Standard Time, but don't expect a sudden change to warm weather.

Tonight is expected to bring freezing temperatures in New York city, and the high predicted for the first day of spring is temperatures in the mid 40s.

Arrival of spring is determined when the earth's axis in March is at right angles to the direction of the sun. At that time day and night are of equal length.

Security Officer Testifies at Trial

U. S. Authorities Thought Nazis Ahead During War With A-Bomb

New York, March 20 (AP)—A wartime security officer for the atom bomb project testified at a spy trial today that U. S. atomic authorities "believed that the Germans were working on the atom bomb and were far in advance of our efforts."

"We believed that should any information on the atom bomb leak out to them, it would cause them to redouble their efforts," Col. John Lansdale, Jr., told a federal court jury.

The officer was called as a government witness in the trial of Julius Rosenberg, 34, an electrical engineer; his wife, Ethel, 35, and Morton Sobell, 33, radar expert. They are charged with conspiring to spy for Russia during wartime. If convicted the three could be sentenced to death.

Lansdale said that American officials tried to keep knowledge of the "concentration of prominent scientists" in any one place from all foreign powers."

Known Throughout World

He explained that the identity of specialists such as those in nuclear fission was known throughout the scientific world, and that if they were located in one spot it might give the Germans a clue as to the scientific work in progress.

Such concentrations of scientists, he said, later gave American authorities clues to what the Germans were doing.

Lansdale said that in July 1942, Lt. Gen. Leslie Groves, wartime head of the A-bomb project, "asked me to be responsible for security of the project."

Earlier, Col. Chandler Cobb, director of the New York city selective service, identified papers in the selective service files of Sobell. Harold M. Phillips, counsel for Sobell, protested that he had not seen the file and "don't know whether it is detrimental to my client."

Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman remarked "I assume the government would not introduce it unless it was intended to be detrimental to the defendant."

There was no immediate elaboration.

Bill Goes to Truman

Washington, March 20 (AP)—Congress has sent to President Truman a bill extending federal rent control in some 1,300 communities for 90 days past March 31. Action on the administration-backed measure was completed yesterday by a voice vote in the House. It is designated to serve as a stop-gap until Congress acts upon a new rent control law expected to be included in a revised economic mobilization measure. The 90-day bill affects communities which have not voted locally to discontinue rent controls or taken to continue them until June 30. They may still vote to discontinue them.

Republicans Hope To Get Amendment Tied to New Bill

Four-Day Debate to Start April 3; Approval by Congress Is Big Point

Washington, March 20 (AP)—Republicans were hopeful today they may be able to tie to the new draft bill the House is to debate after Easter an amendment to bar sending troops to Europe without congressional approval.

Their hopes were raised when the House Rules Committee yesterday put the debate under a rule permitting any and all amendments to be offered from the floor. The four-day debate starts April 3.

Republicans are clamoring for at least four amendments to the universal military training and service (UMTS) program up for House action. The bill would lower the draft age from the present 19 years to 18½; extend the service period from 21 to 26 months, and provide for eventual long-range universal military training.

Major Changes Sought

Major changes the Republicans are advocating include:

1. An amendment to prohibit the use of United States troops as part of the Atlantic Pact army in Europe without express congressional approval. The UMTS bill passed by the Senate contains no such provision. The Senate is debating a separate resolution on that subject.

2. An amendment to separate the draft part of the bill from provisions laying the foundation for a universal military training program when the need for a service draft ends. The Senate included the UMT program in its draft bill. Many house Republicans are opposed to UMT at this time in any form. They say the time to consider it is when there no longer is need for a draft law.

3. A ceiling on the combined strength of the armed forces, probably at not more than 4,000,000, the figure voted by the Senate.

4. A cut-off date for the new draft bill instead of the indefinite operation period recommended by the House Armed Services Committee. The bill passed by the Senate has no fixed termination date.

Houston, Tex., March 20 (AP)—Sophie Tucker, termed "the last of the red hot mamas" is ill here today with influenza. However, doctors reported her much improved.

Bronx Physician Seized

New York, March 20 (AP)—A Bronx physician was seized on an abortion charge yesterday as an assistant district attorney caused the arrest of a wealthy Queens real estate man who was formerly a doctor and served time on an abortion charge. Under arrest first was Dr. Joseph Tumarkin, 53, who lives at 2248 Esplanade, the Bronx, and has an office at 1777 Grand Concourse, the Bronx. Bronx County Assistant District Attorney Francis X. O'Brien ordered the arrest of George Rothenberg, 50, the former physician, who now lives at 181-45 Midland Parkway, Jamaica Estates, Queens, but is building a $100,000 home in Manhasset, L. I., according to O'Brien.

Auxiliary Police Session

Police Chief Raymond Van Buren announced today that the third session in the auxiliary police school for civil defense will be held in the city court room at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow. All residents of the city, who are interested, are asked to attend, and members of the local police force are also invited. A full attendance of members of the auxiliary unit is requested.

O'Dwyer Declares 'National Empire' Of Crime Growing

Big Appropriation Needed for Continuing Probe, He Says at Hearing

New York, March 20 (AP)—Former Mayor William O'Dwyer told Senate investigators today there is a growing "national empire" of crime, and urged big-scale government appropriations to stop it.

O'Dwyer, now U. S. ambassador to Mexico, testified that crime in America "will be widespread" until "we get an appropriation of $25,000,000 to $50,000,000 for a continuing investigation of it.

"There is a national crime empire growing," he said, "and it will get stronger if it isn't stopped."

He urged a standing committee be set up to supervise a continuing inquiry.

O'Dwyer, who has clashed heatedly with the Senate committee during two days on the witness stand, paused in his testimony to-

Dewey Invitation Is Not Accepted

Governor Asks Senate Committee to See Him at Capitol

Albany, N. Y., March 20 (AP)—Any appearance by Governor Dewey before the Kefauver Crime Committee appeared to be stymied today by conflicting invitations.

Dewey was invited by the Senate committee yesterday to come to New York to testify about gambling at Saratoga Springs and about vice king Charles (Lucky) Luciano, who was deported in 1946.

Dewey's answer last night was that he would be "delighted" to give his views on organized crime —at the executive chamber at Albany.

However, Sen. Estes Kefauver (D.-Tenn.) said:

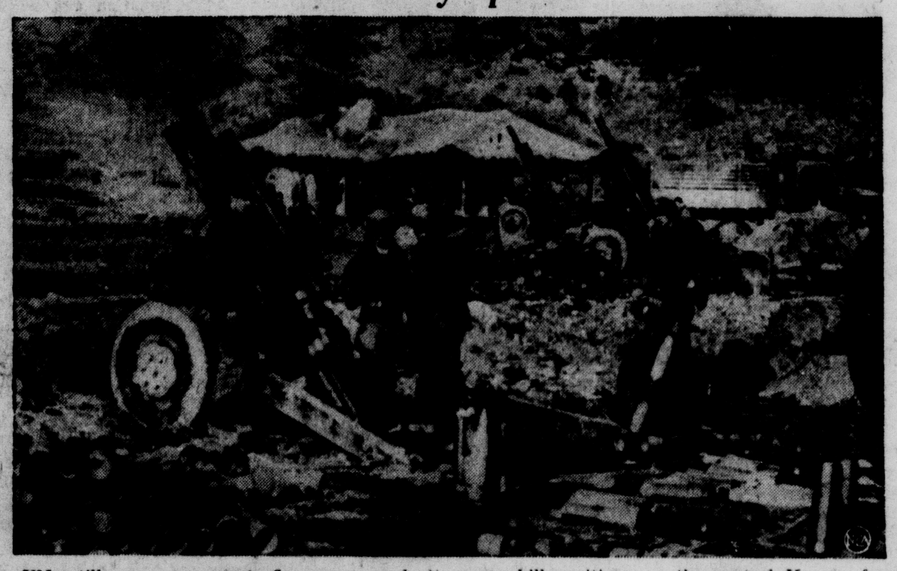

"We have no intention of going to Albany."

Dewey telegraphed Kefauver:

"I * * * would be delighted to give you my views on organized

Montgomery Is Chosen to Be Chief Aide to Eisenhower

Paris, March 20 (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower today named British Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery as his deputy commander in the Atlantic Pact Army.

Gen. Eisenhower also appointed eight other high ranking officers to his staff.

He chose Air Force Marshal Sir Hugh Saunders of the British Royal Air Force as his air deputy.

A senior naval officer may be named later "if the need becomes apparent," a headquarters spokesman said.

The French cabinet announced, meanwhile, that Gen. Alphonse Juin, commander of France's armed forces, has been made available to Gen. Eisenhower to serve as ground troops commander in the Atlantic Pact Army. Juin, 62, is inspector-general of French armed forces, a post created after Eisenhower's survey tour of pact nations. Juin also is resident-general of Morocco.

The French cabinet also announced that Vice Adm. Robert Jaujard was named to the Eisenhower staff.

Eisenhower announced that Juin's title would be commander in chief of the Allied army forces in the central sector of Europe, and Jaujard will be naval flag officer, central sector, Europe.

Other appointments included Lt. Gen. Lauris Norstad, commander

Took Drastic Step

Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi took the drastic step in a move to suppress the terror which has brought the assassination of American-supported Premier Ali Razmara March 7 and the shooting of the deputy chancellor of Tehran University, Dr. Abdul Zanganeh, yesterday.

The new military governor-general, Abdul Hejazi, made an appeal by radio to all groups in the capital to maintain peace. The city was quiet, althought unpaid government workers demonstrated in front of the Parliament building.

The six-hour strike of the telegraph workers ended when the government paid them the wages which had not been given them for their last month's work.

The strike, however, had held up news to the outside world of the proclamation, issued by the Shah at noon (4 a. m., E.S.T.).

Bronx Physician Seized

New York, March 20 (AP)—A Bronx physician was seized on an abortion charge yesterday as an assistant district attorney caused the arrest of a wealthy Queens real estate man who was formerly a doctor and served time on an abortion charge. Under arrest first was Dr. Joseph Tumarkin, 53, who lives at 2248 Esplanade, the Bronx, and has an office at 1777 Grand Concourse, the Bronx. Bronx County Assistant District Attorney Francis X. O'Brien ordered the arrest of George Rothenberg, 50, the former physician, who now lives at 181-45 Midland Parkway, Jamaica Estates, Queens, but is building a $100,000 home in Manhasset, L. I., according to O'Brien.

Johnston Seeks New Provisions

Washington, March 20 (AP)—Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston wants a sizeable kit of new anti-inflation powers including several changes in pricing provisions of the Defense Production Act, informed officials said today.

Although Johnston believes the basic remedy is to reduce buying demand through higher taxes and stiffer credit control, he has sent a sheaf of recommendations on price and black market control to Charles E. Wilson, mobilization director.

Some are expected to show up in a presidential message to Congress next month on extension of the mobilization law due to expire June 30.

Because the final decision belongs to President Truman, Johnston has not made his views public. But informed officials said it is "safe to assume" he has requested these changes:

Revision of the parity provisions which restrict food price control; some federal subsidies to absorb cost increases; broader power to license industries as meat slaughterers are now licensed; and a year's extension of rent control, written into the mobilization act.

Goes to Florida

Johnston was in Key West today, conferring with Mr. Truman on other business—the wage control dispute which, because of labor's walkout from federal mobilization agencies, has paralyzed the Wage Stabilization Board.

As for the price control program, Johnston is known to believe that any efforts to keep the cost of living in line are likely to be wrecked by the parity provision of the Defense Act. Farm prices may not be subjected to ceiling, the law provides, until they reach parity, declared by law to be fair to producers and consumers. Many commodities have not yet done so.

Whether Mr. Truman ultimately would recommend a revision in the face of certain opposition from farm spokesmen, was considered uncertain.

Favors Subsidies

Johnston also is understood to favor government subsidies. This also would require legislation. Federal payments to producers or processors would be used to offset rises in production costs. Many officials dislike this technique, which means that cost increases are paid out of taxes.

To prevent black markets, Johnston is expected to seek further authority to license industries in which severe shortages develop. Slaughterers already are licensed. But the Office of Price Stabilization lacks authority to reach other fields.

By licensing firms individually, OPS prevents the sudden appearance of fly-by-night operators, existing solely to sell at above-ceiling prices.

Auxiliary Police Session

Police Chief Raymond Van Buren announced today that the third session in the auxiliary police school for civil defense will be held in the city court room at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow. All residents of the city, who are interested, are asked to attend, and members of the local police force are also invited. A full attendance of members of the auxiliary unit is requested.

Electrol Resumes Work for U.S., Has $8,000,000 Jobs

Plant Operating on Two 10-Hour Shifts to Produce Hydraulic Parts for 19 Leading Aircraft Firms; 400 Now Are Employed

A major local industry which effectively helped move the wheels of national defense during World War 2, is again back at work for Uncle Sam with nearly $8,000,000 in contracts.

Electrol Incorporated, 85 Grand street, works today on two 10-hour shifts to produce important hydraulic parts for 19 of the nation's great aircraft plants, and the job, employing 400 workers, is among those of top importance in the country.

Hydraulics, in the plant's own terms, "is as old as Archimedes, as new as guided missiles. It is the most versatile method known of applying power to do a job."

Force applied to one end of a hydraulic system can work at any point in the system, can flow around corners without moving parts, can store energy, and has infinite variety of control.

High Production Quality

Electrol, with such magic to produce, brings advanced techniques to the solution of hydraulic problems. It builds complete components and systems under one roof, and in both war and peace times, the plant has established a record of high production quality.

The plant converted in 1940 from the manufacture of oil burners to full participation in the defense effort, and after V-J Day it benefited by its prior performance record and with labor force and equipment of proved versatility, it went after new business.

War-developed products were converted to peace-time use and Electrol's engineers found new and important uses for hyrdaulic parts. They were used in peace-time aircraft and for aiding in performing other mechanical services and the plant's wheels rolled on until the tempo was again stepped up for defense production.

Electrol is proud of its production record and stresses that "All parts ever submitted for acceptance had higher performance than that called for.....and as always in production for modern military airplanes, nothing less than perfection will do."

Inspection Is Rigid

All materials for the U. S. Navy and Air Force are submitted to rigid inspection. They get full chemical and physical analysis, and each piece is subject to Electrol inspection before it is run.

When parts are made it is determined that the material from which it is formed can endure required stresses and specified hardness so that it will stand up and function under the most severe conditions.

In the plant's processing from the raw material, there are turret lathe operations which do the turning and boring before the parts go to milling and drilling. Then, because of the close tolerances necessary, a rigid inspection is made. The tolerance is from one-tenth of a thousand to a normal range of one and a half thousandth.

All parts made are completed within the plant. It is equipped with all facilities to take care of every condition in the process of making Electrol parts from raw material to the completed unit from milling and drilling.

O'Dwyer Declares 'National Empire' Of Crime Growing

Big Appropriation Needed for Continuing Probe, He Says at Hearing

New York, March 20 (AP)—Former Mayor William O'Dwyer told Senate investigators today there is a growing "national empire" of crime, and urged big-scale government appropriations to stop it.

O'Dwyer, now U. S. ambassador to Mexico, testified that crime in America "will be widespread" until "we get an appropriation of $25,000,000 to $50,000,000 for a continuing investigation of it.

"There is a national crime empire growing," he said, "and it will get stronger if it isn't stopped."

He urged a standing committee be set up to supervise a continuing inquiry.

Dewey Invitation Is Not Accepted

Governor Asks Senate Committee to See Him at Capitol

Albany, N. Y., March 20 (AP)—Any appearance by Governor Dewey before the Kefauver Crime Committee appeared to be stymied today by conflicting invitations.

Dewey was invited by the Senate committee yesterday to come to New York to testify about gambling at Saratoga Springs and about vice king Charles (Lucky) Luciano, who was deported in 1946.

Dewey's answer last night was that he would be "delighted" to give his views on organized crime —at the executive chamber at Albany.

However, Sen. Estes Kefauver (D.-Tenn.) said:

"We have no intention of going to Albany."

Dewey telegraphed Kefauver:

"I * * * would be delighted to give you my views on organized

Rigid Ban Is Put on Use Of 'Parallel'

Reds Hurl Back Yank Troops After Fight All Day

Tokyo, March 20 (AP)—United States troops battling northeast of Hongchon on the central Korean front today ran into "very stiff" Communist resistance.

Red troops fighting from well dug in hill positions hurled back an American battalion after a day-long fight.

In Tokyo, General MacArthur ordered a news blackout on the distance to a certain line on the Korean peninsula.

(Correspondents were not allowed to say specifically what this line is, but it obviously refers to the politically important Parallel 38.)

It is one of the most rigid news restrictions placed on correspondents since the war began.

At latest reports, sent before the ban, the allies were reported less than 17 miles from the border to Red Korea.

The U. S. Eighth Army said holding elements were on the line at 10 scattered points across the peninsula. Patrols were known to be operating much closer to the border.

Reds Hang On

In the action northeast of Hongchon, allied air and artillery attack failed to knock out the Communists. The Reds fought back.

The contested hill commands a junction of the road leading northeast of Hongchon and a lateral road running east. Much enemy activity has been reported on both roads during the last two days.

Elsewhere on the central front allied troops advanced against increasing enemy resistance.

An armored patrol advancing on Chunchon met some mortar and small arms fire from Chinese rear guards. Allied officers said they still believe the city will fall without a fight. Chunchon was once the Chinese headquarters in South Korea. It is eight miles south of the old boundary between North and South Korea.

North of Seoul on the western front American units ran into heavy small arms, mortar and artillery fire. The resistance was south of Uijongbu. The exact location was not given.

Mines Cleared Away

In Seoul itself mines were being cleared from the streets and roadways while the rice rations were doled out to long lines of civilians.

On the west central front ROK (Republic of Korea) soldiers led the Allied advance. AP Correspondent William C. Barnard said the South Koreans made the deepest penetration of Communist lines.

Activity on the east-central front was confined to patrol skirmishes. A field dispatch said an American patrol found about 100 Communists dug in on the high ground overlooking the river north of Pungam.

Artillery and air attacks forced the Reds to withdraw.

Twelve B-29 Superforts Tuesday pounded Hamhung on North Korea's east coast. Four other Superforts hit a bridge near Kowon, south of Hamhung.

Censorship was lifted on the capture of the Chungbyong reservoir and power station 15 miles northeast of Seoul. They were captured intact three days ago. United Nations troops, the Eighth Army said, have advanced beyond that point.

Rear-Guard Fighting

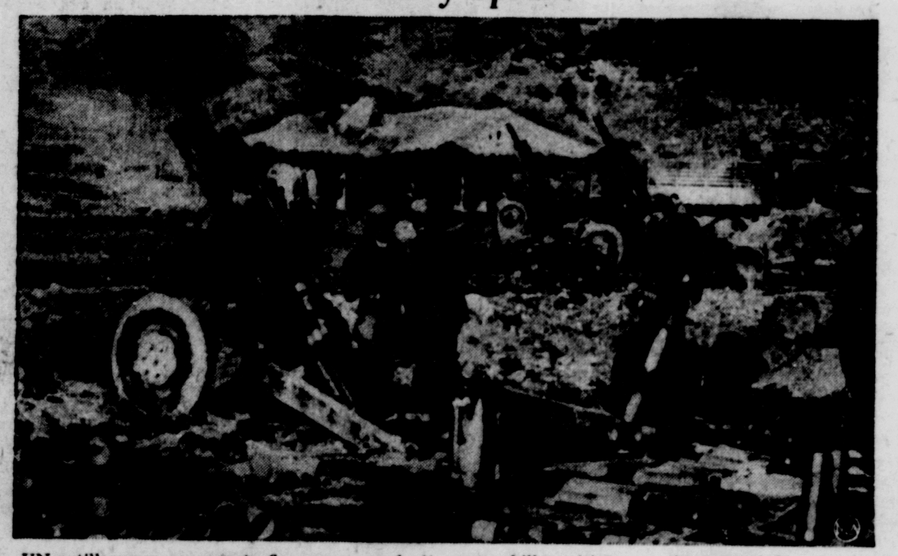

Moderate rear-guard action was reported during the day. Chinese and North Korean Communists were reported at three widely-separated points: east of Uijonbu,

Montgomery Is Chosen to Be Chief Aide to Eisenhower

Paris, March 20 (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower today named British Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery as his deputy commander in the Atlantic Pact Army.

Gen. Eisenhower also appointed eight other high ranking officers to his staff.

He chose Air Force Marshal Sir Hugh Saunders of the British Royal Air Force as his air deputy.

A senior naval officer may be named later "if the need becomes apparent," a headquarters spokesman said.

The French cabinet announced, meanwhile, that Gen. Alphonse Juin, commander of France's armed forces, has been made available to Gen. Eisenhower to serve as ground troops commander in the Atlantic Pact Army. Juin, 62, is inspector-general of French armed forces, a post created after Eisenhower's survey tour of pact nations. Juin also is resident-general of Morocco.

The French cabinet also announced that Vice Adm. Robert Jaujard was named to the Eisenhower staff.

Eisenhower announced that Juin's title would be commander in chief of the Allied army forces in the central sector of Europe, and Jaujard will be naval flag officer, central sector, Europe.

Other appointments included Lt. Gen. Lauris Norstad, commander

Gangsters Blamed

New Premier Declares Security Threatened by 'Elements'

Tehran, Iran, March 20 (AP)—The Shah proclaimed martial law today in this terror-ridden, strategic Middle Eastern country whose oil riches make her position vital in the east-west cold war.

The martial law, limited to Tehran and imposed for a period of two months, came amid a wave of rumors that new terrorism had taken the lives of Iranian officials. One rumor, totally unconfirmed here, was that Governor-General Manouchar Egbal of Azerbaijan Province on the Soviet border had been slain along with his provincial chief of police.

Four hours after the martial law was proclaimed, a column of eight tanks rumbled down one of the city's streets and past the U. S. embassy, which has been the scene of demonstrations against foreigners. This was the first show of force by the government under the martial law order.

Action Is Completed

Even as the proclamation was broadcast, the Iranian Senate completed action on approval for nationalization of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, focus of the nationalist anger which has been generating public tension in Iran.

The presentation of the martial law proclamation to the Shah was the first action of the new cabinet formed by Hussein Ala, pro-westerner named premier after the assassination of his predecessor two weeks ago.

It announced that "all gangsters and opportunists who create disturbances will be punished." The broadcast proclamation asserted that "gangster elements have been trying to upset the security of Tehran."

Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi took the drastic step in a move to suppress the terror which has brought the assassination of American-supported Premier Ali Razmara March 7 and the shooting of the deputy chancellor of Tehran University, Dr. Abdul Zanganeh, yesterday.

'Mrs. X' Tells Tale Of Son's Tragedy As Heroin Addict

Boy, 16, Began Smoking Reefers, Now He Writhes in Jail, Pleads

Baltimore, March 20 (AP) — "Mom, I'm helpless."

"Then you can't leave it alone," Mrs. X said in despair.

That's part of how a mother told the Baltimore Evening Sun she finally realized her 15-year-old son was a dope addict.

He started smoking "reefers" —marihuana—she related. Soon, he was pawning possessions for a "needle"—heroin.

Mrs. X said she then had to give him money for drugs.

"Oh, I know it sounds awful," she sobs. "But I talked it over with my husband, and we didn't know who to turn to. We thought if we did anything else we'd get our child in trouble."

The son, Paul, now 16, is in jail. Mrs. X visits him and describes him rolling on the floor in agony, crying:

"I got to have a needle! I got to have a needle!"

The story of Mrs. X and her son is one that has aroused Baltimore to an all-out battle against drugs. And a self-searching query how they can better help those who have succumbed.

Other Parents Tried, Too

Mrs. X tells how she and other worried parents tried to do their own investigating.

They drove to dance halls and ice-cream parlors.

"It was all in the open.

"There were about 20 teen-agers" in one place, she said. "Every one of them was under the influence of drugs.

"The boys were all wearing these drape suits, and the girls were in tight dresses, and their hair was bleached.

"Their eyes were all glassy, and their heads flopped this way, that way. It was pitiful."

She told the police. "Catch them with the stuff," they said.

"Catch them with the stuff," she says. "I see them out there every night, selling it — like candy."

Several Are Caught

Federal narcotics agents recently have caught several with the "stuff." Their court testimony told of the growing sale of drugs in Baltimore. Of peddlers giving it to teen-agers to make them addicts to build up a trade.

Mrs. X is getting some help now, although it may be too late for her own jailed son.

Parents from all over the city will respond to a "call to arms" tonight at a meeting by the Citizens' Committee on Youth Problems. They'll map plans to fight drug addiction among Baltimore's youngsters.

Youth Council Named

Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro this week named an emergency Youth Council of leading citizens for the same purpose. And yesterday he asked the city solicitor to study legislation to compel drug addicts to remain in a hospital until cured.

The city's legislators are joining the attack at the general Assembly now in session in Annapolis. House Speaker John Luber last night introduced a bill to confiscate any cars carrying drugs. Already signed into law is his bill to give mandatory prison sentences to anyone convicted of selling drugs to minors.

A Baltimore state senator also has introduced a bill to give progressively stiffer mandatory sentences to anyone selling drugs.

Library to Close

The Kingston City Library will be closed March 23, Good Friday, at 1 p. m., and will remain closed thereafter for the day, it was announced today.

Spring to Arrive Wednesday, 5:25 AM

New York, March 20 (AP)—Spring arrives tomorrow, at 5:25 a. m., Eastern Standard Time, but don't expect a sudden change to warm weather.

Tonight is expected to bring freezing temperatures in New York city, and the high predicted for the first day of spring is temperatures in the mid 40s.

Arrival of spring is determined when the earth's axis in March is at right angles to the direction of the sun. At that time day and night are of equal length.

Security Officer Testifies at Trial

U. S. Authorities Thought Nazis Ahead During War With A-Bomb

New York, March 20 (AP)—A wartime security officer for the atom bomb project testified at a spy trial today that U. S. atomic authorities "believed that the Germans were working on the atom bomb and were far in advance of our efforts."

"We believed that should any information on the atom bomb leak out to them, it would cause them to redouble their efforts," Col. John Lansdale, Jr., told a federal court jury.

The officer was called as a government witness in the trial of Julius Rosenberg, 34, an electrical engineer; his wife, Ethel, 35, and Morton Sobell, 33, radar expert. They are charged with conspiring to spy for Russia during wartime. If convicted the three could be sentenced to death.

Lansdale said that American officials tried to keep knowledge of the "concentration of prominent scientists" in any one place from all foreign powers."

Known Throughout World

He explained that the identity of specialists such as those in nuclear fission was known throughout the scientific world, and that if they were located in one spot it might give the Germans a clue as to the scientific work in progress.

Such concentrations of scientists, he said, later gave American authorities clues to what the Germans were doing.

Lansdale said that in July 1942, Lt. Gen. Leslie Groves, wartime head of the A-bomb project, "asked me to be responsible for security of the project."

Earlier, Col. Chandler Cobb, director of the New York city selective service, identified papers in the selective service files of Sobell. Harold M. Phillips, counsel for Sobell, protested that he had not seen the file and "don't know whether it is detrimental to my client."

Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman remarked "I assume the government would not introduce it unless it was intended to be detrimental to the defendant."

There was no immediate elaboration.

Bill Goes to Truman

Washington, March 20 (AP)—Congress has sent to President Truman a bill extending federal rent control in some 1,300 communities for 90 days past March 31. Action on the administration-backed measure was completed yesterday by a voice vote in the House. It is designated to serve as a stop-gap until Congress acts upon a new rent control law expected to be included in a revised economic mobilization measure. The 90-day bill affects communities which have not voted locally to discontinue rent controls or taken to continue them until June 30. They may still vote to discontinue them.

Republicans Hope To Get Amendment Tied to New Bill

Four-Day Debate to Start April 3; Approval by Congress Is Big Point

Washington, March 20 (AP)—Republicans were hopeful today they may be able to tie to the new draft bill the House is to debate after Easter an amendment to bar sending troops to Europe without congressional approval.

Their hopes were raised when the House Rules Committee yesterday put the debate under a rule permitting any and all amendments to be offered from the floor. The four-day debate starts April 3.

Republicans are clamoring for at least four amendments to the universal military training and service (UMTS) program up for House action. The bill would lower the draft age from the present 19 years to 18½; extend the service period from 21 to 26 months, and provide for eventual long-range universal military training.

Major Changes Sought

Major changes the Republicans are advocating include:

1. An amendment to prohibit the use of United States troops as part of the Atlantic Pact army in Europe without express congressional approval. The UMTS bill passed by the Senate contains no such provision. The Senate is debating a separate resolution on that subject.

2. An amendment to separate the draft part of the bill from provisions laying the foundation for a universal military training program when the need for a service draft ends. The Senate included the UMT program in its draft bill. Many house Republicans are opposed to UMT at this time in any form. They say the time to consider it is when there no longer is need for a draft law.

3. A ceiling on the combined strength of the armed forces, probably at not more than 4,000,000, the figure voted by the Senate.

4. A cut-off date for the new draft bill instead of the indefinite operation period recommended by the House Armed Services Committee. The bill passed by the Senate has no fixed termination date.

New York, March 20 (AP)—A Bronx physician was seized on an abortion charge yesterday as an assistant district attorney caused the arrest of a wealthy Queens real estate man who was formerly a doctor and served time on an abortion charge. Under arrest first was Dr. Joseph Tumarkin, 53, who lives at 2248 Esplanade, the Bronx, and has an office at 1777 Grand Concourse, the Bronx. Bronx County Assistant District Attorney Francis X. O'Brien ordered the arrest of George Rothenberg, 50, the former physician, who now lives at 181-45 Midland Parkway, Jamaica Estates, Queens, but is building a $100,000 home in Manhasset, L. I., according to O'Brien.

Police Chief Raymond Van Buren announced today that the third session in the auxiliary police school for civil defense will be held in the city court room at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow. All residents of the city, who are interested, are asked to attend, and members of the local police force are also invited. A full attendance of members of the auxiliary unit is requested.

Dewey Invitation Is Not Accepted

Governor Asks Senate Committee to See Him at Capitol

Albany, N. Y., March 20 (AP)—Any appearance by Governor Dewey before the Kefauver Crime Committee appeared to be stymied today by conflicting invitations.

Dewey was invited by the Senate committee yesterday to come to New York to testify about gambling at Saratoga Springs and about vice king Charles (Lucky) Luciano, who was deported in 1946.

Dewey's answer last night was that he would be "delighted" to give his views on organized crime —at the executive chamber at Albany.

However, Sen. Estes Kefauver (D.-Tenn.) said:

"We have no intention of going to Albany."

Dewey telegraphed Kefauver:

"I * * * would be delighted to give you my views on organized

Montgomery Is Chosen to Be Chief Aide to Eisenhower

Paris, March 20 (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower today named British Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery as his deputy commander in the Atlantic Pact Army.

Gen. Eisenhower also appointed eight other high ranking officers to his staff.

He chose Air Force Marshal Sir Hugh Saunders of the British Royal Air Force as his air deputy.

A senior naval officer may be named later "if the need becomes apparent," a headquarters spokesman said.

The French cabinet announced, meanwhile, that Gen. Alphonse Juin, commander of France's armed forces, has been made available to Gen. Eisenhower to serve as ground troops commander in the Atlantic Pact Army. Juin, 62, is inspector-general of French armed forces, a post created after Eisenhower's survey tour of pact nations. Juin also is resident-general of Morocco.

The French cabinet also announced that Vice Adm. Robert Jaujard was named to the Eisenhower staff.

Eisenhower announced that Juin's title would be commander in chief of the Allied army forces in the central sector of Europe, and Jaujard will be naval flag officer, central sector, Europe.

Invitations will be sent to the members of the council of Europe, plus Austria, Portugal and Switzerland, and a cabinet spokesman said France wants to create a farm agency for West Europe similar to the Schuman Plan for merging West Europe's coal and steel production. France has not outlined details of her plan, but has said it would affect grains, sugar, wine and dairy products.

Scouters Honored At Dinner Held In Baptist Church

George Matthews and William W. Brady, veterans of 30 years' service in Scouting, were honored at a dinner meeting at the First Baptist Church Monday evening, attended by 35 Boy Scout leaders of the Kingston district.

Service chevrons and pins indicating length of service were given to Matthews and Brady during brief but impressive ceremonies in charge of Sam Trull, district chairman.

Commissioner Frank Bourke presided at a round table discussion of scoutmasters and assistants. Troops represented reported progress in membership and advancement, and indicated there will be large attendance at Camp Tri-Mount this summer season.

Buck Deer Shot At Forsyth Park

The deer population at Forsyth Park, which is usually from three to four, was reduced by one yesterday when it became necessary to shoot a buck which had been injured.

Max Oppenheimer, assistant public works superintendent said today, however, that the State Conservation Department has promised to replace the deer as soon as possible.

Police headquarters was notified at 2:30 p. m. yesterday, that it was found necessary to shoot one of the deer and Officer Peter Camp was assigned to the job. The deer had one lame leg for some time before he suffered the other injury.

O'Dwyer Declares Dewey Invitation

day to praise it for doing what he called a "marvelous job."

No Local Curbs

Big-time rackets can't be curbed locally, the ex-mayor said, in demanding the permanent federal action.

"As long as 15,000,000 people want to bet twenty billions of dollars," he said, "and as long as you've got wires, information, racing sheets and newspapers giving full publicity and full information to that 15,000,000, you have something that is not entirely local.

"You've got something that is national and until we get help from the national government in shutting it off, we're in trouble locally."

Committee Counsel Rudolph Halley said this is what the committee is seeking to do. But he added pointedly that "if something had been done locally" racketeer Frank Costello might not have gained power over Tammany Hall, Manhattan Democratic organization.

"You know more about that than any other man," Halley said to O'Dwyer.

'That's Not True'

"That's not true," O'Dwyer protested, "you heard Costello yesterday."

"Well," Halley said slowly, "perhaps Costello knows more about it than you."

Costello, reputed eastern crime ruler, admitted at the public hearing yesterday that he had close friends in Tammany Hall, and used his influence once in picking its leader.

Earlier, O'Dwyer told the committee he did not believe big-scale bookmaking could exist without police protection.

He appeared fresh and rested in contrast to his weary, touchy mood at the close of yesterday's turbulent public hearing, during which he angrily denied links to gangland.

Called as the first witness today, he was asked if he thought large-scale bookmaking could exist without police protection. He replied flatly, "No."

He added that he believed such large-scale bookmaking does exist in Brooklyn.

Costello to Return

Frank Costello, the gambler who admits he wielded political power, also was slated for a return appearance today.

O'Dwyer spent the night at the hotel apartment of Mrs. Paul O'Dwyer, his sister-in-law.

He was wearing a blue suit, white shirt and blue and white figured tie.

Reporters asked him to identify a "Mr. Rosenblatt" whom he mentioned yesterday in a heated exchange with Sen. Charles W. Tobey (R.-N.H.), a committee member. O'Dwyer refused, saying, I will not discuss the proceedings."

O'Dwyer had accused Tobey of obtaining campaign funds in New York, and, to back up his story, asked if Rosenblatt was present. He was not.

Sen. Herbert O'Conor (D.-Md.) opened today's hearing. Committee members seated with him were Sen. Estes Kefauver (D.-Tenn.), committee chairman; Sen. Lester C. Hunt (D.-Wyo.), and Sen. Tobey.

O'Dwyer resumed his testimony at 9:40 a. m.

Rudolph Halley, the committee's chief counsel, put the first question to him:

"In your opinion, could bookmaking exist on any large scale without police protection?"

O'Dwyer: No.

Not in New York, He Says

Halley: Do you believe that bookmaking existed on a large scale in New York city at the time you resigned as mayor?

O'Dwyer: No. But from later reports from Brooklyn, it seems to me that over there at least it existed on a large scale.

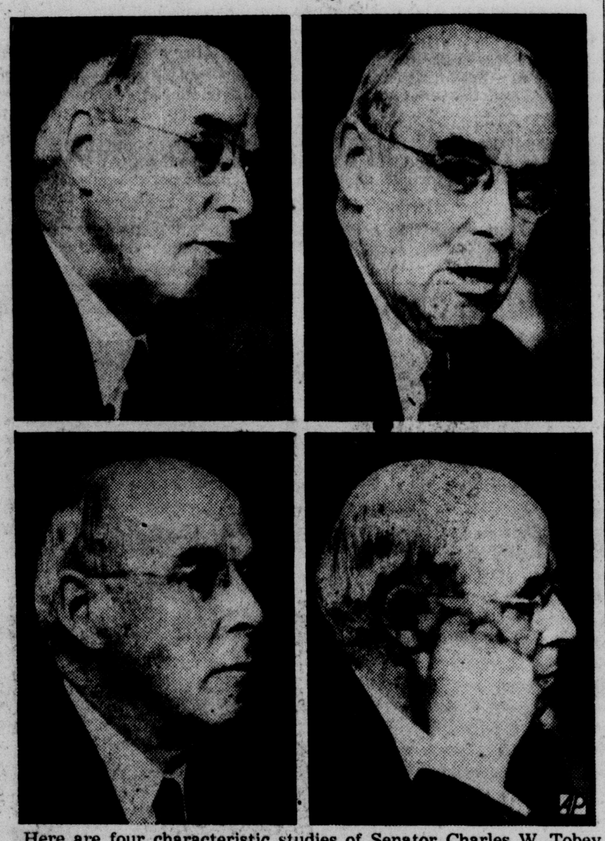

O'Dwyer resigned last September to take over his diplomatic post in Mexico.

Asked which he believed to be the largest bookmaking operation, the former mayor said he believed it was operated by Frank Erickson. Erickson, head of a $12,500,000 a year bookie empire, now is serving a two-year term on bookmaking charges. He also has been a witness before the committee but refused to answer many questions.

Asked if he believed Erickson operated a substantial portion of his business in New York state, O'Dwyer replied:

"I haven't the slightest idea. The records of arrests and convictions in New York city would indicate that there is and has been a lot of bookmaking. Across the river in New Jersey it is absolutely big business."

Senator Tobey Probes

Here are four characteristic studies of Senator Charles W. Tobey (R-N.H.) during Kefauver Senate Crime Investigating Committee hearings in federal courthouse, N. Y. (March 19). William O'Dwyer, former New York city mayor and now U. S. Ambassador to Mexico, was target of the senator's probing questions. The appearance of O'Dwyer at the hearing was highlighted by his sharp and caustic exchanges with Sen. Tobey.

Financial and Commercial

New York, March 20 (AP)—Trading ambled along slowly today with prices slumping dejectedly.

There wasn't any spirit at all in the market. Business was at an even slower pace than yesterday's 1,120,000 shares. And yesterday's total was the smallest since the day before the Memorial Day holiday last year.

Activity was centered in the steels, motors, and rails on the downside. There were occasional flickers of buying interest in the gold mining issues, chemicals, and a few manufacturers.

Losses extended beyond $2 a share at the outside. On the upside 75 cents was about the best most of them could do.

Consolidated railroads of Cuba preferred, which yesterday was actively sought at a gain of 1¼ at 32½, was up a small fraction today. Yesterday's advance was attributed to rumors of approval of a reorganization plan.

Hasbrouck's Name Omitted

Mrs. William Frey, chairman of the 10th Ward Red Cross drive, said today the name of Joseph Hasbrouck of the Franklin Apartments, Broadway, was omitted from the list of workers published last night in The Freeman. "Mr. Hasbrouck has done wonderful work for us," Mrs. Frey said today, "and we all feel sorry his name was left out. We have come to count a great deal on his public-spirited interest in the annual Red Cross drive."

Justice of Peace Involved in Gun Incident on Farm

A justice of the peace who said he had fired a shot to quell a disturbance on his farm near Marlborough early Monday morning was brought before Peace Justice Fred Woolsey, of Milton, later that day on a charge of second degree assault, state police reported today.

Sgt. William Martin, of the state police at Highland said the charge was brought against Arthur Greiner, 50, who operates a farm two miles west of Marlborough, and is a peace justice, by Wilfred Minus, 29, of Marlborough.

The complainant, Martin said, reported that he and Mary Williams, 27, of Marlborough, were struck in the legs by pellets from a shotgun and were taken to St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh and discharged.

Minus charges, Martin said, that the incident happened on the Greiner property, and Greiner claims that he had tried to stop a disturbance and fired a shot to the ground. The account of the incident indicated that the pellets might have ricocheted.

The case was adjourned to March 29 when Greiner was arraigned before Peace Justice Woolsey. He was represented by Attorney George Rusk of Marlborough.

To Discuss Price Data Tonight at 8

Albert Kurdt, executive secretary of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce, said today he was informed by the New York district office of the Office of Price Stabilization that the "list date pricing chart," deadline has been extended for one month.

Says Mothers Protest

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., March 20 (AP)—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt says that "mothers all over the country" have written her that it is "outrageous that our men be sent to fight on foreign soil." We may have had what we call a housing shortage but we have not had to live in cellars for years as they have done in Europe." Mrs. Roosevelt, chairman and U. S. representative on the United Nations' human rights commission, spoke at Skidmore College's open forum.

WHEN IT COMES TO INVESTMENTS.....

I'm a doctor — not a financial expert. Until three years ago, my indifferent success with investments proved that point. Then I turned to MUTUAL FUNDS whose shares represent widely diversified stocks. I soon learned that behind those shares was the professional judgment of men whose life's work was the study of investments. Doctors, lawyers, investors large or small in every walk of life should know more about the shares of MUTUAL FUNDS. And no matter how much money you have invested in securities, you should read the nationally authoritative booklet on the subject entitled "SOLVING YOUR INVESTMENT PROBLEMS."

Scouters Honored At Dinner Held In Baptist Church

George Matthews and William W. Brady, veterans of 30 years' service in Scouting, were honored at a dinner meeting at the First Baptist Church Monday evening, attended by 35 Boy Scout leaders of the Kingston district.

Service chevrons and pins indicating length of service were given to Matthews and Brady during brief but impressive ceremonies in charge of Sam Trull, district chairman.

Matthews, as Rip Van Winkle Council president, introduced George Dennis, new council executive. Dennis, in a short address, used as a keynote, "Set your sights up and keep your eyes ahead; in that way the plow will cut a deeper and straighter furrow."

Commissioner Frank Bourke presided at a round table discussion of scoutmasters and assistants. Troops represented reported progress in membership and advancement, and indicated there will be large attendance at Camp Tri-Mount this summer season.

Decision was made to hold another city-wide paper drive March 31, with all troops participating. Announcement was made that National Civil Defense plans call for Boy Scouts to train in units for stretcher bearer, messenger and clerk duties.

Next district meeting will be held Monday, April 16, at B'nai B'rith, 265 Wall street, with Troop 5 as host.

Buck Deer Shot At Forsyth Park

The deer population at Forsyth Park, which is usually from three to four, was reduced by one yesterday when it became necessary to shoot a buck which had been injured.

Max Oppenheimer, assistant public works superintendent said today, however, that the State Conservation Department has promised to replace the deer as soon as possible.

Police headquarters was notified at 2:30 p. m. yesterday, that it was found necessary to shoot one of the deer and Officer Peter Camp was assigned to the job. The deer had one lame leg for some time before he suffered the other injury.

O'Dwyer Declares Dewey Invitation

day to praise it for doing what he called a "marvelous job."

No Local Curbs

Big-time rackets can't be curbed locally, the ex-mayor said, in demanding the permanent federal action.

"As long as 15,000,000 people want to bet twenty billions of dollars," he said, "and as long as you've got wires, information, racing sheets and newspapers giving full publicity and full information to that 15,000,000, you have something that is not entirely local.

"You've got something that is national and until we get help from the national government in shutting it off, we're in trouble locally."

Committee Counsel Rudolph Halley said this is what the committee is seeking to do. But he added pointedly that "if something had been done locally" racketeer Frank Costello might not have gained power over Tammany Hall, Manhattan Democratic organization.

"You know more about that than any other man," Halley said to O'Dwyer.

'That's Not True'

"That's not true," O'Dwyer protested, "you heard Costello yesterday."

"Well," Halley said slowly, "perhaps Costello knows more about it than you."

Costello, reputed eastern crime ruler, admitted at the public hearing yesterday that he had close friends in Tammany Hall, and used his influence once in picking its leader.

Earlier, O'Dwyer told the committee he did not believe big-scale bookmaking could exist without police protection.

He appeared fresh and rested in contrast to his weary, touchy mood at the close of yesterday's turbulent public hearing, during which he angrily denied links to gangland.

Called as the first witness today, he was asked if he thought large-scale bookmaking could exist without police protection. He replied flatly, "No."

He added that he believed such large-scale bookmaking does exist in Brooklyn.

Costello to Return

Frank Costello, the gambler who admits he wielded political power, also was slated for a return appearance today.

O'Dwyer spent the night at the hotel apartment of Mrs. Paul O'Dwyer, his sister-in-law.

He was wearing a blue suit, white shirt and blue and white figured tie.

Reporters asked him to identify a "Mr. Rosenblatt" whom he mentioned yesterday in a heated exchange with Sen. Charles W. Tobey (R.-N.H.), a committee member. O'Dwyer refused, saying, I will not discuss the proceedings."

O'Dwyer had accused Tobey of obtaining campaign funds in New York, and, to back up his story, asked if Rosenblatt was present. He was not.

Sen. Herbert O'Conor (D.-Md.) opened today's hearing. Committee members seated with him were Sen. Estes Kefauver (D.-Tenn.), committee chairman; Sen. Lester C. Hunt (D.-Wyo.), and Sen. Tobey.

O'Dwyer resumed his testimony at 9:40 a. m.

Rudolph Halley, the committee's chief counsel, put the first question to him:

"In your opinion, could bookmaking exist on any large scale without police protection?"

O'Dwyer: No.

Not in New York, He Says

Halley: Do you believe that bookmaking existed on a large scale in New York city at the time you resigned as mayor?

O'Dwyer: No. But from later reports from Brooklyn, it seems to me that over there at least it existed on a large scale.

O'Dwyer resigned last September to take over his diplomatic post in Mexico.

Asked which he believed to be the largest bookmaking operation, the former mayor said he believed it was operated by Frank Erickson. Erickson, head of a $12,500,000 a year bookie empire, now is serving a two-year term on bookmaking charges. He also has been a witness before the committee but refused to answer many questions.

Asked if he believed Erickson operated a substantial portion of his business in New York state, O'Dwyer replied:

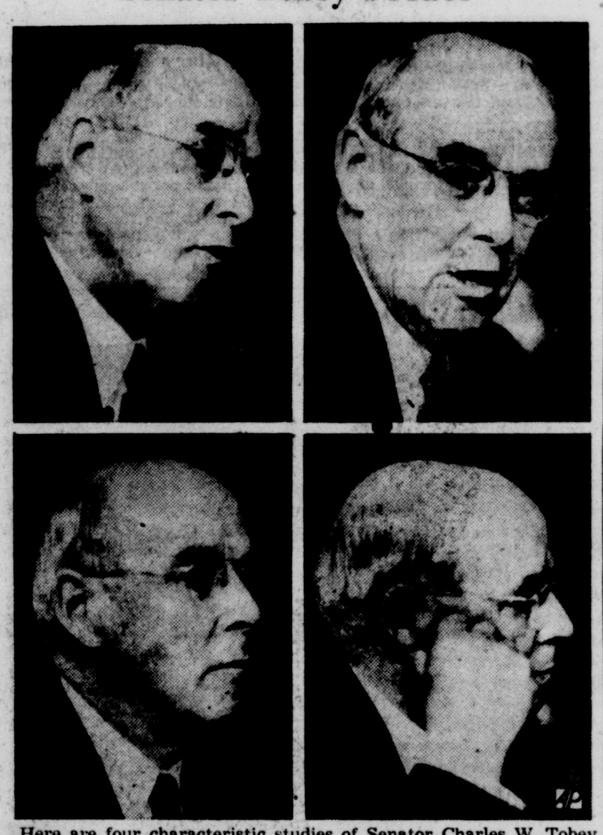

"I haven't the slightest idea. The records of arrests and convictions in New York city would indicate that there is and has been a lot of bookmaking. Across the river in New Jersey it is absolutely big business."

crime. That is a subject on which I spent many years of my life. It would be a pleasure to meet publicly with you and the members of your committee any time at your convenience at the executive chamber in the State Capitol. Of course, I would be pleased to have the committee members stay at the Executive Mansion while they are here."

The governor has been ill with a virus infection since last Tuesday but his secretary, James C. Hagerty, said Dewey would be ready for the committee "sick or well" whenever they wished to come to Albany.

Asked whether Dewey would have any objection to radio and television coverage, Hagerty said "None at all."

Senator Tobey Probes

Here are four characteristic studies of Senator Charles W. Tobey (R-N.H.) during Kefauver Senate Crime Investigating Committee hearings in federal courthouse, N. Y. (March 19). William O'Dwyer, former New York city mayor and now U. S. Ambassador to Mexico, was target of the senator's probing questions. The appearance of O'Dwyer at the hearing was highlighted by his sharp and caustic exchanges with Sen. Tobey.

Financial and Commercial

New York, March 20 (AP)—Trading ambled along slowly today with prices slumping dejectedly.

There wasn't any spirit at all in the market. Business was at an even slower pace than yesterday's 1,120,000 shares. And yesterday's total was the smallest since the day before the Memorial Day holiday last year.

Activity was centered in the steels, motors, and rails on the downside. There were occasional flickers of buying interest in the gold mining issues, chemicals, and a few manufacturers.

Losses extended beyond $2 a share at the outside. On the upside 75 cents was about the best most of them could do.

Consolidated railroads of Cuba preferred, which yesterday was actively sought at a gain of 1¾ at 32½, was up a small fraction today. Yesterday's advance was attributed to rumors of approval of a reorganization plan.

Hasbrouck's Name Omitted

Mrs. William Frey, chairman of the 10th Ward Red Cross drive, said today the name of Joseph Hasbrouck of the Franklin Apartments, Broadway, was omitted from the list of workers published last night in The Freeman. "Mr. Hasbrouck has done wonderful work for us," Mrs. Frey said today, "and we all feel sorry his name was left out. We have come to count a great deal on his public-spirited interest in the annual Red Cross drive."

Justice of Peace Involved in Gun Incident on Farm

A justice of the peace who said he had fired a shot to quell a disturbance on his farm near Marlborough early Monday morning was brought before Peace Justice Fred Woolsey, of Milton, later that day on a charge of second degree assault, state police reported today.

Sgt. William Martin, of the state police at Highland said the charge was brought against Arthur Greiner, 50, who operates a farm two miles west of Marlborough, and is a peace justice, by Wilfred Minus, 29, of Marlborough.

The complainant, Martin said, reported that he and Mary Williams, 27, of Marlborough, were struck in the legs by pellets from a shotgun and were taken to St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh and discharged.

Minus charges, Martin said, that the incident happened on the Greiner property, and Greiner claims that he had tried to stop a disturbance and fired a shot to the ground. The account of the incident indicated that the pellets might have ricocheted.

The case was adjourned to March 29 when Greiner was arraigned before Peace Justice Woolsey. He was represented by Attorney George Rusk of Marlborough.

S. representative on the United Nations' human rights commission, spoke at Skidmore College's open forum.

WHEN IT COMES TO INVESTMENTS.....
I'm a doctor — not a financial expert. Until three years ago, my indifferent success with investments proved that point. Then I turned to MUTUAL FUNDS whose shares represent widely diversified stocks. I soon learned that behind those shares was the professional judgment of men whose life's work was the study of investments. Doctors, lawyers, investors large or small in every walk of life should know more about the shares of MUTUAL FUNDS. And no matter how much money you have invested in securities, you should read the nationally authoritative booklet on the subject entitled "SOLVING YOUR INVESTMENT PROBLEMS."

Scouters Honored At Dinner Held In Baptist Church

George Matthews and William W. Brady, veterans of 30 years' service in Scouting, were honored at a dinner meeting at the First Baptist Church Monday evening, attended by 35 Boy Scout leaders of the Kingston district.

Service chevrons and pins indicating length of service were given to Matthews and Brady during brief but impressive ceremonies in charge of Sam Trull, district chairman.

Matthews, as Rip Van Winkle Council president, introduced George Dennis, new council executive. Dennis, in a short address, used as a keynote, "Set your sights up and keep your eyes ahead; in that way the plow will cut a deeper and straighter furrow."

Commissioner Frank Bourke presided at a round table discussion of scoutmasters and assistants. Troops represented reported progress in membership and advancement, and indicated there will be large attendance at Camp Tri-Mount this summer season.

Troop 2 reported it has been functioning without a scoutmaster and the need for a volunteer adult for that position is acute.

Decision was made to hold another city-wide paper drive March 31, with all troops participating. Announcement was made that National Civil Defense plans call for Boy Scouts to train in units for stretcher bearer, messenger and clerk duties.

Next district meeting will be held Monday, April 16, at B'nai B'rith, 265 Wall street, with Troop 5 as host.

Buck Deer Shot At Forsyth Park

The deer population at Forsyth Park, which is usually from three to four, was reduced by one yesterday when it became necessary to shoot a buck which had been injured.

Max Oppenheimer, assistant public works superintendent said today, however, that the State Conservation Department has promised to replace the deer as soon as possible.

Police headquarters was notified at 2:30 p. m. yesterday, that it was found necessary to shoot one of the deer and Officer Peter Camp was assigned to the job. The deer had one lame leg for some time before he suffered the other injury.

O'Dwyer Declares Dewey Invitation

day to praise it for doing what he called a "marvelous job."

No Local Curbs

Big-time rackets can't be curbed locally, the ex-mayor said, in demanding the permanent federal action.

"As long as 15,000,000 people want to bet twenty billions of dollars," he said, "and as long as you've got wires, information, racing sheets and newspapers giving full publicity and full information to that 15,000,000, you have something that is not entirely local.

"You've got something that is national and until we get help from the national government in shutting it off, we're in trouble locally."

Committee Counsel Rudolph Halley said this is what the committee is seeking to do. But he added pointedly that "if something had been done locally" racketeer Frank Costello might not have gained power over Tammany Hall, Manhattan Democratic organization.

"You know more about that than any other man," Halley said to O'Dwyer.

'That's Not True'

"That's not true," O'Dwyer protested, "you heard Costello yesterday."

"Well," Halley said slowly, "perhaps Costello knows more about it than you."

Costello, reputed eastern crime ruler, admitted at the public hearing yesterday that he had close friends in Tammany Hall, and used his influence once in picking its leader.

Earlier, O'Dwyer told the committee he did not believe big-scale bookmaking could exist without police protection.

He appeared fresh and rested in contrast to his weary, touchy mood at the close of yesterday's turbulent public hearing, during which he angrily denied links to gangland.

Called as the first witness today, he was asked if he thought large-scale bookmaking could exist without police protection. He replied flatly, "No."

He added that he believed such large-scale bookmaking does exist in Brooklyn.

Costello to Return

Frank Costello, the gambler who admits he wielded political power, also was slated for a return appearance today.

O'Dwyer spent the night at the hotel apartment of Mrs. Paul O'Dwyer, his sister-in-law.

He was wearing a blue suit, white shirt and blue and white figured tie.

Reporters asked him to identify a "Mr. Rosenblatt" whom he mentioned yesterday in a heated exchange with Sen. Charles W. Tobey (R.-N.H.), a committee member. O'Dwyer refused, saying, I will not discuss the proceedings."

O'Dwyer had accused Tobey of obtaining campaign funds in New York, and, to back up his story, asked if Rosenblatt was present. He was not.

Sen. Herbert O'Conor (D.-Md.) opened today's hearing. Committee members seated with him were Sen. Estes Kefauver (D.-Tenn.), committee chairman; Sen. Lester C. Hunt (D.-Wyo.), and Sen. Tobey.

O'Dwyer resumed his testimony at 9:40 a. m.

Rudolph Halley, the committee's chief counsel, put the first question to him:

"In your opinion, could bookmaking exist on any large scale without police protection?"

O'Dwyer: No.

Not in New York, He Says

Halley: Do you believe that bookmaking existed on a large scale in New York city at the time you resigned as mayor?

O'Dwyer: No. But from later reports from Brooklyn, it seems to me that over there at least it existed on a large scale.

O'Dwyer resigned last September to take over his diplomatic post in Mexico.

Asked which he believed to be the largest bookmaking operation, the former mayor said he believed it was operated by Frank Erickson. Erickson, head of a $12,500,000 a year bookie empire, now is serving a two-year term on bookmaking charges. He also has been a witness before the committee but refused to answer many questions.

Asked if he believed Erickson operated a substantial portion of his business in New York state, O'Dwyer replied:

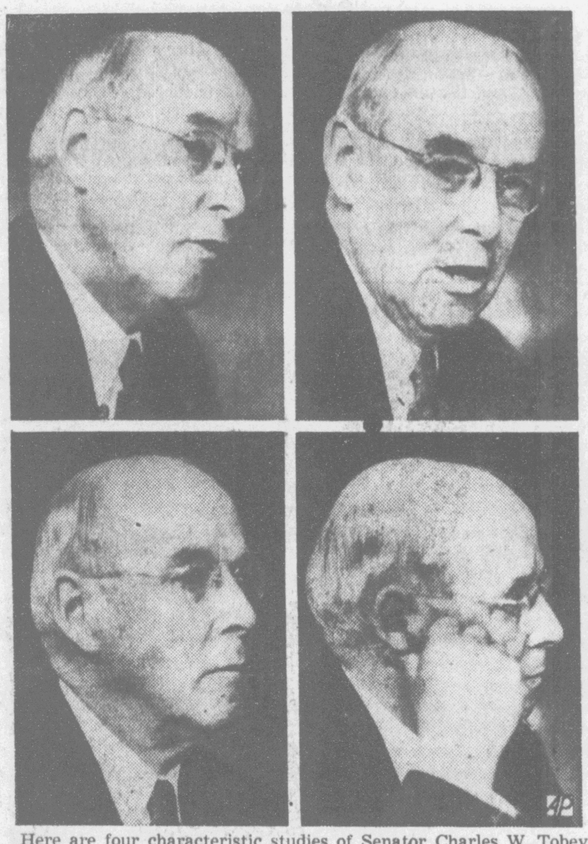

"I haven't the slightest idea. The records of arrests and convictions in New York city would indicate that there is and has been a lot of bookmaking. Across the river in New Jersey it is absolutely big business."

crime. That is a subject on which I spent many years of my life. It would be a pleasure to meet publicly with you and the members of your committee any time at your convenience at the executive chamber in the State Capitol. Of course, I would be pleased to have the committee members stay at the Executive Mansion while they are here."

The governor has been ill with a virus infection since last Tuesday but his secretary, James C. Hagerty, said Dewey would be ready for the committee "sick or well" whenever they wished to come to Albany.

Asked whether Dewey would have any objection to radio and television coverage, Hagerty said "None at all."

Senator Tobey Probes

Here are four characteristic studies of Senator Charles W. Tobey (R-N.H.) during Kefauver Senate Crime Investigating Committee hearings in federal courthouse, N. Y. (March 19). William O'Dwyer, former New York city mayor and now U. S. Ambassador to Mexico, was target of the senator's probing questions. The appearance of O'Dwyer at the hearing was highlighted by his sharp and caustic exchanges with Sen. Tobey.

Financial and Commercial

New York, March 20 (AP)—Trading ambled along slowly today with prices slumping dejectedly.

There wasn't any spirit at all in the market. Business was at an even slower pace than yesterday's 1,120,000 shares. And yesterday's total was the smallest since the day before the Memorial Day holiday last year.

Activity was centered in the steels, motors, and rails on the downside. There were occasional flickers of buying interest in the gold mining issues, chemicals, and a few manufacturers.

Losses extended beyond $2 a share at the outside. On the upside 75 cents was about the best most of them could do.

Consolidated railroads of Cuba preferred, which yesterday was actively sought at a gain of 1¼ at 32½, was up a small fraction today. Yesterday's advance was attributed to rumors of approval of a reorganization plan.

Hasbrouck's Name Omitted

Mrs. William Frey, chairman of the 10th Ward Red Cross drive, said today the name of Joseph Hasbrouck of the Franklin Apartments, Broadway, was omitted from the list of workers published last night in The Freeman. "Mr. Hasbrouck has done wonderful work for us," Mrs. Frey said today, "and we all feel sorry his name was left out. We have come to count a great deal on his public-spirited interest in the annual Red Cross drive."

Justice of Peace Involved in Gun Incident on Farm

A justice of the peace who said he had fired a shot to quell a disturbance on his farm near Marlborough early Monday morning was brought before Peace Justice Fred Woolsey, of Milton, later that day on a charge of second degree assault, state police reported today.

Sgt. William Martin, of the state police at Highland said the charge was brought against Arthur Greiner, 50, who operates a farm two miles west of Marlborough, and is a peace justice, by Wilfred Minus, 29, of Marlborough.

The complainant, Martin said, reported that he and Mary Williams, 27, of Marlborough, were struck in the legs by pellets from a shotgun and were taken to St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh and discharged.

Minus charges, Martin said, that the incident happened on the Greiner property, and Greiner claims that he had tried to stop a disturbance and fired a shot to the ground. The account of the incident indicated that the pellets might have ricocheted.

The case was adjourned to March 29 when Greiner was arraigned before Peace Justice Woolsey. He was represented by Attorney George Rusk of Marlborough.

To Discuss Price Data Tonight at 8

Albert Kurdt, executive secretary of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce, said today he was informed by the New York district office of the Office of Price Stabilization that the "list date pricing chart," deadline has been extended for one month.

All retailers coming under Ceiling Price Regulation No. 7, however, he said, are still requested to attend the meeting at 8 p. m. today at the Governor Clinton Hotel, arranged by the Chamber of Commerce following many requests for information on the regulation.

Retailers coming under Regulation No. 7 were expected to file reports with the O.P.S., 401 Fifth avenue, New York, by March 29. This now, has been extended to April 29, but it still will be necessary to discuss provisions of the regulations at tonight's meeting, Kurdt said.

Says Mothers Protest

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., March 20 (AP)—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt says that "mothers all over the country" have written her that it is "outrageous that our men be sent to fight on foreign soil." "If we followed that policy in World War 2," Mrs. Roosevelt said last night, "we would have experienced the same devastation that Europe has had. We may have had what we call a housing shortage but we have not had to live in cellars for years as they have done in Europe." Mrs. Roosevelt, chairman and U. S. representative on the United Nations' human rights commission, spoke at Skidmore College's open forum.

Nomination Approved

Washington, March 20 (AP)—The Senate Banking Committee today approved the nomination of William McChesney Martin, Jr., as a member of the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System.

WHEN IT COMES TO INVESTMENTS.....
I'm a doctor — not a financial expert. Until three years ago, my indifferent success with investments proved that point. Then I turned to MUTUAL FUNDS whose shares represent widely diversified stocks. I soon learned that behind those shares was the professional judgment of men whose life's work was the study of investments. Doctors, lawyers, investors large or small in every walk of life should know more about the shares of MUTUAL FUNDS. County Granges Rally March 28

E. PAYSON SMITH

Members of the 14 Subordinate Granges of Ulster county will hold a supper meeting at Rosendale Grange Wednesday evening, March 28, at 7, according to Deputy State Grange Master Vernon A. Barnhart, of Stone Ridge, and Pomona Master William T. Hookey, Jr., of Lake Katrine.

E. Payson Smith, Union Springs, director of public relations for N. Y. State Grange, will be guest speaker and explain to the representatives of the county's Granges the Albert S. Goss Memorial Membership program now being carried out in the nation's 8,000 Granges this year and next. The plan calls for a net gain of ten members per Grange, with a goal of a million members by June, 1952. Mr. Goss, who died suddenly in office last year, was national master for 10 years during which the Grange showed strong growth. He was a recognized farm leader and economist of international standing. He had devoted his life to the advancement of agriculture.

Do You Remember

by SOPHIE MILLER

Received an interesting letter from C. Baker of R.F.D. Ulster Park, in which he says in part: "In regard to an article appearing in this column, in which a description was made of a visit to the old house being demolished at the corner of Pearl and Wall street. I have often wondered too, just how old that house was, and what its history might be. All I have been able to find to date is that the house was built by Benjamin Welch, the father of Benjamin Welch, Jr., afterwards treasurer and Commissary General of this State, a gentleman of large literary acquirements, who passed the last years of his life in active duty during the war, and died from disease contracted in the service." So wrote the Rev. John Miller, in 1695, a resident chaplain, for three years in the Province of New York.

If this or any part of it is the same structure referred too, it is very old. Perhaps someone else has some data on its history and would like to tell us about it. The war, which is referred to, in mentioning the younger Mr. Welch, could be one of the French and Indian Wars, which included years of 1746-48 and 1755-1760. A house this old, if it already hasn't one, should have a plaque to mark where it had stood for so many years.

According to an item I saw elsewhere, the house seems to been built in 1846 by Jeremiah Smith and his wife, Maria. Smith operated a livery business at Fair street and had a barn on Wall street near this house. So perhaps the house mentioned by the Rev. John Miller, in 1695 was on one of the other four corners, or perhaps was on this particular corner and later torn down for the 1846 house, who knows more about it?

The recent article in this column on prices back in 1935 brought a flood of comment. One gentleman called me up, who used to conduct an ice-cream parlor back around 1910, and he says in those days, he served a "Gimlet" which had walnuts, chocolate syrup and topped with a cherry. He used the large No. 8 scoop of ice-cream. It sold for five cents. Well, I remember when my father had a old-fashioned marble wall fountain with big mirror, and he too sold five cent ice cream sundaes and sodas. In fact, I remember he put a cherry on top of all ice-cream cones. In those days, folks ate ice-cream in the summer but in the winter the ice-cream business slowed down to practically nothing. Remember the Nabisco sundaes, and I think the banana splits were 10c with a whole banana. Well, you could also get a full course dinner at Amrod's on the Strand for 25c, and also at Carl G. Fischer's. And if Carl saw that you finished the beef-steak, he sent out a plateful of something else. You had to eat all the food, otherwise the proprietor was unhappy. There was soup, salads, meat and fish courses, desserts and coffee and all on lots of dishes. I often wonder how we could consume so much food, but everything was so delicious and everybody was so happy.

Exposition to Show Fine China Display

A display of American made fine china in designs used by presidents, kings and ambassadors will be shown at the Lions Club industrial exposition at the state armory, April 3 to 7.

The display, property of Lenox, Inc., of Trenton, N. J., was obtained by George Schneider, local jeweler, who will exhibit it at his store, 290 Wall street, the week prior to the Lions Club show.

Included among the items are service plates identical to those made for President Woodrow Wilson in 1917, for President Franklin D. Roosevelt, for King Faisal of Saudi Arabia, as well as plates used in governors' mansions in several states, and in various embassies. There are also several hand-painted service plates made especially as museum pieces and valued at $100 each plate. One service as made for President Wilson is valued at $25; Roosevelt's set at $22 each service plate and the King of Saudi Arabia paid $40 for each plate.

Merchants Favor Appeal to Close On Good Friday

A Letter to the Editor signed by a Catholic priest and a Protestant clergyman has been receiving favorable comment and increasing support in local circles.

In the letter which appeared in The Freeman on March 9, the Rev. John D. Simmons of St. Joseph's Church and the Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool of the Old First Reformed Church called upon merchants and small shopkeepers to close their places of business from 12 noon to 3 p. m. on Good Friday, March 23, "in observance of the three hours agony in which the Son of God wrought the Salvation of mankind."

The week following the publication of the letter, The Wonderly Company noted in an advertisement that its store would be closed during those hours. About the same time, stickers appeared in the windows of the Brother and Sister Shop and George B. Styles and Sons, announcing that those stores would be closed for the three hours on Good Friday. Similar stickers, which were handed out by the two clergymen, appeared more recently in the window of Elston's Sport Shop.

Flanagans' clothiers and Ackerman and Herrick hardware store have announced similar intentions.

Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk announced today that city hall offices, including the Board of Public Works, will close at noon Friday and remain closed the rest of the afternoon.

Action taken by local stores has been individual and voluntary. No association meetings or group action has been taken. In many cases, stores which will remain open will allow employes who desire to attend church to leave for those hours.

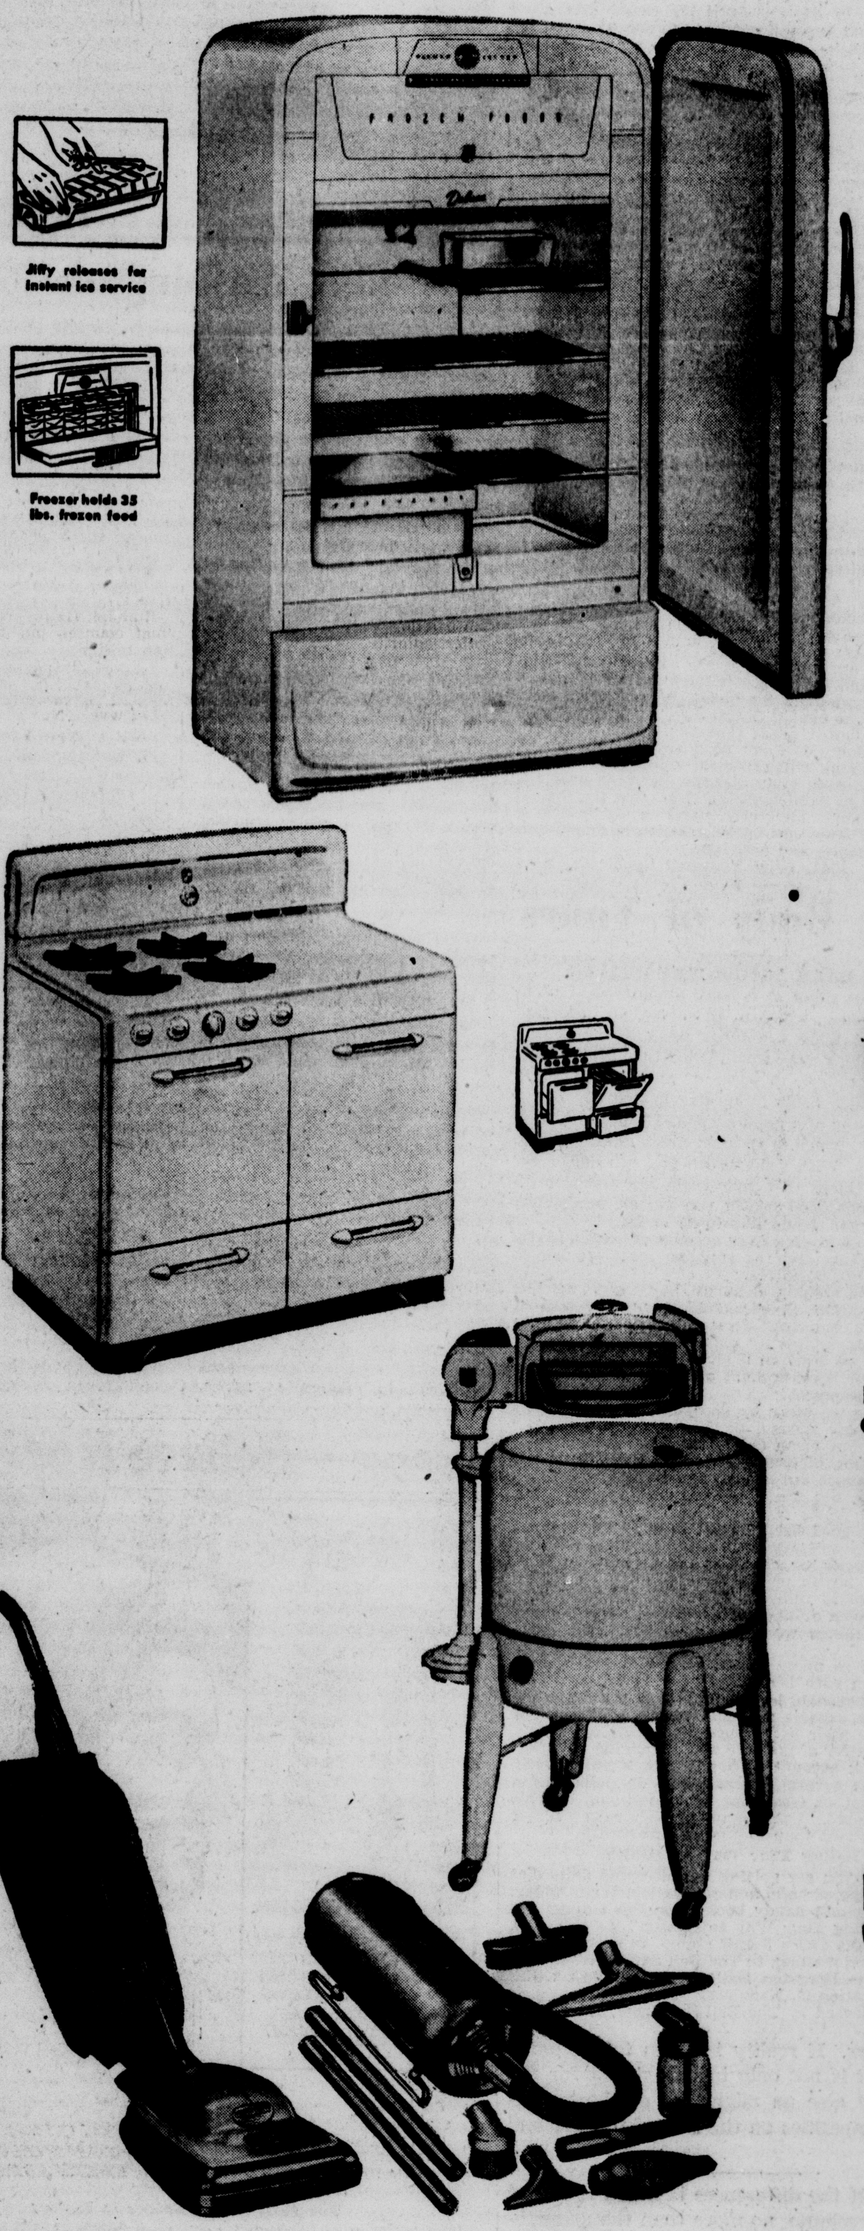

Similar campaigns for Good Friday afternoon observance have been taking place in other communities, and it is the belief of many clergymen that the practice will grow in future years.

The war, which is referred to, in mentioning the younger Mr. Welch, could be one of the French and Indian Wars, which included years of 1746-48 and 1755-1760. A house this old, if it already hasn't one, should have a plaque to mark where it had stood for so many years.

According to an item I saw elsewhere, the house seems to been built in 1846 by Jeremiah Smith and his wife, Maria. Smith operated a livery business at Fair street and had a barn on Wall street near this house. So perhaps the house mentioned by the Rev. John Miller, in 1695 was on one of the other four corners, or perhaps was on this particular corner and later torn down for the 1846 house, who knows more about it?

The recent article in this column on prices back in 1935 brought a flood of comment. One gentleman called me up, who used to conduct an ice-cream parlor back around 1910, and he says in those days, he served a "Gimlet" which had walnuts, chocolate syrup and topped with a cherry. He used the large No. 8 scoop of ice-cream. It sold for five cents. Well, I remember when my father had a old-fashioned marble wall fountain with big mirror, and he too sold five cent ice cream sundaes and sodas. In fact, I remember he put a cherry on top of all ice-cream cones. In those days, folks ate ice-cream in the summer but in the winter the ice-cream business slowed down to practically nothing. Remember the Nabisco sundaes, and I think the banana splits were 10c with a whole banana. Well, you could also get a full course dinner at Amrod's on the Strand for 25c, and also at Carl G. Fischer's. And if Carl saw that you finished the beef-steak, he sent out a plateful of something else. You had to eat all the food, otherwise the proprietor was unhappy. There was soup, salads, meat and fish courses, desserts and coffee and all on lots of dishes. I often wonder how we could consume so much food, but everything was so delicious and everybody was so happy.

Exposition to Show Fine China Display

A display of American made fine china in designs used by presidents, kings and ambassadors will be shown at the Lions Club industrial exposition at the state armory, April 3 to 7.

The display, property of Lenox, Inc., of Trenton, N. J., was obtained by George Schneider, local jeweler, who will exhibit it at his store, 290 Wall street, the week prior to the Lions Club show.

Included among the items are service plates identical to those made for President Woodrow Wilson in 1917, for President Franklin D. Roosevelt, for King Faisal of Saudi Arabia, as well as plates used in governors' mansions in several states, and in various embassies. There are also several hand-painted service plates made especially as museum pieces and valued at $100 each plate. One service as made for President Wilson is valued at $25; Roosevelt's set at $22 each service plate and the King of Saudi Arabia paid $40 for each plate.

Merchants Favor Appeal to Close On Good Friday

A Letter to the Editor signed by a Catholic priest and a Protestant clergyman has been receiving favorable comment and increasing support in local circles.

In the letter which appeared in The Freeman on March 9, the Rev. John D. Simmons of St. Joseph's Church and the Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool of the Old First Reformed Church called upon merchants and small shopkeepers to close their places of business from 12 noon to 3 p. m. on Good Friday, March 23, "in observance of the three hours agony in which the Son of God wrought the Salvation of mankind."

The week following the publication of the letter, The Wonderly Company noted in an advertisement that its store would be closed during those hours. About the same time, stickers appeared in the windows of the Brother and Sister Shop and George B. Styles and Sons, announcing that those stores would be closed for the three hours on Good Friday. Similar stickers, which were handed out by the two clergymen, appeared more recently in the window of Elston's Sport Shop.

Flanagans' clothiers and Ackerman and Herrick hardware store have announced similar intentions.

Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk announced today that city hall offices, including the Board of Public Works, will close at noon Friday and remain closed the rest of the afternoon.

Action taken by local stores has been individual and voluntary. No association meetings or group action has been taken. In many cases, stores which will remain open will allow employes who desire to attend church to leave for those hours.

Similar campaigns for Good Friday afternoon observance have been taking place in other communities, and it is the belief of many clergymen that the practice will grow in future years.

BRITAIN'S TRADE WITH REDS

When the United Nations belatedly dubbed Red China an aggressor in Korea, two courses were proposed in the final resolution. One called for continued efforts to attain a peaceful settlement, the other for study of possible sanctions against the Communists.

Enough time has passed to make it plain the Chinese do not intend to seek a settlement on any reasonable terms. Their price for peace is intolerable: they want us to get out and give them the fruits of aggression.

Dispatches from the fighting front indicate the Chinese aren't today in the same bargaining position they enjoyed last December, when talk of settlement was so much in the air. They know they won't get those terms. But being Communists, they aren't likely to ask for more sensible arrangements.

Therefore it seems fair now to raise the alternative issue of sanctions. U. S. representatives in the UN have been trying to get things stirring on the question, but thus far without much luck.

The chief obstacle has been, and will be, Great Britain. Clinging grimly to the tattered shreds of empire, the British want to hang onto the lucrative trade they've been doing with Red China. They decline to reconcile themselves to the blunt facts of 1951.

They like to assert that THEY are the practical ones, accepting the reality of Red Chinese rule. But just exactly how practical is this course?

First of all, though they have recognized Red China, the favor has not been reciprocated. The British have been kept unceremoniously cooling their heels for about a year.

Secondly, this practical acceptance of Red China, when translated into trade, spells materials for the Chinese that directly or indirectly support the Red war machine in Korea. And that machine is killing British soldiers as well as other UN forces.

Apparently this doesn't give the British government too much worry. They go on shipping to China. Presumably London newspapers carry accounts of this trade on one page, with reports of British Korean casualties conveniently tucked out of sight elsewhere.

The issue is moral, just as the naming of China an aggressor was basically a moral problem. And the British and any others who wish to do business as usual with a criminal aggressor nation are falling short of their obligations as members of a world community rooted in moral standards.

The United States should drive the issue to decision before the UN. If Britain and some others wish to stand and be counted as favoring normal trade relations with an aggressor, the whole world should know it. And the official UN record should show it.

BOYS ON THE LAW'S SIDE

The positive approach to the problem of juvenile delinquency is being tried out by the police force at West Paterson, N. J.

Impressed by the powers of observation shown by a boy witness to a crime, two police officers decided that he and others in his age group might be of real help to the police department, and at the same time might be kept too busy for mischief of their own. The outgrowth of this idea was the formation of the Junior Detectives, now numbering nearly ninety, who are equipped with badges and identification cards. They must submit a written report to the police concerning any lawbreaking which they witness, and must give special attention to the license numbers of cars engaged in any criminal activity. Vandalism and petty thievery have noticeably decreased since the inception of this project.

Few boys are basically bad. Many engage in criminal activities from sheer lack of guidance toward other activities. The thrill of evading the law helps to make life interesting for them. When they are given responsibility and constructive occupation, this thrill can be transferred to upholding the law and watching for its infringement. The urge to play detective is common among youngsters. If reality is given to the game the result is not only increased zest for the game but also an alignment of the youngster's sympathies on the side of the law and society.

Some of the differences between East and West are minute, no more than the arrangement of a few words or even letters. For instance, one believes in the veto and the other believes in the vote.

THE INVESTIGATIONS

The Fulbright Committee's term ends on April 30. By no possibility can its work be completed by that date. As a matter of fact, this committee has done so well in uncovering the evil practices in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation that it ought to be continued until that cesspool is cleaned out.

We are now informed that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has been given a monopoly for the purchase of tin for the entire United States. After what has already been disclosed concerning the RFC, it would not seem that this organization can safely be entrusted with such a responsibility.

This committee could be allowed to die, and although a few individuals would suffer a scant pillory, the pattern of corruption would not have been completed. As a matter of fact, every doubtful loan should be examined and exposed before the Fulbright Committee expires.

The ultimate of the Fulbright Committee's investigation would be the closing down of most of the governmental lending agencies. They were created to meet emergencies; they have been perpetuated beyond the needs of the country and therefore they have become corrupted.

It would probably serve the country well if the Fulbright Committee would seek the judgment of Jesse Jones in the course of its investigations. It would undoubtedly discover from his experience that when a government agency outlives its usefulness it ought to be permitted to die. Jesse Jones has advocated the abolition of the RFC.

The Fulbright Committee might also consult the investigators of the Hoover Commission who studied the lending agencies of the government and were not favorably impressed by the arguments for their continued existence.

It needs to be recognized now that the work of this committee has only started; to permit its investigations to die on April 30 would give the crooks not yet exposed safety to pursue their raids on the taxpayers' money. Pressure should be put on Congress to keep the Fulbright Committee alive.

I watched the Kefauver Committee on television for several hours. It was a wonderful experience. I do not blame any crook if he refuses to appear before the committee with television as a witness. The devil is exposed by appearance, word, gesture.

Joe Adonis, for instance, looked and acted like a movie gangster. He was an imitation George Raft. He was brazen. He was contemptuous. When he said that he would answer the questions asked when he had his day in court, he was only maintaining an American tradition which could have won sympathy. However, the way he said it, the way he looked, the cheapness of the tough guy, made it sound as though he meant that he would only answer the questions if he came into a court where he owned the judge body and soul.

Maybe the mob ought to hire a movie man to teach them how to act in front of television, for no doubt this instrument exposes them like an X-ray. It is different from radio because it provides a complete personality. I watched Adonis consult his lawyer on television and I am sure that he made a very bad impression on me.

The Kefauver Committee seems to be going through with its job with a welcome degree of thoroughnss. We are getting an insight into the character and personalities of our new masters, who have been seizing the political machinery of the country first on the municipal level. In some places, they have already moved to the state level. How long could it be before they used the huge funds made out of dope, policy and prostitution to corrupt the machinery of both parties on the national level? There is the menace of this gang.

This makes the Kefauver Committee's work of the utmost importance. It, too, should not be permitted to end its work. It ought to be continued until it has smashed the Mafia and sent its leaders to prison. The United States does not need a Mafia any more than it needs Communists.

This country does not need any organization of private persons who exercise control, in private and secrecy, over other citizens and even over the government of municipalities, states and the federal administration. All secret agencies are evil in a free society. They are an importation of deleterious European habits and activities.

OUR BANK ACCOUNT OF HEALTH

When we think of a bank account most of us think of money, which is, of course, an important matter, but there are other bank accounts that make life much more worth living than does money. I refer, of course, to peace of mind, the serenity of faith which holds us up day in and day out.

In thinking of a bank account I think of health, good health, which is an asset much more valuable than money. With good health you can do, or try to do, the things that your brain and ambition direct. Without good health you cannot accomplish the things you would like to do in life.

We are all given a bank account of health, partly by our parents and the common sense we use in taking care of ourselves.

Our bank account of health, however, is not like a savings account which increases as the years pass. It is like a "current" account which will not increase in size unless we make a deposit from time to time. If we draw on it all the time and make no deposits, our bank account of heath will grow less and even disappear.

What do we mean by deposits and withdrawals from our bank account of health? Deposits in our health account mean daily watchful common sense care (but not, of course, living by the clock); not eating too much but enough, not sleeping too much but enough, not working too hard physically but enough. A yearly examination by physician and dentist is a good-sized deposit in our bank account of health.

Withdrawals or checking out from your bank account of health means the foolish, the careless, the thoughtless things that rob us of that health we were given or have attained and not observing the three things we deposited—sleep, food, exercise.

Because so many middle-aged men and women are stricken with heart and brain strokes an outstanding physician, in his anxiety to prevent these occurrences, advises men and women past fifty not to lift even their little finger unnecessarily.

As a matter of fact, we will be making a deposit in our bank account of health, not a withdrawal, if we walk several blocks daily. It maintains a good circulation. Gladstone, who lived well into his eighties, stated, "Exercise of the body pays a larger rate of interest than any other investment."

A New Japanese Print---Ready for Framing

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington — Capitol police were alerted the other day to expect a mob of imported Communist agitators on Capitol Hill. But the police weren't the only ones who prepared for them. The Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, Senate chaplain, also got ready for the Communists—by writing a special prayer for their benefit.

The chaplain was all set to deliver the prayer on the Senate floor, as an answer to the phony peace petitions that the Communists intended to circulate. But when it came time for the invocation, the Communists still hadn't arrived. So Reverend Harris tossed aside his special prayer and delivered another invocation.

However, here is the heart of the prayer the chaplain wrote but never delivered: "Open the eyes of the duped who would follow false leaders who cry peace, peace where there is no peace; who use the cry of peace as a green light for aggression . . . Help us not to be lured by deceptive promises of peace that are but the facade of force. Amen."

Lobbyist Adviser

It is almost unbelievable, but Mobilizer Charles Wilson is getting his advice on minerals from a lobbyist for the foreign mining interests.

Wilson's top mining consultant is Fred Searls, Jr., who used to lobby on Capitol Hill against domestic mining programs but now does his lobbying from the inside. In other words, he has been hired to advise what the government's policy should be on securing minerals for defense. Yet, at the same time, he is president of Newmont Mining Company which has a rich stake in South African mines. This is another shocking example of how private interests have infiltrated into the defense agencies to grind their own axes.

For instance, here is the type of advice that Searls has been whispering into Wilson's ear:

1. Searls is against government subsidies to domestic mines, though his own foreign mining interests have received ECA aid.

2. He is opposed to an expansion and exploration program for domestic mining, but prefers to have the government buy from foreign sources, such as his South African mines.

3. He favors a reduction in the appropriations for stockpiling, though this country is still dangerously short of strategic materials.

Searls admitted these views behind closed doors to the Senate Interior Committee, which called him on the carpet after discovering he was Wilson's adviser on mining. Here are highlights from his startling but frank, secret testimony.

"Any type of subsidy for mineral development is objectionable. It tends to socialize the industry," Searls bluntly told the committee.

O'Mahoney Disagrees

Chairman Joe O'Mahoney, Wyoming Democrat, snorted his disagreement and thumbed through an old copy of Fortune magazine. He found an article about South African mines, and read how they received "low taxes and liberal depreciation allowances from the government of South Africa."

"Do you think that's a subsidy?" demanded O'Mahoney.

"But that doesn't do us any good because we also have to pay American taxes," shrugged Searls, whose Tsuneb mine in South Africa is one of the world's 10 leading producers.

"Unfortunately, a large number of American citizens are paying taxes now," O'Mahoney retorted icily. "You make a distinction between government subsidies to your mine, but you want the government of the United States to deny those subsidies to your competitors in the United States. This raises the question of what kind of advice you are going to give Mr. Wilson on expanding our national production."

"Did you get ECA help to open those (South African) mines?" broke in Sen. Clinton Anderson, New Mexico Democrat.

"Yes," admitted Searls.

"And when those were opened, several smaller mines in this country were forced to close, throwing many workers out of jobs," snapped Anderson.

He recalled that American miners had testified in May, 1950, that they had been forced to shut down their mines, stopping production and throwing 2,000 men out of work.

"You feel you are in a position to give Mr. Wilson impartial advice? demanded Anderson. "If you can persuade him not to give help to open and expand mines in the United States, then we must look to sources outside of the United States for raw materials."

"Mines come, die off, and mines go. The best way to help mines here is to leave them alone," suggested Searls.

"I'm trying to find out if your interests in foreign mines are so great that you'll be prejudiced in your advice to Mr. Wilson," the New Mexico senator persisted. "Our miners feel your opposition (to expanding domestic production) was based on your foreign interests."

Patriotic Speech

"I feel the urgency of the war program requires us to get all the metals into this country as fast as possible. Where they come from is of secondary importance," Searls replied in a patriotic little speech.

But under questioning, he admitted sheepishly that his own South African mines sold most of their production to Europe.

"Where do you ship copper?" asked Sen. Herbert Lehman, New York Democrat.

"Belgium, France, Italy and England," reported Searls.

"Then the United States doesn't receive any benefits of the ECA help your company has received," observed Lehman.

"That's correct," confessed the man who advises Wilson on minerals.

"I've been very concerned about scarcity of copper in this country. Because there is that scarcity, why do you continue to deliver your copper to foreign countries?" demanded the New York senator.

"The market abroad is higher than in the United States," explained Searls, not sounding quite so patriotic.

The most angry outburst came from Sen. Guy Gordon, Oregon Republican, when Searls argued that it wasn't "mandatory" under the defense production act to pay mining subsidies.

"That's why you're here today," Cordon bristled. "Were it not for that, it wouldn't make a damned bit of difference how you advised Mr. Wilson."

Searls also admitted that his company had urged reducing the appropriations for stockpiling because of the need for "economizing." He indicated that he considered the stockpiling program just another form of subsidy for the domestic mines.

At the end of the hearing, O'Mahoney asked the final question: "Yesterday, the National Production Authority appeared before us and proposed a $10,000,000 expansion and exploration program for our domestic mining. What is your view in regard to that?" he asked.

"I would prefer that it not be done," replied Searls. "But I doubt if I would be consulted on it."

"I should hope you wouldn't!" snorted O'Mahoney.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, March 20 — The question which recently upset markets and caused many a flurry of excitement in the last few days is this: "Is there a chance of an end soon to the war in Korea.

Rumors of a peace settlement, even in the midst of big wars, usually have some basis which starts them going. When General Ridgway, our field commander in Korea, said the other day that our forces could consider that they had won a big victory upon reaching the 38th Parallel again, stock-market observers jumped to the conclusion that this was about as far as our armies planned to go. But that wasn't really what General Ridgway meant. He was merely clearing the air for a settlement, if the Communists were really intent on making one. A somewhat similar hint came from General MacArthur, who said the best we could hope for in Korea was a stalemate, if the United Nations forces were not going to be permitted to bomb the Chinese bases of supply north of the Manchurian border.

All this adds up to one thing—our military commanders in Korea are restless and are asking for some definition of purpose, some plan that will either let the U.N. forces liberate all of Korea by bombing the Red Chinese bases and occupying more and more North Korean territory, or else some plan that will permit the U.N. to negotiate a settlement by diplomacy.

Neither our commanders nor our high government officials intend to waste the fruits of victory by letting the Communists keep their control of North Korea. What they evidently do mean is that if the Chinese Communists have had enough—and they are taking frightful losses every day—maybe a way can be found to let them wiggle out with a negotiated settlement. But such a settlement undoubtedly would require that a plan for evacuation of all Korea by foreign troops would be agreed upon and that some guarantees or assurances would be given by the Communists that Korea will not be attacked again.

While the Chinese Communists may have unlimited manpower, they do not have unlimited supplies of arms or equipment. The Korean war has drained Chinese resources and already has prevented them from sending reinforcements to Indo-China and from starting trouble in Formosa. They also have their hands full now with more and more internal trouble.

It may be that the Chinese Communist leaders will try just one more offensive. The weather in Korea will be getting bad soon—bad for our fliers and for the movement of motor vehicles as the mud and rain slow down everything. Maybe after this last offensive the Red Chinese will be ready for a settlement. The climax in Korea certainly will come within a few months, perhaps weeks, and, just as the Communists suddenly gave up their blockade of Berlin, they may just as suddenly give up their war in Korea. For it is we who are winning the war against aggression by preventing the aggressor from attaining his objective.

There may be a connection between the rumors of peace in Korea and the recent drop in prices. The price readjustment, however, has been in the cards for some time. Tin and rubber prices went skyrocketing when the armament program was announced but, now that the government has stepped in and slowed down its stockpiling, those two commodity prices started downward. In fact, commodity prices generally are leveling off. This is to be noted in grain prices, too. For the last two weeks in February, the retail food index, issued by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, has shown a decline and food prices at wholesale continued a decline after that.

The price levels seem to suggest that maybe the peak in the Korean boom has been reached. What really is happening is that the old law of "supply and demand" is beginning to operate in certain categories of economic action. Some of those who built unusually large inventories of goods are discovering that demand is not as great as they thought, and that some of the hoarded stuff had better be moved, even if it requires lower prices.

The controversy over interest rates — whether the government should hold the bond market at a pegged price or give it a chance to find its own level—is also having some effect on the general situation. There is a tesing going on. Bank credit is a target of attack, and an effort is being made to tighten it up, which means that some concerns with heavy inventories may be compelled to get rid of them in order to pay back their loans.

On top of this, a steady reconversion process is going on in industry and there may be some unemployment while the factories change over from civilian goods to the making of military goods. This is a deflationary aspect. It may be expected, however, that this situation will be only temporary, because the build-up of armament is to be larger instead of smaller during the next several months. The peak of our military production is not to come until a year or two from now.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

There is great indignation over the receipt by Mrs. Meri Young, a secretary employed in the White House, of an unusual mink coat, of a shade described as natural royal pastel, which appears to have come to her in a sort of double-play. According to testimony taken by the Fulbright Committee, this coat was paid for by Joseph H. Rosenbaum, a lawyer, who is alleged to have boasted that he had two members of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in his hip pocket, but given to Mrs. Young by her husband. Her husband is an assistant to William H. Boyle, Jr., the chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Mr. Rosenbaum's clients before the R.F.C. included the Central Iron and Steel Company, which got a loan of $6,300,000. A director of the R.F.C. has said that Mrs. Young's husband told him that the Democratic National Committee took an interest in this loan. President Truman said he knew of no evidence of illegal conduct in this sequence of events. Then, whether as a reward for being strictly on the level or as a matter of no moral significance whatever, Mrs. Young was given a vacation of two weeks at public expense from her duties at the White House.

There are captious hypocrites and fastidious moralists who will take an evil view of all this and suggest that Mrs. Young should be fired from the White House. You may disregard them. There is the highest precedent for Mrs. Young's course, established by a dignitary no less distinguished for her scrupulous honesty, propriety, morality and ethical standards than the first lady of the universe, Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, widow of him who enjoys a distinction unique among mankind in that both his birthday and the day of his death are celebrated by zealots of antipodean sentiments.

In March, 1945, Mrs. Roosevelt received as a gift a mink coat which was publicly valued at $8,000 by Louis Ritter, a New York furrier, who made the presentation. Mrs. Young's coat is reported to have cost Mr. Rosenbaum $9,450, but the difference of

When the United Nations belatedly dubbed Red China an aggressor in Korea, two courses were proposed in the final resolution. One called for continued efforts to attain a peaceful settlement, the other for study of possible sanctions against the Communists.

Enough time has passed to make it plain the Chinese do not intend to seek a settlement on any reasonable terms. Their price for peace is intolerable: they want us to get out and give them the fruits of aggression.

Dispatches from the fighting front indicate the Chinese aren't today in the same bargaining position they enjoyed last December, when talk of settlement was so much in the air. They know they won't get those terms. But being Communists, they aren't likely to ask for more sensible arrangements.

Therefore it seems fair now to raise the alternative issue of sanctions. U. S. representatives in the UN have been trying to get things stirring on the question, but thus far without much luck.

The chief obstacle has been, and will be, Great Britain. Clinging grimly to the tattered shreds of empire, the British want to hang onto the lucrative trade they've been doing with Red China. They decline to reconcile themselves to the blunt facts of 1951.

They like to assert that THEY are the practical ones, accepting the reality of Red Chinese rule. But just exactly how practical is this course?

First of all, though they have recognized Red China, the favor has not been reciprocated. The British have been kept unceremoniously cooling their heels for about a year.

Secondly, this practical acceptance of Red China, when translated into trade, spells materials for the Chinese that directly or indirectly support the Red war machine in Korea. And that machine is killing British soldiers as well as other UN forces.

Apparently this doesn't give the British government too much worry. They go on shipping to China. Presumably London newspapers carry accounts of this trade on one page, with reports of British Korean casualties conveniently tucked out of sight elsewhere.

The issue is moral, just as the naming of China an aggressor was basically a moral problem. And the British and any others who wish to do business as usual with a criminal aggressor nation are falling short of their obligations as members of a world community rooted in moral standards.

The United States should drive the issue to decision before the UN. If Britain and some others wish to stand and be counted as favoring normal trade relations with an aggressor, the whole world should know it. And the official UN record should show it.

BOYS ON THE LAW'S SIDE

The positive approach to the problem of juvenile delinquency is being tried out by the police force at West Paterson, N. J.

Impressed by the powers of observation shown by a boy witness to a crime, two police officers decided that he and others in his age group might be of real help to the police department, and at the same time might be kept too busy for mischief of their own. The outgrowth of this idea was the formation of the Junior Detectives, now numbering nearly ninety, who are equipped with badges and identification cards. They must submit a written report to the police concerning any lawbreaking which they witness, and must give special attention to the license numbers of cars engaged in any criminal activity. Vandalism and petty thievery have noticeably decreased since the inception of this project.

Few boys are basically bad. Many engage in criminal activities from sheer lack of guidance toward other activities. The thrill of evading the law helps to make life interesting for them. When they are given responsibility and constructive occupation, this thrill can be transferred to upholding the law and watching for its infringement. The urge to play detective is common among youngsters. If reality is given to the game the result is not only increased zest for the game but also an alignment of the youngster's sympathies on the side of the law and society.

Some of the differences between East and West are minute, no more than the arrangement of a few words or even letters. For instance, one believes in the veto and the other believes in the vote.

THE INVESTIGATIONS

The Fulbright Committee's term ends on April 30. By no possibility can its work be completed by that date. As a matter of fact, this committee has done so well in uncovering the evil practices in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation that it ought to be continued until that cesspool is cleaned out.

We are now informed that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has been given a monopoly for the purchase of tin for the entire United States. After what has already been disclosed concerning the RFC, it would not seem that this organization can safely be entrusted with such a responsibility.

This committee could be allowed to die, and although a few individuals would suffer a scant pillory, the pattern of corruption would not have been completed. As a matter of fact, every doubtful loan should be examined and exposed before the Fulbright Committee expires.

The ultimate of the Fulbright Committee's investigation would be the closing down of most of the governmental lending agencies. They were created to meet emergencies; they have been perpetuated beyond the needs of the country and therefore they have become corrupted.

It would probably serve the country well if the Fulbright Committee would seek the judgment of Jesse Jones in the course of its investigations. It would undoubtedly discover from his experience that when a government agency outlives its usefulness it ought to be permitted to die. Jesse Jones has advocated the abolition of the RFC.

The Fulbright Committee might also consult the investigators of the Hoover Commission who studied the lending agencies of the government and were not favorably impressed by the arguments for their continued existence.

It needs to be recognized now that the work of this committee has only started; to permit its investigations to die on April 30 would give the crooks not yet exposed safety to pursue their raids on the taxpayers' money. Pressure should be put on Congress to keep the Fulbright Committee alive.

I watched the Kefauver Committee on television for several hours. It was a wonderful experience. I do not blame any crook if he refuses to appear before the committee with television as a witness. The devil is exposed by appearance, word, gesture.

Joe Adonis, for instance, looked and acted like a movie gangster. He was an imitation George Raft. He was brazen. He was contemptuous. When he said that he would answer the questions asked when he had his day in court, he was only maintaining an American tradition which could have won sympathy. However, the way he said it, the way he looked, the cheapness of the tough guy, made it sound as though he meant that he would only answer the questions if he came into a court where he owned the judge body and soul.

Maybe the mob ought to hire a movie man to teach them how to act in front of television, for no doubt this instrument exposes them like an X-ray. It is different from radio because it provides a complete personality. I watched Adonis consult his lawyer on television and I am sure that he made a very bad impression on me.

The Kefauver Committee seems to be going through with its job with a welcome degree of thoroughness. We are getting an insight into the character and personalities of our new masters, who have been seizing the political machinery of the country first on the municipal level. In some places, they have already moved to the state level. How long could it be before they used the huge funds made out of dope, policy and prostitution to corrupt the machinery of both parties on the national level? There is the menace of this gang.

This makes the Kefauver Committee's work of the utmost importance. It, too, should not be permitted to end its work. It ought to be continued until it has smashed the Mafia and sent its leaders to prison. The United States does not need a Mafia any more than it needs Communists.

This country does not need any organization of private persons who exercise control, in private and secrecy, over other citizens and even over the government of municipalities, states and the federal administration. All secret agencies are evil in a free society. They are an importation of deleterious European habits and activities.

OUR BANK ACCOUNT OF HEALTH

When we think of a bank account most of us think of money, which is, of course, an important matter, but there are other bank accounts that make life much more worth living than does money. I refer, of course, to peace of mind, the serenity of faith which holds us up day in and day out.

In thinking of a bank account I think of health, good health, which is an asset much more valuable than money. With good health you can do, or try to do, the things that your brain and ambition direct. Without good health you cannot accomplish the things you would like to do in life.

We are all given a bank account of health, partly by our parents and the common sense we use in taking care of ourselves.

Our bank account of health, however, is not like a savings account which increases as the years pass. It is like a "current" account which will not increase in size unless we make a deposit from time to time. If we draw on it all the time and make no deposits, our bank account of heath will grow less and even disappear.

What do we mean by deposits and withdrawals from our bank account of health? Deposits in our health account mean daily watchful common sense care (but not, of course, living by the clock); not eating too much but enough, not sleeping too much but enough, not working too hard physically but enough. A yearly examination by physician and dentist is a good-sized deposit in our bank account of health.

Withdrawals or checking out from your bank account of health means the foolish, the careless, the thoughtless things that rob us of that health we were given or have attained and not observing the three things we deposited—sleep, food, exercise.

Because so many middle-aged men and women are stricken with heart and brain strokes an outstanding physician, in his anxiety to prevent these occurrences, advises men and women past fifty not to lift even their little finger unnecessarily.

As a matter of fact, we will be making a deposit in our bank account of health, not a withdrawal, if we walk several blocks daily. It maintains a good circulation. Gladstone, who lived well into his eighties, stated, "Exercise of the body pays a larger rate of interest than any other investment."

A New Japanese Print---Ready for Framing

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington — Capitol police were alerted the other day to expect a mob of imported Communist agitators on Capitol Hill. But the police weren't the only ones who prepared for them. The Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, Senate chaplain, also got ready for the Communists—by writing a special prayer for their benefit.

The chaplain was all set to deliver the prayer on the Senate floor, as an answer to the phony peace petitions that the Communists intended to circulate. But when it came time for the invocation, the Communists still hadn't arrived. So Reverend Harris tossed aside his special prayer and delivered another invocation.

However, here is the heart of the prayer the chaplain wrote but never delivered: "Open the eyes of the duped who would follow false leaders who cry peace, peace where there is no peace; who use the cry of peace as a green light for aggression . . . Help us not to be lured by deceptive promises of peace that are but the facade of force. Amen."

Lobbyist Adviser

It is almost unbelievable, but Mobilizer Charles Wilson is getting his advice on minerals from a lobbyist for the foreign mining interests.

Wilson's top mining consultant is Fred Searls, Jr., who used to lobby on Capitol Hill against domestic mining programs but now does his lobbying from the inside. In other words, he has been hired to advise what the government's policy should be on securing minerals for defense. Yet, at the same time, he is president of Newmont Mining Company which has a rich stake in South African mines. This is another shocking example of how private interests have infiltrated into the defense agencies to grind their own axes.

For instance, here is the type of advice that Searls has been whispering into Wilson's ear:

1. Searls is against government subsidies to domestic mines, though his own foreign mining interests have received ECA aid.

2. He is opposed to an expansion and exploration program for domestic mining, but prefers to have the government buy from foreign sources, such as his South African mines.

3. He favors a reduction in the appropriations for stockpiling, though this country is still dangerously short of strategic materials.

Searls admitted these views behind closed doors to the Senate Interior Committee, which called him on the carpet after discovering he was Wilson's adviser on mining. Here are highlights from his startling but frank, secret testimony.

"Any type of subsidy for mineral development is objectionable. It tends to socialize the industry," Searls bluntly told the committee.

O'Mahoney Disagrees

Chairman Joe O'Mahoney, Wyoming Democrat, snorted his disagreement and thumbed through an old copy of Fortune magazine. He found an article about South African mines, and read how they received "low taxes and liberal depreciation allowances from the government of South Africa."

"Do you think that's a subsidy?" demanded O'Mahoney.

"But that doesn't do us any good because we also have to pay American taxes," shrugged Searls, whose Tsuneb mine in South Africa is one of the world's 10 leading producers.

"Unfortunately, a large number of American citizens are paying taxes now," O'Mahoney retorted icily. "You make a distinction between government subsidies to your mine, but you want the government of the United States to deny those subsidies to your competitors in the United States. This raises the question of what kind of advice you are going to give Mr. Wilson on expanding our national production."

"Did you get ECA help to open those (South African) mines?" broke in Sen. Clinton Anderson, New Mexico Democrat.

"Yes," admitted Searls.

"And when those were opened, several smaller mines in this country were forced to close, throwing many workers out of jobs," snapped Anderson.

He recalled that American miners had testified in May, 1950, that they had been forced to shut down their mines, stopping production and throwing 2,000 men out of work.

"You feel you are in a position to give Mr. Wilson impartial advice? demanded Anderson. "If you can persuade him not to give help to open and expand mines in the United States, then we must look to sources outside of the United States for raw materials."

"Mines come, die off, and mines go. The best way to help mines here is to leave them alone," suggested Searls.

"I'm trying to find out if your interests in foreign mines are so great that you'll be prejudiced in your advice to Mr. Wilson," the New Mexico senator persisted. "Our miners feel your opposition (to expanding domestic production) was based on your foreign interests."

Patriotic Speech

"I feel the urgency of the war program requires us to get all the metals into this country as fast as possible. Where they come from is of secondary importance," Searls replied in a patriotic little speech.

But under questioning, he admitted sheepishly that his own South African mines sold most of their production to Europe.

"Where do you ship copper?" asked Sen. Herbert Lehman, New York Democrat.

"Belgium, France, Italy and England," reported Searls.

"Then the United States doesn't receive any benefits of the ECA help your company has received," observed Lehman.

"That's correct," confessed the man who advises Wilson on minerals.

"I've been very concerned about scarcity of copper in this country. Because there is that scarcity, why do you continue to deliver your copper to foreign countries?" demanded the New York senator.

"The market abroad is higher than in the United States," explained Searls, not sounding quite so patriotic.

The most angry outburst came from Sen. Guy Gordon, Oregon Republican, when Searls argued that it wasn't "mandatory" under the defense production act to pay mining subsidies.

"That's why you're here today," Cordon bristled. "Were it not for that, it wouldn't make a damned bit of difference how you advised Mr. Wilson."

Searls also admitted that his company had urged reducing the appropriations for stockpiling because of the need for "economizing." He indicated that he considered the stockpiling program just another form of subsidy for the domestic mines.

At the end of the hearing, O'Mahoney asked the final question: "Yesterday, the National Production Authority appeared before us and proposed a $10,000,000 expansion and exploration program for our domestic mining. What is your view in regard to that?" he asked.

"I would prefer that it not be done," replied Searls. "But I doubt if I would be consulted on it."

"I should hope you wouldn't!" snorted O'Mahoney.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, March 20 — The question which recently upset markets and caused many a flurry of excitement in the last few days is this: "Is there a chance of an end soon to the war in Korea.

Rumors of a peace settlement, even in the midst of big wars, usually have some basis which starts them going. When General Ridgway, our field commander in Korea, said the other day that our forces could consider that they had won a big victory upon reaching the 38th Parallel again, stock-market observers jumped to the conclusion that this was about as far as our armies planned to go. But that wasn't really what General Ridgway meant. He was merely clearing the air for a settlement, if the Communists were really intent on making one. A somewhat similar hint came from General MacArthur, who said the best we could hope for in Korea was a stalemate, if the United Nations forces were not going to be permitted to bomb the Chinese bases of supply north of the Manchurian border.

All this adds up to one thing—our military commanders in Korea are restless and are asking for some definition of purpose, some plan that will either let the U.N. forces liberate all of Korea by bombing the Red Chinese bases and occupying more and more North Korean territory, or else some plan that will permit the U.N. to negotiate a settlement by diplomacy.

Neither our commanders nor our high government officials intend to waste the fruits of victory by letting the Communists keep their control of North Korea. What they evidently do mean is that if the Chinese Communists have had enough—and they are taking frightful losses every day—maybe a way can be found to let them wiggle out with a negotiated settlement. But such a settlement undoubtedly would require that a plan for evacuation of all Korea by foreign troops would be agreed upon and that some guarantees or assurances would be given by the Communists that Korea will not be attacked again.

While the Chinese Communists may have unlimited manpower, they do not have unlimited supplies of arms or equipment. The Korean war has drained Chinese resources and already has prevented them from sending reinforcements to Indo-China and from starting trouble in Formosa. They also have their hands full now with more and more internal trouble.

It may be that the Chinese Communist leaders will try just one more offensive. The weather in Korea will be getting bad soon—bad for our fliers and for the movement of motor vehicles as the mud and rain slow down everything. Maybe after this last offensive the Red Chinese will be ready for a settlement. The climax in Korea certainly will come within a few months, perhaps weeks, and, just as the Communists suddenly gave up their blockade of Berlin, they may just as suddenly give up their war in Korea. For it is we who are winning the war against aggression by preventing the aggressor from attaining his objective.

There may be a connection between the rumors of peace in Korea and the recent drop in prices. The price readjustment, however, has been in the cards for some time. Tin and rubber prices went skyrocketing when the armament program was announced but, now that the government has stepped in and slowed down its stockpiling, those two commodity prices started downward. In fact, commodity prices generally are leveling off. This is to be noted in grain prices, too. For the last two weeks in February, the retail food index, issued by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, has shown a decline and food prices at wholesale continued a decline after that.

The price levels seem to suggest that maybe the peak in the Korean boom has been reached. What really is happening is that the old law of "supply and demand" is beginning to operate in certain categories of economic action. Some of those who built unusually large inventories of goods are discovering that demand is not as great as they thought, and that some of the hoarded stuff had better be moved, even if it requires lower prices.

The controversy over interest rates — whether the government should hold the bond market at a pegged price or give it a chance to find its own level—is also having some effect on the general situation. There is a testing going on. Bank credit is a target of attack, and an effort is being made to tighten it up, which means that some concerns with heavy inventories may be compelled to get rid of them in order to pay back their loans.

On top of this, a steady reconversion process is going on in industry and there may be some unemployment while the factories change over from civilian goods to the making of military goods. This is a deflationary aspect. It may be expected, however, that this situation will be only temporary, because the build-up of armament is to be larger instead of smaller during the next several months. The peak of our military production is not to come until a year or two from now.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

There is great indignation over the receipt by Mrs. Merl Young, a secretary employed in the White House, of an unusual mink coat, of a shade described as natural royal pastel, which appears to have come to her in a sort of double-play. According to testimony taken by the Fulbright Committee, this coat was paid for by Joseph H. Rosenbaum, a lawyer, who is alleged to have boasted that he had two members of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in his hip pocket, but given to Mrs. Young by her husband. Her husband is an assistant to William H. Boyle, Jr., the chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Mr. Rosenbaum's clients before the R.F.C. included the Central Iron and Steel Company, which got a loan of $6,300,000. A director of the R.F.C. has said that Mrs. Young's husband told him that the Democratic National Committee took an interest in this loan. President Truman said he knew of no evidence of illegal conduct in this sequence of events. Then, whether as a reward for being strictly on the level or as a matter of no moral significance whatever, Mrs. Young was given a vacation of two weeks at public expense from her duties at the White House.

There are captious hypocrites and fastidious moralists who will take an evil view of all this and suggest that Mrs. Young should be fired from the White House. You may disregard them. There is the highest precedent for Mrs. Young's course, established by a dignitary no less distinguished for her scrupulous honesty, propriety, morality and ethical standards than the first lady of the universe, Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, widow of him who enjoys a distinction unique among mankind in that both his birthday and the day of his death are celebrated by zealots of antipodean sentiments.

In March, 1945, Mrs. Roosevelt received as a gift a mink coat which was publicly valued at $8,000 by Louis Ritter, a New York furrier, who made the presentation. Mrs. Young's coat is reported to have cost Mr. Rosenbaum $9,450, but the difference of

When they are given responsibility and constructive occupation, this thrill can be transferred to upholding the law and watching for its infringement. The urge to play detective is common among youngsters. If reality is given to the game the result is not only increased zest for the game but also an alignment of the youngster's sympathies on the side of the law and society.

Some of the differences between East and West are minute, no more than the arrangement of a few words or even letters. For instance, one believes in the veto and the other believes in the vote.

THE INVESTIGATIONS

The Fulbright Committee's term ends on April 30. By no possibility can its work be completed by that date. As a matter of fact, this committee has done so well in uncovering the evil practices in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation that it ought to be continued until that cesspool is cleaned out.

We are now informed that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has been given a monopoly for the purchase of tin for the entire United States. After what has already been disclosed concerning the RFC, it would not seem that this organization can safely be entrusted with such a responsibility.

This committee could be allowed to die, and although a few individuals would suffer a scant pillory, the pattern of corruption would not have been completed. As a matter of fact, every doubtful loan should be examined and exposed before the Fulbright Committee expires.

The ultimate of the Fulbright Committee's investigation would be the closing down of most of the governmental lending agencies. They were created to meet emergencies; they have been perpetuated beyond the needs of the country and therefore they have become corrupted.

It would probably serve the country well if the Fulbright Committee would seek the judgment of Jesse Jones in the course of its investigations. It would undoubtedly discover from his experience that when a government agency outlives its usefulness it ought to be permitted to die. Jesse Jones has advocated the abolition of the RFC.

The Fulbright Committee might also consult the investigators of the Hoover Commission who studied the lending agencies of the government and were not favorably impressed by the arguments for their continued existence.

It needs to be recognized now that the work of this committee has only started; to permit its investigations to die on April 30 would give the crooks not yet exposed safety to pursue their raids on the taxpayers' money. Pressure should be put on Congress to keep the Fulbright Committee alive.

I watched the Kefauver Committee on television for several hours. It was a wonderful experience. I do not blame any crook if he refuses to appear before the committee with television as a witness. The devil is exposed by appearance, word, gesture.

Joe Adonis, for instance, looked and acted like a movie gangster. He was an imitation George Raft. He was brazen. He was contemptuous. When he said that he would answer the questions asked when he had his day in court, he was only maintaining an American tradition which could have won sympathy. However, the way he said it, the way he looked, the cheapness of the tough guy, made it sound as though he meant that he would only answer the questions if he came into a court where he owned the judge body and soul.

Maybe the mob ought to hire a movie man to teach them how to act in front of television, for no doubt this instrument exposes them like an X-ray. It is different from radio because it provides a complete personality. I watched Adonis consult his lawyer on television and I am sure that he made a very bad impression on me.

The Kefauver Committee seems to be going through with its job with a welcome degree of thoroughnss. We are getting an insight into the character and personalities of our new masters, who have been seizing the political machinery of the country first on the municipal level. In some places, they have already moved to the state level. How long could it be before they used the huge funds made out of dope, policy and prostitution to corrupt the machinery of both parties on the national level? There is the menace of this gang.

This makes the Kefauver Committee's work of the utmost importance. It, too, should not be permitted to end its work. It ought to be continued until it has smashed the Mafia and sent its leaders to prison. The United States does not need a Mafia any more than it needs Communists.

This country does not need any organization of private persons who exercise control, in private and secrecy, over other citizens and even over the government of municipalities, states and the federal administration. All secret agencies are evil in a free society. They are an importation of deleterious European habits and activities.

That Body of Yours

OUR BANK ACCOUNT OF HEALTH

When we think of a bank account most of us think of money, which is, of course, an important matter, but there are other bank accounts that make life much more worth living than does money. I refer, of course, to peace of mind, the serenity of faith which holds us up day in and day out.

In thinking of a bank account I think of health, good health, which is an asset much more valuable than money. With good health you can do, or try to do, the things that your brain and ambition direct. Without good health you cannot accomplish the things you would like to do in life.

We are all given a bank account of health, partly by our parents and the common sense we use in taking care of ourselves.

Our bank account of health, however, is not like a savings account which increases as the years pass. It is like a "current" account which will not increase in size unless we make a deposit from time to time. If we draw on it all the time and make no deposits, our bank account of heath will grow less and even disappear.

What do we mean by deposits and withdrawals from our bank account of health? Deposits in our health account mean daily watchful common sense care (but not, of course, living by the clock); not eating too much but enough, not sleeping too much but enough, not working too hard physically but enough. A yearly examination by physician and dentist is a good-sized deposit in our bank account of health.

Withdrawals or checking out from your bank account of health means the foolish, the careless, the thoughtless things that rob us of that health we were given or have attained and not observing the three things we deposited—sleep, food, exercise.

Because so many middle-aged men and women are stricken with heart and brain strokes an outstanding physician, in his anxiety to prevent these occurrences, advises men and women past fifty not to lift even their little finger unnecessarily.

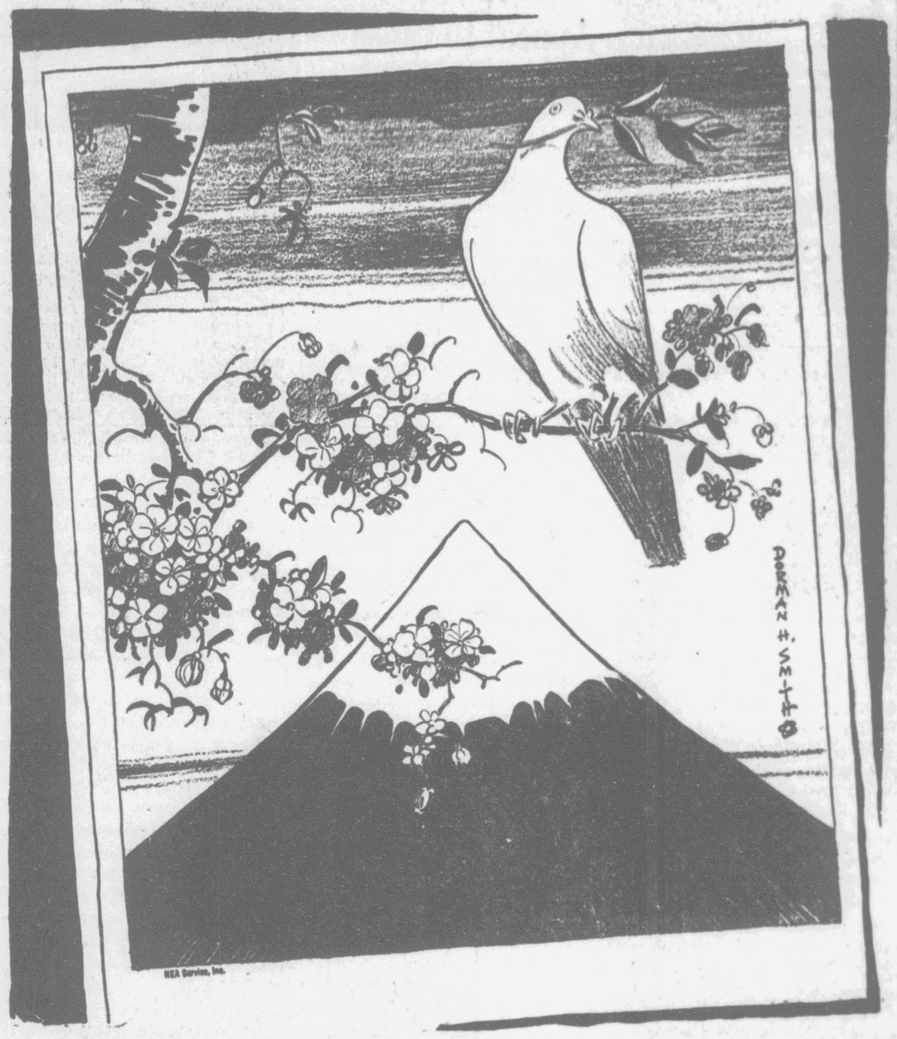

As a matter of fact, we will be making a deposit in our bank account of health, not a withdrawal, if we walk several blocks daily. It maintains a good circulation. Gladstone, who lived well into his eighties, stated, "Exercise of the body pays a larger rate of interest than any other investment."

A New Japanese Print---Ready for Framing

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington — Capitol police were alerted the other day to expect a mob of imported Communist agitators on Capitol Hill. But the police weren't the only ones who prepared for them. The Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, Senate chaplain, also got ready for the Communists—by writing a special prayer for their benefit.

The chaplain was all set to deliver the prayer on the Senate floor, as an answer to the phony peace petitions that the Communists intended to circulate. But when it came time for the invocation, the Communists still hadn't arrived. So Reverend Harris tossed aside his special prayer and delivered another invocation.

However, here is the heart of the prayer the chaplain wrote but never delivered: "Open the eyes of the duped who would follow false leaders who cry peace, peace where there is no peace; who use the cry of peace as a green light for aggression . . . Help us not to be lured by deceptive promises of peace that are but the facade of force. Amen."

Lobbyist Adviser

It is almost unbelievable, but Mobilizer Charles Wilson is getting his advice on minerals from a lobbyist for the foreign mining interests.

Wilson's top mining consultant is Fred Searls, Jr., who used to lobby on Capitol Hill against domestic mining programs but now does his lobbying from the inside. In other words, he has been hired to advise what the government's policy should be on securing minerals for defense. Yet, at the same time, he is president of Newmont Mining Company which has a rich stake in South African mines. This is another shocking example of how private interests have infiltrated into the defense agencies to grind their own axes.

For instance, here is the type of advice that Searls has been whispering into Wilson's ear:

1. Searls is against government subsidies to domestic mines, though his own foreign mining interests have received ECA aid.

2. He is opposed to an expansion and exploration program for domestic mining, but prefers to have the government buy from foreign sources, such as his South African mines.

3. He favors a reduction in the appropriations for stockpiling, though this country is still dangerously short of strategic materials.

Searls admitted these views behind closed doors to the Senate Interior Committee, which called him on the carpet after discovering he was Wilson's adviser on mining. Here are highlights from his startling but frank, secret testimony.

"Any type of subsidy for mineral development is objectionable. It tends to socialize the industry," Searls bluntly told the committee.

O'Mahoney Disagrees

Chairman Joe O'Mahoney, Wyoming Democrat, snorted his disagreement and thumbed through an old copy of Fortune magazine. He found an article about South African mines, and read how they received "low taxes and liberal depreciation allowances from the government of South Africa."

"Do you think that's a subsidy?" demanded O'Mahoney.

"But that doesn't do us any good because we also have to pay American taxes," shrugged Searls, whose Tsuneb mine in South Africa is one of the world's 10 leading producers.

"Unfortunately, a large number of American citizens are paying taxes now," O'Mahoney retorted icily. "You make a distinction between government subsidies to your mine, but you want the government of the United States to deny those subsidies to your competitors in the United States. This raises the question of what kind of advice you are going to give Mr. Wilson on expanding our national production."

"Did you get ECA help to open those (South African) mines?" broke in Sen. Clinton Anderson, New Mexico Democrat.

"Yes," admitted Searls.

"And when those were opened, several smaller mines in this country were forced to close, throwing many workers out of jobs," snapped Anderson.

He recalled that American miners had testified in May, 1950, that they had been forced to shut down their mines, stopping production and throwing 2,000 men out of work.

"You feel you are in a position to give Mr. Wilson impartial advice? demanded Anderson. "If you can persuade him not to give help to open and expand mines in the United States, then we must look to sources outside of the United States for raw materials."

"Mines come, die off, and mines go. The best way to help mines here is to leave them alone," suggested Searls.

"I'm trying to find out if your interests in foreign mines are so great that you'll be prejudiced in your advice to Mr. Wilson." the New Mexico senator persisted. "Our miners feel your opposition (to expanding domestic production) was based on your foreign interests."

Patriotic Speech

"I feel the urgency of the war program requires us to get all the metals into this country as fast as possible. Where they come from is of secondary importance," Searls replied in a patriotic little speech.

But under questioning, he admitted sheepishly that his own South African mines sold most of their production to Europe.

"Where do you ship copper?" asked Sen. Herbert Lehman, New York Democrat.

"Belgium, France, Italy and England," reported Searls.

"Then the United States doesn't receive any benefits of the ECA help your company has received," observed Lehman.

"That's correct," confessed the man who advises Wilson on minerals.

"I've been very concerned about scarcity of copper in this country. Because there is that scarcity, why do you continue to deliver your copper to foreign countries?" demanded the New York senator.

"The market abroad is higher than in the United States," explained Searls, not sounding quite so patriotic.

The most angry outburst came from Sen. Guy Gordon, Oregon Republican, when Searls argued that it wasn't "mandatory" under the defense production act to pay mining subsidies.

"That's why you're here today," Cordon bristled. "Were it not for that, it wouldn't make a damned bit of difference how you advised Mr. Wilson."

Searls also admitted that his company had urged reducing the appropriations for stockpiling because of the need for "economizing." He indicated that he considered the stockpiling program just another form of subsidy for the domestic mines.

At the end of the hearing, O'Mahoney asked the final question: "Yesterday, the National Production Authority appeared before us and proposed a $10,000,000 expansion and exploration program for our domestic mining. What is your view in regard to that?" he asked.

"I would prefer that it not be done," replied Searls. "But I doubt if I would be consulted on it."

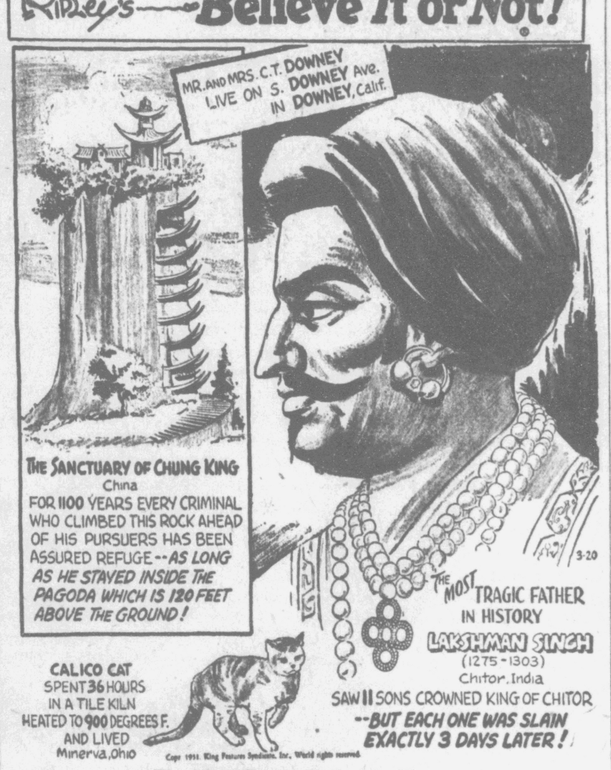

"I should hope you wouldn't!" snorted O'Mahoney.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, March 20 — The question which recently upset markets and caused many a flurry of excitement in the last few days is this: "Is there a chance of an end soon to the war in Korea.

Rumors of a peace settlement, even in the midst of big wars, usually have some basis which starts them going. When General Ridgway, our field commander in Korea, said the other day that our forces could consider that they had won a big victory upon reaching the 38th Parallel again, stock-market observers jumped to the conclusion that this was about as far as our armies planned to go. But that wasn't really what General Ridgway meant. He was merely clearing the air for a settlement, if the Communists were really intent on making one. A somewhat similar hint came from General MacArthur, who said the best we could hope for in Korea was a stalemate, if the United Nations forces were not going to be permitted to bomb the Chinese bases of supply north of the Manchurian border.

All this adds up to one thing—our military commanders in Korea are restless and are asking for some definition of purpose, some plan that will either let the U.N. forces liberate all of Korea by bombing the Red Chinese bases and occupying more and more North Korean territory, or else some plan that will permit the U.N. to negotiate a settlement by diplomacy.

Neither our commanders nor our high government officials intend to waste the fruits of victory by letting the Communists keep their control of North Korea. What they evidently do mean is that if the Chinese Communists have had enough—and they are taking frightful losses every day—maybe a way can be found to let them wiggle out with a negotiated settlement. But such a settlement undoubtedly would require that a plan for evacuation of all Korea by foreign troops would be agreed upon and that some guarantees or assurances would be given by the Communists that Korea will not be attacked again.

While the Chinese Communists may have unlimited manpower, they do not have unlimited supplies of arms or equipment. The Korean war has drained Chinese resources and already has prevented them from sending reinforcements to Indo-China and from starting trouble in Formosa. They also have their hands full now with more and more internal trouble.

It may be that the Chinese Communist leaders will try just one more offensive. The weather in Korea will be getting bad soon—bad for our fliers and for the movement of motor vehicles as the mud and rain slow down everything. Maybe after this last offensive the Red Chinese will be ready for a settlement. The climax in Korea certainly will come within a few months, perhaps weeks, and, just as the Communists suddenly gave up their blockade of Berlin, they may just as suddenly give up their war in Korea. For it is we who are winning the war against aggression by preventing the aggressor from attaining his objective.

There may be a connection between the rumors of peace in Korea and the recent drop in prices. The price readjustment, however, has been in the cards for some time. Tin and rubber prices went skyrocketing when the armament program was announced but, now that the government has stepped in and slowed down its stockpiling, those two commodity prices started downward. In fact, commodity prices generally are leveling off. This is to be noted in grain prices, too. For the last two weeks in February, the retail food index, issued by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, has shown a decline and food prices at wholesale continued a decline after that.

The price levels seem to suggest that maybe the peak in the Korean boom has been reached. What really is happening is that the old law of "supply and demand" is beginning to operate in certain categories of economic action. Some of those who built unusually large inventories of goods are discovering that demand is not as great as they thought, and that some of the hoarded stuff had better be moved, even if it requires lower prices.

The controversy over interest rates — whether the government should hold the bond market at a pegged price or give it a chance to find its own level—is also having some effect on the general situation. There is a testing going on. Bank credit is a target of attack, and an effort is being made to tighten it up, which means that some concerns with heavy inventories may be compelled to get rid of them in order to pay back their loans.

On top of this, a steady reconversion process is going on in industry and there may be some unemployment while the factories change over from civilian goods to the making of military goods. This is a deflationary aspect. It may be expected, however, that this situation will be only temporary, because the build-up of armament is to be larger instead of smaller during the next several months. The peak of our military production is not to come until a year or two from now.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

There is great indignation over the receipt by Mrs. Merl Young, a secretary employed in the White House, of an unusual mink coat, of a shade described as natural royal pastel, which appears to have come to her in a sort of double-play. According to testimony taken by the Fulbright Committee, this coat was paid for by Joseph H. Rosenbaum, a lawyer, who is alleged to have boasted that he had two members of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in his hip pocket, but given to Mrs. Young by her husband. Her husband is an assistant to William H. Boyle, Jr., the chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Mr. Rosenbaum's clients before the R.F.C. included the Central Iron and Steel Company, which got a loan of $6,300,000. A director of the R.F.C. has said that Mrs. Young's husband told him that the Democratic National Committee took an interest in this loan. President Truman said he knew of no evidence of illegal conduct in this sequence of events. Then, whether as a reward for being strictly on the level or as a matter of no moral significance whatever, Mrs. Young was given a vacation of two weeks at public expense from her duties at the White House.

There are captious hypocrites and fastidious moralists who will take an evil view of all this and suggest that Mrs. Young should be fired from the White House. You may disregard them. There is the highest precedent for Mrs. Young's course, established by a dignitary no less distinguished for her scrupulous honesty, propriety, morality and ethical standards than the first lady of the universe, Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, widow of him who enjoys a distinction unique among mankind in that both his birthday and the day of his death are celebrated by zealots of antipodean sentiments.

In March, 1945, Mrs. Roosevelt received as a gift a mink coat which was publicly valued at $8,000 by Louis Ritter, a New York furrier, who made the presentation. Mrs. Young's coat is reported to have cost Mr. Rosenbaum $9,450, but the difference of an Electrol part is the plating for copper, and following is the grinding for removal of portions of copper from parts before they are heat treated so that only such parts of the surface requiring hardness will be affected.

Pilots' Hard Little Helpers Made Here

Electrol Resumes

From heat treating the parts go to grinding where they are ground to required size before the hard chromium plate is applied. Once chrome plated they are returned to grinding where a five-micro-inch finish is obtained making the surface like that of glass.

This degree of smoothness is to minimize friction in the part. The chrome finish on the steel builds up strength and provides hard finish and smooth action.

In the final inspection the part is checked for positive drawing dimensions and for determining the depth of chrome. This is done by magna gauge. All units made are put through the final test and must be stamped with the tester's stamp before they are submitted to the navy and air corps.

Measuring, where close tolerances are held, are by light through use of a shadowgraph. These could not be obtained by the usual measuring instruments.

Meet All Problems

From layout to design, from stress analysis to prototype, and from drop test to production, Electrol engineers cope with all landing gear problems, and this work is particularly precise when dealing with units for the jet planes.

As for other uses of hydraulic parts it was found rudders on ships of many sizes are operated hydraulically, and engineers figured the use of units that will adjust without tilting heavy electro-magnetic platforms. They were able to produce devices that makes a jeep suitable for travel on either rails or highway, and another that is important in the poultry business.

The latter was developed because eggs in an incubator must be rotated an accurate number of degrees at given intervals, depending on the type of eggs and the farmer's own theories and experiences.

Hydraulic power was applied to the operating lever, working through an adjustable cycle based on an electric timing clock. Intervals of operation are set by the farmer, and the machine does the rest, rotating the eggs more smoothly and certainly than can be done by human operation of the lever. In many instances it means more sleep for the farmer.

Companies Now Served

Aircraft companies served by Electrol are: Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp., Republic Aviation Corp., Bell Aircraft Corp., Boeing Airplane Co., Bellanca Aircraft Corp., Chance Vought Aircraft, Chase Aircraft Co. Hydraulic parts are used also in certain type factory machinery, in coal mining, lift trucks, printing machinery, plastic presses, X-ray and operating tables, marine reversing gear, hospital beds and cots, helicopter landing gears, and for various packaging and textile machinery.

Products Manufactured

The company's products are: air springs, automatic pilot cylinders, brake valves, check valves, cylinders, dashpots, follow up valves, hand pumps, landing gear oleos, pilot-operated selector valves, power boost control valves, powerpaks, pressure regulators, relief valves, selector valves, self locking cylinders, sequence valves, shuttle valves, slide valves, solenoid operated valves, speed control valves, thermal relief valves.

Title Dispute Is Aired in Court

An action to settle a dispute of title to land in the town of Hardenbergh was taken up for trial in Supreme Court this morning before Justice Roscoe V. Elsworth and a jury.

Marian Lanctot brings an action against Harold Rankin Towse and his wife to establish ownership of the land. August J. Botta and Judge Bernard A. Culloton appear for the plaintiff and Joseph Heller of Livingston Manor appears for the defendants.

Plaintiff claims title to the property on which there are no buildings and which borders the Beaver Kill stream, claiming that they have had title to the property for many years through family ownership and further on the grounds of adverse possession. Plaintiff claims ownership since about 1906. The defendants claim they own the property through family connections dating back some 67 years.

Plaintiff contends that even though the deeds do not convey absolute title the fact that they have been in possession of the premises for the statutory period they own it through adverse possession. Defendant contends that the plaintiff has no proper title and that the land was used by members of the plaintiff's family with permission of the defendant or members of the defendant's family.

An inquest was taken in an action for work, labor and services brought by Jack Nace against O. Burdi. Plaintiff was represented by Harold A. Lent. Nace was awarded a verdict of $84.19, the balance due on a bill for installation of electric service on the Burdi property on South Road, Poughkeepsie. The action was heard by the court without a jury and a verdict for plaintiff directed.

Pilots' Hard Little Helpers Made Here

Chrome plating: Wesley Dunbar and Robert DuBois.

Electrol Resumes

an Electrol part is the plating for copper, and following is the grinding for removal of portions of copper from parts before they are heat treated so that only such parts of the surface requiring hardness will be affected.

From heat treating the parts go to grinding where they are ground to required size before the hard chromium plate is applied. Once chrome plated they are returned to grinding where a five-micro-inch finish is obtained making the surface like that of glass.

This degree of smoothness is to minimize friction in the part. The chrome finish on the steel builds up strength and provides hard finish and smooth action.

In the final inspection the part is checked for positive drawing dimensions and for determining the depth of chrome. This is done by magna gauge. All units made are put through the final test and must be stamped with the tester's stamp before they are submitted to the navy and air corps.

Measuring, where close tolerances are held, are by light through use of a shadowgraph. These could not be obtained by the usual measuring instruments.

Meet All Problems

From layout to design, from stress analysis to prototype, and from drop test to production, Electrol engineers cope with all landing gear problems, and this work is particularly precise when dealing with units for the jet planes.

As for other uses of hydraulic parts it was found rudders on ships of many sizes are operafed hydraulically, and engineers figured the use of units that will adjust without tilting heavy electro-magnetic platforms. They were able to produce devices that makes a jeep suitable for travel on either rails or highway, and another that is important in the poultry business.

The latter was developed because eggs in an incubator must be rotated an accurate number of degrees at given intervals, depending on the type of eggs and the farmer's own theories and experiences.

Hydraulic power was applied to the operating lever, working through an adjustable cycle based on an electric timing clock. Intervals of operation are set by the farmer, and the machine does the rest, rotating the eggs more smoothly and certainly than can be done by human operation of the lever. In many instances it means more sleep for the farmer.

Companies Now Served

Aircraft companies served by Electrol are: Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp., Republic Aviation Corp., Bell Aircraft Corp., Boeing Airplane Co., Bellanca Aircraft Corp., Chance Vought Aircraft, Chase Aircraft Co. Title Dispute Is Aired in Court

An action to settle a dispute of title to land in the town of Hardenbergh was taken up for trial in Supreme Court this morning before Justice Roscoe V. Elsworth and a jury.

Marian Lanctot brings an action against Harold Rankin Towse and his wife to establish ownership of the land. August J. Botta and Judge Bernard A. Culloton appear for the plaintiff and Joseph Heller of Livingston Manor appears for the defendants.

Plaintiff claims title to the property on which there are no buildings and which borders the Beaver Kill stream, claiming that they have had title to the property for many years through family ownership and further on the grounds of adverse possession. Plaintiff claims ownership since about 1906. The defendants claim they own the property through family connections dating back some 67 years.

Plaintiff contends that even though the deeds do not convey absolute title the fact that they have been in possession of the premises for the statutory period they own it through adverse possession. Defendant contends that the plaintiff has no proper title and that the land was used by members of the plaintiff's family with permission of the defendant or members of the defendant's family.

An inquest was taken in an action for work, labor and services brought by Jack Nace against O. Burdi. Plaintiff was represented by Harold A. Lent. Nace was awarded a verdict of $84.19, the balance due on a bill for installation of electric service on the Burdi property on South Road, Poughkeepsie. The action was heard by the court without a jury and a verdict for plaintiff directed.

The Reds have thrown up road blocks in some places to delay the U. N. advance.

The Red Korean radio at Pyongyang called on Korean youths to rise against the United Nations during a "World Youth Week" to start Wednesday.

The radio called on youths of both sexes to "rise against the enemy" and "start people's riots everywhere."

"Take away the gun from the American enemy and (Korean president) Syngman Rhee's group and shoot them in the breast," the radio said.

South Korean soldiers were urged to turn on U. N. soldiers "in a righteous uprising and come to the people's (Communist) army."

Apologizes

Walter E. Cosgriff, an RFC director, tells Senate investigators in Washington (March 19) that he contributed to the 1950 election fund of Sen. William Benton (D.-Conn.) after he had denied making such a contribution outside of his home state of Utah. Cosgriff, rebuked for first denying that he had given money to Benton's campaign fund, apologized for the "oversight." (AP Wirephoto).

Will Discuss Breeding Better Dairy Animals

Guest speaker at the annual spring banquet of the Ulster-Sullivan-Orange Holstein Club will be Dean Rice, head of the department of animal husbandry at the University of Massachusetts.

The dinner will be held on April 5 at Pine Bush Grange Hall, and a full attendance is requested to hear the talk on Breeding Better Dairy Animals.

Dean Rice is an outstanding authority on the subject of genetics, having written books on the subject for use in agricultural colleges.

The committee on arrangements, Clarence Schoonmaker of Gardiner and Andrew Burkinshaw of Pine Bush, have announced that entertainment will consist of feats of magic and songs led by Mr. and Mrs. Talleur.

Daily Worker Threatened

New York, March 20 (AP)—The Daily Worker says it is threatened with bankruptcy. It is appealing for funds. A front page editorial in the Communist newspaper yesterday said it must raise $200,000. It urged its readers to contribute and to get friends to contribute $5 each. The Worker blamed its financial plight on "decline in circulation" and "harassment of our advertisers." It said the newspaper is operating at an annual loss of at least $200,000.

Woman Faces Sentence

New York, March 20 (AP)—A Belgian immigrant woman faces sentence March 29 on her plea of guilty to smuggling diamonds valued at $493,998 into the United States. The defendant, Mrs. Eta Hoffman, 26, could get up to four years in prison and $10,000 fine. She pleaded guilty yesterday in Brooklyn before Federal Judge Harold M. Kennedy.

Loses All Her Limbs

Chicago, March 20 (AP) — Mrs. Dorothy Mae Stevens, 23, Chicago's frozen woman, became a quadruple amputee yesterday. Physicians at Michael Reese hospital amputated all the fingers of her right hand and parts of fingers on her left hand excluding the thumb. On March 8, doctors removed her legs nine inches below the knee. Her condition was described as satisfactory.

THE RUMINATOR

By HUMPHREY B. NEILL

A Column of Contrary Opinion

Because of the apparent let-down in war feelings lately, it might be well if we took a contrary look at the future.

As the Ruminator commented in a recent column, it is probable that there will be some let-up in business activity during the spring months—but anything more than a temporary lull appears highly improbable.

Indeed, if anything it seems certain that our military preparedness program will be expanded, and not lessened in the months ahead. Any let-up, therefore, will be the result of time needed to get orders into production and to complete necessary industry retooling and plant expansion, rather than any letting-down in the defense plans.

It is now reported that the military spending planned for the year starting July first will total nearly $50 billion. This is an increase of seven to eight billions over previous estimates for the fiscal year of 1952. (The government's fiscal year starts July 1 of each year.)

In addition to these gigantic figures are other projected plans that would elevate the military budget to many more billions—anywhere from $75 to $100 billion if the military men were to get everything they would like to have! It is extremely doubtful that any such totals will be reached—unless total war with Russia should eventuate. In this case, of course, we would go all-out for war and there would be no limitations on expenditures. The problem then would be to turn all industries into war production—fast.

It seems well to keep this in mind just now, when the trend of public thinking has tended to shift toward the thought of cutting back war plans and of the possibility of an early peace. While it may eventuate that the Korean war will turn into a "military stalemate," as General MacArthur has stated, this will not change the outlook for thorough defense against an outbreak of war in Europe.

It apparently is the strategy of Russia—at it always has been—to maneuver in diplomatic dealings and in propaganda toward "peace" each time that the United States and western European nations actually get worked up to a war-like pitch.

You can "feel" the effects of this propaganda now in the air, because people certainly are not stirred up as they were a few weeks ago when the war with Red China in Korea was at its worst.

However, inasmuch as the defense program has been authorized and set in motion there is no likelihood that it will be stopped. To the contrary, as mentioned, it is more likely to be expanded.

Waves of mass sentiment are always interesting to observe. Sentiments rises and falls in accordance with the current events.

Some weeks ago the Ruminator had occasion to write a few notes pertaining to the outlook for "sentiment" and here is the way it stacked up, which seems to tie in pretty accurately with today's developments:

Waves of mass sentiment seem likely to be influenced—

a. If actual war does not occur in a matter of months, the waves of mass sentiment will tend to fade out.

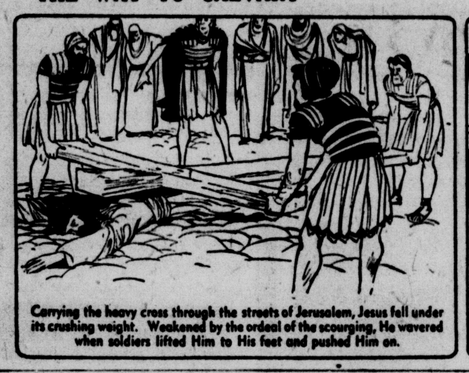

b. If a world-wide explosion does occur, it will prove far more calamitous than now envisaged. "An electronic horrow."

c. If the threat of war diminishes, a public reaction against the war program and restrictions will be equally swift.

These were the guide-posts, as I saw them in January, for contrary thinking in 1951. And as you look over the alternatives they still "fit." Paragraph "c" above is what we are witnessing. However, in the event of some new crisis or war threat this let-down sentiment would swing back toward a "war psychology."

If we keep these human reactions in mind—and think of their opposites—we are more likely to "think ahead" and not be surprised when public psychology shifts. Thus this column to remind us that the war preparations are not slowing up but simply are in the in-between stage when momentum is getting underway.

THE WAY TO CALVARY

Carrying the heavy cross through the streets of Jerusalem, Jesus fell under its crushing weight. Weakened by the ordeal of the scourging, He wavered when soldiers lifted Him to His feet and pushed Him on.

His Mother

Among the crowd that followed His agonizing journey was Mary, His mother. At one point in the march, their eyes met, and the deep sorrow in her face added a greater burden to the cross.

Jesus tottered. The soldiers, fearing He would collapse, forced a spectator in the crowd, Simon of Cyrene, to help carry the cross. Christ must not be allowed to die before Calvary could be reached.

As Pegler Sees It

$1,450 still leaves Mrs. Roosevelt to the good when the inflated quality of the dollars paid for Mrs. Young's coat is properly considered.

Mr. Ritter may be counted among those who celebrate the late Mahatma's birthday and mourn his demise. He comes from Hungary and the commentary in a weekly journal dealing with the presentation to La Boca said he had a penthouse on the roof of his place of business in the New York fur district, an aviary of rare birds, an apartment in the Plaza and a Rolls-Royce, complete with liveried chauffeur and folding bar. Chauffeurs were a luxury in those closing days of the war when the empress Eleanor and Harry Hopkins, the Rasputin of the regime, were clamoring for a total draft of men and women for enforced servitude at hard labor under some euphemistic facsimile of the commissars of our loyal ally, Soviet Russia.

Current accounts held that La Boca justified her acceptance of her mink coat by the same casuistry which she invoked later to justify her acceptance of an aquamarine of an estimated value of $40,000 from the government of Brazil.

This stone, weighing about three-quarters of a pound, was delivered into her husband's hand at a state dinner in Rio de Janiero in 1936. It did not come to public notice, however, until 1950 when, in her second set of memoirs, she became very blurry in the details. As to whether import duty was paid on the aquamarine, no clear statement was made. Moreover, although she did say it had been put on display in the Hyde Park honkytonk along with the baby-shoes, birds'-nests and hair combings of him whose holy name I am unfit to speak, she did not say whether title to the jewel had passed to the nation. That would be important, because, if not, the aquamarine remains her personal wealth and the insurance should be paid by the management of the sacred carnival.

Mr. Ritter's presentation of the $8,000 mink coat to La Boca was a publicity gag for his fur business. He got his picture in a lot of papers holding the coat with her and wearing that infatuated expression which comes over some persons in the divine presence. Magazines also advertised Mr. Ritter's fur business far and wide, for free. A publicity handout was passed around ballyhooing a vague and not entirely convincing proposition that a 'trade-alliance agreement" between Canadian and American furriers was at the bottom of the deal. It said the first lady "helped commemorate the occasion by receiving the symbolic gift of a mink coat on behalf of the American women."

Many American women vehemently dissented.

The empress explained that the law forbidding our presidents to accept graft from foreign governments applied to the president only. She had been tempted to give the coat to some charity, but the strongest trait of the family intervened against this folly and easily put temptation to flight. She said it would have been ungracious of her inasmuch as the gift was intended to popularize that particular brand of mink, wherein you may observe the publicity gimmick in its naked symmetry. She also said she had accepted a jeweled crown and a harem dress from King Ibn Saud, of Arabia. A harem dress includes a heavy veil which completely hides the features.

If La Boca Grande regarded this as a subtle dig by a sly potentate, she was not offended to the extent of sending back his jewels. The crown went to the Hyde Park fair along with the aquamarine door-stop.

Mrs. Merl Young owes nobody any apology. Indeed if she had refused to accept the $9,450 mink coat bought by the lawyer who deals successfully and profitably with the R.F.C., she might have been accused of inferential lese majeste. For that she really could have been fired from the White House.

HOME BUREAU

Lomontville Unit

The regular meeting of the Lomontville Home Bureau was held at an all-day session last week at the Community Hall. Mrs. Henry Rygh and Mrs. Anthony Bruntraeger, food leaders, demonstrated six different kinds of fruit dessert. All assisted in the preparation of the desserts.

After lunch, Mrs. Raymond Elliott, chairman, conducted the business meeting. The unit again voted to give $5 to the Red Cross fund drive.

Plans are underway to raise funds for the unit by serving a spaghetti supper on April 19. Further plans will be announced.

During the latter part of the afternoon, Mrs. Walter Vollmeke, leader, showed the bags kit. An interesting variety of plastic and fabric bags was shown.

Coaster Cover

A new card table cover of heavy quilted plastic is neatly fitted with four corner coasters that hold glasses securely. It is available in metallic green or blue, wine, chartreuse, cocoa, and gray.

Notes on Music

THE BEGINNER IN POPULAR MUSIC

In spite of the fact that there are many false and exaggerated claims made about the ease with which popular music can be learned, more and more adults and children turn to it every year and find to their pleasant surprise that in a relatively short period of time they can actually play to suit themselves and even their neighbors.

From one to two years of study should show the person with average talent how to take a song sheet and turn out a creditable performance of it.

Sometimes pianists who have played classical music for years and never studied popular music are amazed when they find that they cannot compete with novices who have studied the Art of Popular Music as the separate science which it is.

Popular music is a science in itself and requires an altogether different approach from classical; the only similarities being that the student of either classical or popular must learn to read fluently and develop a fair amount of technique before his playing will take on a pearling and elastic quality.

From then on, the approaches follow different roads. The Popular student learns a thing called Keyboard Harmony. He learns that to a very surprising degree, simple mathematics can determine the right chords in the right keys as they are needed. He also learns what is called the Professional Bass, and how to invent his own embellishments with the right hand.

Surprisingly enough, although a thoroughly grounded popular piano student knows how to read both Treble and Bass Clefs, he rarely if ever plays the exact notes written on his song sheets.

If the reader is acquainted with the appearance of a popular song sheet, he may have noticed the chords named by letter in this way—G7-Em- e.t.c., written above the melody in the treble clef. These chords were primarily written for banjo accompaniment, but the student of popular piano playing constructs these chords at sight, according to a simple formula and plays them in the Professional Bass style. This Bass is simple to learn and practically anyone can master all the chords in all keys in a comparatively short period of time. This of course merely assures the playing of a song sheet in a correct way insofar as harmony is concerned, and it also assures a certain fullness not found in the song sheet, when it is played exactly as written.

For the student to build a certain style of his own he must go further. However, once he has learned these bass chords and progressed up to this point under a teacher, he is quite capable of building his own style by himself.

THE RUMINATOR

By HUMPHREY B. NEILL

A Column of Contrary Opinion

Because of the apparent let-down in war feelings lately, it might be well if we took a contrary look at the future.

As the Ruminator commented in a recent column, it is probable that there will be some let-up in business activity during the spring months—but anything more than a temporary lull appears highly improbable.

Indeed, if anything it seems certain that our military preparedness program will be expanded, and not lessened in the months ahead. Any let-up, therefore, will be the result of time needed to get orders into production and to complete necessary industry retooling and plant expansion, rather than any letting-down in the defense plans.

It is now reported that the military spending planned for the year starting July first will total nearly $50 billion. This is an increase of seven to eight billions over previous estimates for the fiscal year of 1952. (The government's fiscal year starts July 1 of each year.)

In addition to these gigantic figures are other projected plans that would elevate the military budget to many more billions—anywhere from $75 to $100 billion if the military men were to get everything they would like to have! It is extremely doubtful that any such totals will be reached—unless total war with Russia should eventuate. In this case, of course, we would go all-out for war and there would be no limitations on expenditures. The problem then would be to turn all industries into war production—fast.

It seems well to keep this in mind just now, when the trend of public thinking has tended to shift toward the thought of cutting back war plans and of the possibility of an early peace. While it may eventuate that the Korean war will turn into a "military stalemate," as General MacArthur has stated, this will not change the outlook for thorough defense against an outbreak of war in Europe.

It apparently is the strategy of Russia—at it always has been—to maneuver in diplomatic dealings and in propaganda toward "peace" each time that the United States and western European nations actually get worked up to a war-like pitch.

You can "feel" the effects of this propaganda now in the air, because people certainly are not stirred up as they were a few weeks ago when the war with Red China in Korea was at its worst.

However, inasmuch as the defense program has been authorized and set in motion there is no likelihood that it will be stopped. To the contrary, as mentioned, it is more likely to be expanded.

Waves of mass sentiment are always interesting to observe. Sentiments rises and falls in accordance with the current events.

Some weeks ago the Ruminator had occasion to write a few notes pertaining to the outlook for "sentiment" and here is the way it stacked up, which seems to tie in pretty accurately with today's developments:

Waves of mass sentiment seem likely to be influenced—

a. If actual war does not occur in a matter of months, the waves of mass sentiment will tend to fade out.

b. If a world-wide explosion does occur, it will prove far more calamitous than now envisaged. "An electronic horrow."

c. If the threat of war diminishes, a public reaction against the war program and restrictions will be equally swift.

These were the guide-posts, as I saw them in January, for contrary thinking in 1951. And as you look over the alternatives they still "fit." Paragraph "c" above is what we are witnessing. However, in the event of some new crisis or war threat this let-down sentiment would swing back toward a "war psychology."

If we keep these human reactions in mind—and think of their opposites—we are more likely to "think ahead" and not be surprised when public psychology shifts. Thus this column to remind us that the war preparations are not slowing up but simply are in the in-between stage when momentum is getting underway.

THE WAY TO CALVARY

Carrying the heavy cross through the streets of Jerusalem, Jesus fell under its crushing weight. Weakened by the ordeal of the scourging, He wavered when soldiers lifted Him to His feet and pushed Him on.

Among the crowd that followed His agonizing journey was Mary, His mother. At one point in the march, their eyes met, and the deep sorrow in her face added a greater burden to the cross.

His Mother

Jesus tottered. The soldiers, fearing He would collapse, forced a spectator in the crowd, Simon of Cyrene, to help carry the cross. Christ must not be allowed to die before Calvary could be reached.

As Pegler Sees It

$1,450 still leaves Mrs. Roosevelt to the good when the inflated quality of the dollars paid for Mrs. Young's coat is properly considered.

Mr. Ritter may be counted among those who celebrate the late Mahatma's birthday and mourn his demise. He comes from Hungary and the commentary in a weekly journal dealing with the presentation to La Boca said he had a penthouse on the roof of his place of business in the New York fur district, an aviary of rare birds, an apartment in the Plaza and a Rolls-Royce, complete with liveried chauffeur and folding bar. Chauffeurs were a luxury in those closing days of the war when the empress Eleanor and Harry Hopkins, the Rasputin of the regime, were clamoring for a total draft of men and women for enforced servitude at hard labor under some euphemistic facsimile of the commissars of our loyal ally, Soviet Russia.

Current accounts held that La Boca justified her acceptance of her mink coat by the same casuistry which she invoked later to justify her acceptance of an aquamarine of an estimated value of $40,000 from the government of Brazil.

This stone, weighing about three-quarters of a pound, was delivered into her husband's hand at a state dinner in Rio de Janiero in 1936. It did not come to public notice, however, until 1950 when, in her second set of memoirs, she became very blurry in the details. As to whether import duty was paid on the aquamarine, no clear statement was made. Moreover, although she did say it had been put on display in the Hyde Park honkytonk along with the baby-shoes, birds'-nests and hair combings of him whose holy name I am unfit to speak, she did not say whether title to the jewel had passed to the nation. That would be important, because, if not, the aquamarine remains her personal wealth and the insurance should be paid by the management of the sacred carnival.

Mr. Ritter's presentation of the $8,000 mink coat to La Boca was a publicity gag for his fur business. He got his picture in a lot of papers holding the coat with her and wearing that infatuated expression which comes over some persons in the divine presence. Magazines also advertised Mr. Ritter's fur business far and wide, for free. A publicity handout was passed around ballyhooing a vague and not entirely convincing proposition that a 'trade-allianca agreement" between Canadian and American furriers was at the bottom of the deal. It said the first lady "helped commemorate the occasion by receiving the symbolic gift of a mink coat on behalf of the American women."

Many American women vehemently dissented.

The empress explained that the law forbidding our presidents to accept graft from foreign governments applied to the president only. She had been tempted to give the coat to some charity, but the strongest trait of the family intervened against this folly and easily put temptation to flight. She said it would have been ungracious of her inasmuch as the gift was intended to popularize that particular brand of mink, wherein you may observe the publicity gimmick in its naked symmetry. She also said she had accepted a jeweled crown and a harem dress from King Ibn Saud, of Arabia. A harem dress includes a heavy veil which completely hides the features.

If La Boca Grande regarded this as a subtle dig by a sly potentate, she was not offended to the extent of sending back his jewels. The crown went to the Hyde Park fair along with the aquamarine door-stop.

Mrs. Merl Young owes nobody any apology. Indeed if she had refused to accept the $9,450 mink coat bought by the lawyer who deals successfully and profitably with the R.F.C., she might have been accused of inferential lese majeste. For that she really could have been fired from the White House.

Good Taste Today

(Author of "Etiquette," "Children Are People," etc.)

THANK-YOU NOTES

Carelessness in thanking for presents is bringing increasing numbers of letters such as this one: "I'm beginning to wonder if thank-you notes belong to a past era. I've given three presents in the last year to people who have always seemed polite and intelligent but to date none of them have sent any notes of thanks. I'd be interested to know your views."

In my opinion, failure to say—or write—"thank you" for a gift is inexcusable! And very certainly one who failed to thank me for a gift would never get another from ME!

Individual Butter Knives

Dear Mrs. Post: I don't own individual bread and butter plates and yet I've been given a half dozen small butter knives. Are these used without the small bread and butter plates?

Answer: The separate knife would be very awkward to use without a separate plate.

Niece's Wedding Invitations

Dear Mrs. Post: A niece from Europe has been living with us for several years. She is going to be married and thinks her parents' names should be used on the invitations. I think ours should appear as we are giving the wedding and her parents cannot be present.

Answer: I agree with you since it would be very confusing to use their names under the circumstances. Announcements, however, sent out here as well as abroad should of course be in her parents' names.

If Labels Come Off

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it proper to leave the labels on vases and ash trays, etc.

Answer: If they give the origin of the piece, they would be left on until removed by their permanent owner.

When should place cards be used? Where should salt cellars and pepper pots be placed on the table? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail, but her leaflet E-30 gives details for table setting and service. Will Preach Good Friday Service

REV. JOHN CORBIN

The traditional Good Friday service of devotions will be held in the sanctuary of the Rondout Presbyterian and Wurts Street Baptist Church Friday from 12 noon to 3 p. m., Raymond Van Valkenburgh, clerk of the session, has announced.

In addition to the congregational hymns and prayers which are used each year at this consecreation service, the choir, under the direction of Mrs. Earl Rylance, will sing the anthems, A Lenten Meditation by Pasquet and God So Loved the World by Stainer.

Meditative solos La Forge's Before the Crucifix and the recitative, Thy Rebuke with the aria, Behold and See, from the Messiah, will be sung by Miss Donna Hyatt and John A. McCullough.

Dr. William Carner Cain will be the ministrant.

Recent Orient Visitors

The special preacher for this service will be the Rev. John C. Corbin, D. D., the home base and Eastern area secretary of the Board of Foreign missions of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. Dr. Corbin recently returned from a visitation assignment of his church in East Asia where he has been on a special mission to the Protestant churches of Japan and Korea. In East Asia, during the period of the transition from the Nationalist government of the Kwongmintung to the Communist rule, he has been conferring with the leaders of the United Church of Christ in China over the strategy of missionary work in that country.

Before returning to the United States, Dr. Corbin was asked to remain in the Philippine Islands to make a careful survey of the work of the Protestant Church in the islands for study and recommendations. Dr. John Corbin gained national reputation for church leadership during 1946-47 while he served as the representative of his denomination on the National Commission for evangelism of the Federal Council of the Church of Christ.

His interpretations of the traditional Seven Last Words From the Cross will be not only deeply devotional but informative of the Christian evangelical concern of the World Council of Churches for missionary work at home and abroad.

All who have not other parochial commitments for Good Friday services are cordially invited to participate in this annual service of devotion at the Rondout Church and to hear the Rev. Dr. Corbin.

THANK-YOU NOTES

Carelessness in thanking for presents is bringing increasing numbers of letters such as this one: "I'm beginning to wonder if thank-you notes belong to a past era. I've given three presents in the last year to people who have always seemed polite and intelligent but to date none of them have sent any notes of thanks. I'd be interested to know your views."

In my opinion, failure to say—or write—"thank you" for a gift is inexcusable! And very certainly one who failed to thank me for a gift would never get another from ME!

Individual Butter Knives

Dear Mrs. Post: I don't own individual bread and butter plates and yet I've been given a half dozen small butter knives. Are these used without the small bread and butter plates?

Answer: The separate knife would be very awkward to use without a separate plate.

Niece's Wedding Invitations

Dear Mrs. Post: A niece from Europe has been living with us for several years. She is going to be married and thinks her parents' names should be used on the invitations. I think ours should appear as we are giving the wedding and her parents cannot be present.

Answer: I agree with you since it would be very confusing to use their names under the circumstances. Announcements, however, sent out here as well as abroad should of course be in her parents' names.

If Labels Come Off

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it proper to leave the labels on vases and ash trays, etc.

Answer: If they give the origin of the piece, they would be left on until removed by their permanent owner.

When should place cards be used? Where should salt cellars and pepper pots be placed on the table? NOW ALL THE GAS MILEAGE YOUR CAR CAN DELIVER!

PROVED AGAIN in 1951 Mobilgas Economy Run!

Official AAA Records Show: 32 Different Makes and Models of American Stock Cars Averaged 23.923 Miles Per Gallon!

What other gasoline can match this proof of performance and mileage economy?

They used either Mobilgas or Mobilgas Special . . . stopped regularly at Mobilgas dealers for service check-ups . . . obeyed all traffic rules.

Their amazing performance over the grueling 840-mile course shows that you, too, can enjoy improved gasoline mileage if you will:—drive carefully, keep your car in shape with Mobil-Care, use Mobilgas or Mobilgas Special.

Monkey Wrenches in Communism's Machinery

Stalin & Co. spend a lot of their time trying to stir up trouble among the world's free peoples, but they also spend a lot of time and sweat coping with their own headaches behind the Iron Curtain. Layout below highlights some of those headaches, which, many observers believe, add up to a mess of trouble that is a serious deterrent to further Soviet expansion in Europe.

RUSSIA Kremlin's effort to "industrialize" agriculture meets stiff resistance by sabotage, open rebellion. Anti-Soviet underground active in Ukraine.

CHINA Mao, stooging for Kremlin in Korea, sees his best troops destroyed. Millions of Chinese are anti-Communist. Guerrillas increase in number and violence. Reds slaughter thousands for "counter-revolutionary activity."

CLEMENTIS

CZECHOSLOVAKIA Disaffection widespread; ex-Foreign Minister Clementis arrested as Titoist. President Gottwald under suspicion. Purges expel 165,000 from the party.

THOREZ

FRANCE Reds, once million strong, have lost some 300,000 members. Party split into pro-Moscow and anti-Moscow factions. Leader Thorez deposed.

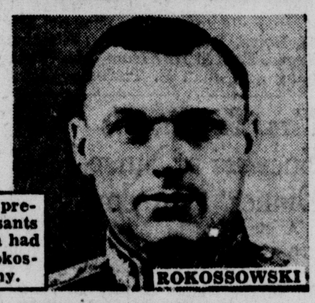

MAGNANI

CUCCHI

ITALY Aldo Cucchi and Valdo Magnani, Red leaders and members of Chamber of Deputies, resign from party, calling for independence from Moscow. Hundreds of Italian Communists follow their lead.

ROKOSSOWSKI

POLAND Moscow's stooge premier has firm grip but peasants fight collectivization. Stalin had to send Russian Marshal Rokossowski to run Polish army.

GERMANY Party purge by West German Reds expels four state chairmen and a state legislator. In East Germany, 14 Soviet officers reported hanged for plotting death of Stalin and other Russian leaders.

TITO

BALKANS Yugoslavia's Tito is more of thorn in Stalin's side than ever. His defiance inspires defections in Romania, Bulgaria and Hungary. Satellites suffer labor absenteeism, sabotage and "hostile manifestations."

Things you'd like to know about your Railroad

THE CENTRAL IDEA
A lift with your School Taxes

NEW YORK CENTRAL SYSTEM

1. A LOCOMOTIVE BELL sounds a lot like a school bell. And that's as it should be. Because your railroads, among them New York Central, are steady supporters of your school system. For instance, in New York State last year, New York Central paid school taxes of over $4,700,000!

2. RAILROAD DOLLARS helped build and keep up many a fine district school. Helped pay many a teacher's salary. Helped to buy laboratory supplies or playground equipment. Helped many a youngster finish his training at state university or agricultural college.

3. ONLY RAILROADS in the transportation field give you this kind of a lift with school taxes, because only railroads are self-supporting. They build their own right of way . . . stations . . . yards. And remember . . . school taxes are only part of the taxes they pay on their property.

4. SO NEXT TIME you watch all the solemn youngsters and their proud parents at Graduation . . . or the next time Tax Day rolls around...remember your Railroad! Paying taxes is one more way New York Central is a living part of your community. And that's the CENTRAL IDEA!

THE NIGHT IS NOT FOREVER

GIVE!

In America, no night can last forever.

There is no darkness deep enough to hide for long the spirit of its people.

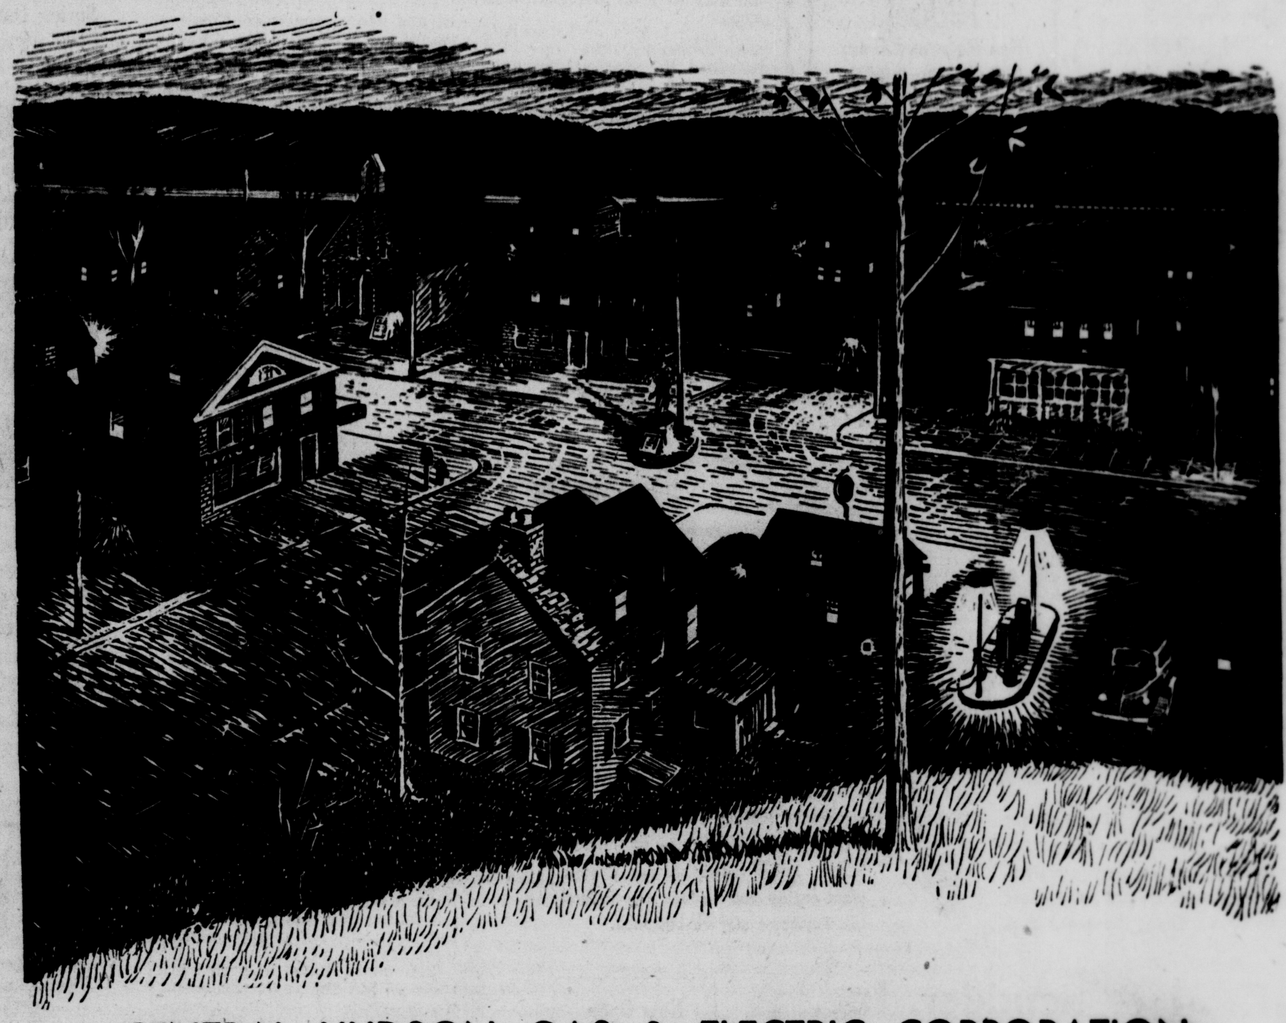

This is so because we have made it so.

Almost alone of all nations, we have held fast to our faith that every tomorrow holds the promise of a better life.

In America's long, hard march to greatness, its trials have brought it strength. From our wars we have won our freedoms. Panics have given way to serenity. Depressions have been followed by prosperity. From every night has come a dawn.

Now again the world is filled with fear and gloom. Once more, these are "times that try men's souls." But let us not dread the dark. Let Americans keep alive their abiding faith in God, in our own tomorrow and in ourselves.

That faith will be a tower of strength to the free world as it seeks to build a future.

Monkey Wrenches in Communism's Machinery

Stalin & Co. spend a lot of their time trying to stir up trouble among the world's free peoples, but they also spend a lot of time and sweat coping with their own headaches behind the Iron Curtain. Layout below highlights some of those headaches, which, many observers believe, add up to a mess of trouble that is a serious deterrent to further Soviet expansion in Europe.

RUSSIA Kremlin's effort to "industrialize" agriculture meets stiff resistance by sabotage, open rebellion. Anti-Soviet underground active in Ukraine.

CHINA Mao, stooging for Kremlin in Korea, sees his best troops destroyed. Millions of Chinese are anti-Communist. Guerrillas increase in number and violence. Reds slaughter thousands for "counter-revolutionary activity."

Fire Comes to Firemen

Missoula, Mont. (AP)—A fire came to the fire station here. Unable to dump a load of garbage set ablaze by hot ashes, a garbageman raced his truck three miles from the city dump, rushed into the fire department and said he had a fire right outside. Firemen opened the station door, started the engine of a fire truck and with a booster line extinguished the blaze. "The garbageman went back to the dump with a load of water," a fireman said.

THE CENTRAL IDEA

NEW YORK CENTRAL SYSTEM

1. A LOCOMOTIVE BELL sounds a lot like a school bell. And that's as it should be. Because your railroads, among them New York Central, are steady supporters of your school system. For instance, in New York State last year, New York Central paid school taxes of over $4,700,000!

2. RAILROAD DOLLARS helped build and keep up many a fine district school. Helped pay many a teacher's salary. Helped to buy laboratory supplies or playground equipment. Helped many a youngster finish his training at state university or agricultural college.

3. ONLY RAILROADS in the transportation field give you this kind of a lift with school taxes, because only railroads are self-supporting. They build their own right of way . . . stations . . . yards. And remember . . . school taxes are only part of the taxes they pay on their property.

4. SO NEXT TIME you watch all the solemn youngsters and their proud parents at Graduation . . . or the next time Tax Day rolls around . . . remember your Railroad! Paying taxes is one more way New York Central is a living part of your community. And that's the CENTRAL IDEA!

For Auld Lang Syne

Kingston Footlighters Renew Aquaintance With Vaughn Monroe at St. Patrick's Ball

Shop notes on show business were the highlights Friday night for a group of Kingston Footlighters when they found their way backstage to renew acquaintance with an old friend, Vaughn Monroe of radio, record, and movie fame, here in Kingston for the annual St. Patrick's Ball. The group, which was on hand to meet the maestro when he arrived at the municipal auditorium, revived the "good old days" during breathers and intermissions throughout the evening. Immediately following the ball the Vaughn Monroe Caravan, and the Kingston Footlighters were guests of the Embassy Restaurant.

Sgt. Alva H. McGinnis, station commander of the Ulster and Sullivan Counties Army and Air Force Recruiting Service, had more than one pleasant memory to recall during the visit. As an Army and Air Force public relations officer in the Rome, Utica, and Oneonta area, he and Vaughn Monroe had teamed together for U.S.O. shows there.

Back from War

Sergeant McGinnis also recalled the travelling team of enlisted men just back from the Far East, on tour of the country. Mr. Monroe took them under his wing, made them "stars" of one of his many shows, and treated them like the royalty they were. And there was the more dramatic meeting overseas, in the days when "South Pacific" was more than the name of a smash hit musical, and Vaughn Monroe was working tirelessly to lighten the task of men in that area. Many of these tales were vividly recounted when Sergeant McGinnis interviewed the singer for his "Pass in Parade" radio show on Saturday.

Older Memories

George Walsh's friendship with Mr. Monroe dates back further. Mr. Walsh, who is currently starring with the George Walsh Trio at the Embassy Restaurant, and is author of the area's theme song, In The Land of Rip Van Winkle, was born and brought up in Framingham, Mass., not a stone's throw from Vaughn Monroe's The Meadows. Both musicians were members of the musician's locals in Boston and Framingham, and both worked through the Jack Marschard circuit in the days when Vaughn Monroe was hardly famous. Ziggy Talent, the Caravan's novelty singer and star saxophone player, not only grew up in the same town with Mr. Walsh, but at one time, both shared romantic difficulties dating the same girl.

Miss Nan Merriman Shows Charm, Skill During Local Concert

A dark-haired mezzo-soprano, Miss Nan Merriman, with an easy charm, a sense of theatre, and an excellent vocal technique was guest artist last night at the final Community Concert Association offering of the '50-'51 season. Accompanist for Miss Merriman was Ralph Linsley, an accomplished artist in his own right, who played two solo selections; Nocturne in D flat major by Faure, and Debussy's Prelude, "Pour le Piano."

Miss Merriman, who seems to project her entire personality into each song, handled her voice remarkably well. It is a well-trained voice, and Miss Merriman has learned her technique to the bottom of her fingertips. Some types of music she sings uncommonly well, as Falla's dramatic Pollo from Seven Spanish Popular Songs, and Gavotte (Me voici dans son boudoir), "Mignon" by Thomas. But Miss Merriman, who is a full bodied mezzo-soprano, falls down when she attempts the lighter, more lilting melodies, and the folk songs. Her voice has, moreover, a certain sense of strain and harshness in the upper registers. This was particularly evident in opening selections: Down by the Sally Gardens, The Kerry Dance, and The Londonderry Air.

During the program Miss Merriman introduced two unexpected songs as tribute to two composers she spotted in the audience. The first was Dark Lady by Henry Cowell, whose summer home is in Shady; the second was Sam written by Bard College's Paul Nordoff. Encore selections included Leonard Bernstein's humorous I Hate Music, and that haunting and lovely Mexican folk song, Estrellita. For her intermission encore, Miss Merriman chose the newest Parisian waltz, a memory of her recent European tour, Voyage a Paris.

Taken as a whole, last night's concert program swept over a wide range, wide enough certainly, to satisfy even the most diversified music tastes. It was a case of the charmingly ridiculous, (Dougherty's Declaration of Independence) and the dramatic, (Romance de Solita by Pittaluga.) Operatic, romantic, and folk music fell side by side. Above all, it was an interesting program, well thought out, and, for the most part, beautifully sung.

Sorority Sees Private Showing Of Bridal Wear

Members of Nu Phi Mu Sorority enjoyed an entirely different type of meeting last Tuesday, when they met for a private showing of bridal wear. They also heard an informal talk on the planning which is the necessary prelude to the perfect wedding.

An experienced bridal consultant, Mrs. Marie K. Barley, told her audience "careful planning is the key to composure on the wedding day itself." She explained that in three months even the most formal wedding can be planned, although, "it's been done in much less time too."

After the date has been set, she said, there are many details which can be planned well in advance of the ceremony. Her resume stretched from consultation with the officiating clergyman, through invitation lists, arrangements with the florist, photographer, and musicians, the wedding party's clothes, beauty appointments, final fittings, and the wedding rehearsal. She also mentioned the order of the processional, recessional, and the grouping at the altar. Mrs. Barley's talk was concluded with a question and answer period.

During the fashion showing, Mrs. Barley emphasized the importance of perfect fitting. "Each girl," she said, "is an individual, and may have an individual figure problem."

As each bride's or bridesmaid's gown appeared, the speaker described the material, ornamentation, and style, recommending princess lines for the full figure, and bouffant effects for the slim.

At the short business meeting which followed, sorority members made plans for their coming card party. Tea was also served, with Miss Mary Bowcock pouring.

Eating of sausage was prohibited by the Roman emperor, Constantine the Great, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Mrs. Kissling Is Speaker at Nurses' Dinner Thursday

A dinner in honor of Mrs. Eugenia Kissling, guest speaker, marked the regular monthly meeting of the Ulster County Division of Practical Nurses, Inc., held Thursday at Judie's, Mrs. Kissling, who is senior medical social worker for the Prevention of Blindness, spoke on that subject.

The essentials of eye hygiene, Mrs. Kissling explained, are plenty of rest, fresh air, and relaxation. By promoting better health, persons in turn promote better sight. Styes, inflammation of the eyelid, and corneal ulcers may be caused in part by faulty nutrition. The speaker advised a diet of nourishing foods to insure a healthy body, and healthy eyes.

Good reading habits, Mrs. Kissling continued, are also essential. These include adequate light, holding books and newspapers at a comfortable distance from the eyes, and avoiding small print and reading for long periods of time. Reading in bed, she added, is not harmful under favorable conditions. Those reading in bed should sit upright, and should have sufficient light.

Some eye defects, as myopia, are aggravated by poor posture, Mrs. Kissling pointed out, while middle age can bring certain eye problems which often go unrecognized until they become serious. An eye physician should be consulted regularly. On the other hand, there are some difficulties which glasses cannot correct.

Good lighting, Mrs. Kissling said, is essential to sight. It should be free from glare, and dark surfaces, which absorb light, should be avoided. Those wearing glasses should take care of them, by washing them daily, and using a soft cloth to clean them. It is necessary to adjust glasses' frames frequently, the speaker continued, and eyes should be examined every two years.

In discussing a specific eye disease, glaucoma, Mrs. Kissling told the group it may result in the loss of sight if not controlled, although many cases can be arrested, and all cases should be treated adequately. A disease which often occurs during middle age, (between the 40th and 50th year) acute forms of glaucoma are marked by the sudden onset of pain, headache, and nausea. Sometimes loss of sight comes gradually, and if eye trouble continues, a doctor specializing in eye diseases should be consulted, Mrs. Kissling added.

Those wishing further information should write to the Prevention of Blindness, Commission for the Blind, Department of Social Welfare, 205 East 42 street, New York, Mrs. Kissling concluded.

Four Children Killed

Naples, Italy, March 20 (AP)—A bomb or artillery projectile uncovered by youngsters at play exploded today. Four brothers ranging in age from 11 to 15, were killed.

The Rev. Austin Carey Exhorts Students To Be Faithful to Nursing Profession

A colorful and impressive ceremony, when 22 members of the class of '53 were capped by senior and intermediate class members, were held at the Benedictine Hospital Saturday afternoon. Seniors presented pre-clinical students with green carnation corsages before proceeding to the chapel with lighted candles, where they sang the musical version of the Florence Nightingale Pledge. Speaker during the ceremony was the Rev. Austin Carey, chaplain, who exhorted the students to follow their faithful calling.

Pointing out that Jesus valued not only man's soul, but also his body, the Rev. Fr. Carey reminded the group that "He manifested again the dignity and the sacredness of man's human nature, of his physical body." The speaker then ennumerated the many instances when Jesus ministered to men's bodies, saving sight and hearing and curing diseases and insanity. The speaker also emphasized, by retelling the story of Christ's transfiguration, that in every man "there is a spark of that divinity."

Noble Work

"You students have today finished the first phase of your training," the Rev. Fr. Carey continued. "You have chosen a noble work, something more than a profession. It is imbued with the ideals held before you . . . But even the noblest vocation can be debased by the lack or loss of ideals." He then reminded them of Judas Iscariot, who somewhere lost his ideals. "You, too," the speaker said, "can betray a noble profession for 30 pieces of silver."

The Rev. Fr. Carey then told the students the story of a Baptist mission hospital in the Chinese city of Wuchow, where the superintendent, a young doctor named Wallace, was arrested on "trumped-up charges."

Sacrifice and Love

Like Christ, the speaker continued, it could be said of Wallace "he went about doing good." Not a single citizen in Wuchow joined in the Communist officials' denunciation of him. After his death in prison last February, a Catholic missionary in Wuchow, who had known Wallace well, wrote the New York Times, explaining that his was "a vocation of sacrifice and love."

The speaker concluded by exhorting the students before him to "hold fast to the Christian doctrines that have been taught you . . . Then, perhaps, when your work is finished it can be said of you, as it was said of the Saviour, and as it was said of Dr. Wallace, she 'went about doing good.'"

Following the benediction, a tea attended by parents and friends, was served in honor of the newly capped students.

Child Celebrates Fourth Birthday

Miss Madeline Tatarzewski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tatarzewski of 75 West Union street, celebrated her fourth birthday March 11 with a party at her home. Decorations were in yellow and purple, games were played, and photographs of the children were taken.

Attending the party were JoAnn and Karen Tucker, Peter and Francis Tatarzewski, Sharon Costa, Henry Houghtaling, Diane Haslam, Karen Ann Albright, Herbert Wolff, Mary Tatarzewski, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Tucker, Mrs. Frank Tatarzewski, Mrs. Jacob Schneider and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Tucker.

Spring Dance Planned

A spring dance, sponsored by St. Peter's Parish Social Club, will be held in the school hall Saturday, March 31. Refreshments and entertainment will be provided. Dancing, to the music of Speed Scherer's orchestra, will be from 9 p. m. to 1 a. m. Tickets may be obtained at the rectory, or from club members.

Mrs. Wynkoop Helps

The name of Mrs. Ellen Wynkoop of 14 Henry street should have been included in the list of Red Cross financial campaign workers for the 11th Ward which was published in Monday's Freeman. Mrs. Eugene Cornwell is chairman of 11th Ward workers.

New York Author Was Guest Here

Pauline Woodruff Titus, author of "How to Conquer Shyness," and "How to Conquer Loneliness," returned to New York today after a short stay at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

A frequent visitor to Kingston, Miss Titus has done much work on her books while staying here, and is at present working on a third "self-help" book, the nature of which she is not at present ready to disclose. She is "very fond" of Kingston and this area, and has talked to local persons and made use of the Kingston City Library in gathering material for her work. Her home is at 317 West 45th street in New York. In addition to her writing, she conducts a home study course in conquering shyness, and is a lecturer on that and related subjects.

Though the tendency may be to straight hair, remember hair itself hasn't enough body to stand up to a really smart hair do without falling into wisps. If your hair isn't naturally wavy, a permanent wave is your answer.

You must have a permanent wave — but the right permanent wave — one of the soft natural ones. It gives your hair the necessary background for arranging and staying arranged.

Kingston Footlighters Renew Aquaintance With Vaughn Monroe at St. Patrick's Ball

Shop notes on show business were the highlights Friday night for a group of Kingston Footlighters when they found their way backstage to renew acquaintance with an old friend, Vaughn Monroe of radio, record, and movie fame, here in Kingston for the annual St. Patrick's Ball. The group, which was on hand to meet the maestro when he arrived at the municipal auditorium, revived the "good old days" during breathers and intermissions throughout the evening. Immediately following the ball the Vaughn Monroe Caravan, and the Kingston Footlighters were guests of the Embassy Restaurant.

Sgt. Alva H. McGinnis, station commander of the Ulster and Sullivan Counties Army and Air Force Recruiting Service, had more than one pleasant memory to recall during the visit. As an Army and Air Force public relations officer in the Rome, Utica, and Oneonta area, he and Vaughn Monroe had teamed together for U.S.O. shows there.

Back from War

Sergeant McGinnis also recalled the travelling team of enlisted men just back from the Far East, on tour of the country. Mr. Monroe took them under his wing, made them "stars" of one of his many shows, and treated them like the royalty they were. And there was the more dramatic meeting overseas, in the days when "South Pacific" was more than the name of a smash hit musical, and Vaughn Monroe was working tirelessly to lighten the task of men in that area. Many of these tales were vividly recounted when Sergeant McGinnis interviewed the singer for his "Pass in Parade" radio show on Saturday.

Older Memories

George Walsh's friendship with Mr. Monroe dates back further. Mr. Walsh, who is currently starring with the George Walsh Trio at the Embassy Restaurant, and is author of the area's theme song, In The Land of Rip Van Winkle, was born and brought up in Framingham, Mass., not a stone's throw from Vaughn Monroe's The Meadows. Both musicians were members of the musician's locals in Boston and Framingham, and both worked through the Jack Marschard circuit in the days when Vaughn Monroe was hardly famous. Ziggy Talent, the Caravan's novelty singer and star saxophone player, not only grew up in the same town with Mr. Walsh, but at one time, both shared romantic difficulties dating the same girl.

Miss Nan Merriman Shows Charm, Skill During Local Concert

A dark-haired mezzo-soprano, Miss Nan Merriman, with an easy charm, a sense of theatre, and an excellent vocal technique was guest artist last night at the final Community Concert Association offering of the '50-'51 season. Accompanist for Miss Merriman was Ralph Linsley, an accomplished artist in his own right, who played two solo selections; Nocturne in D flat major by Faure, and Debussy's Prelude, "Pour le Piano."

Miss Merriman, who seems to project her entire personality into each song, handled her voice remarkably well. It is a well-trained voice, and Miss Merriman has learned her technique to the bottom of her fingertips. Some types of music she sings uncommonly well, as Falla's dramatic Pollo from Seven Spanish Popular Songs, and Gavotte (Me voici dans son boudoir), "Mignon" by Thomas. But Miss Merriman, who is a full bodied mezzo-soprano, falls down when she attempts the lighter, more lilting melodies, and the folk songs. Her voice has, moreover, a certain sense of strain and harshness in the upper registers. This was particularly evident in opening selections: Down by the Sally Gardens, The Kerry Dance, and The Londonderry Air.

During the program Miss Merriman introduced two unexpected songs as tribute to two composers she spotted in the audience. The first was Dark Lady by Henry Cowell, whose summer home is in Shady; the second was Sam written by Bard College's Paul Nordoff. Encore selections included Leonard Bernstein's humorous I Hate Music, and that haunting and lovely Mexican folk song, Estrellita. For her intermission encore, Miss Merriman chose the newest Parisian waltz, a memory of her recent European tour, Voyage a Paris.

Taken as a whole, last night's concert program swept over a wide range, wide enough certainly, to satisfy even the most diversified music tastes. It was a case of the charmingly ridiculous, (Dougherty's Declaration of Independence) and the dramatic, (Romance de Solita by Pittaluga.) Operatic, romantic, and folk music fell side by side. Above all, it was an interesting program, well thought out, and, for the most part, beautifully sung.

Sorority Sees Private Showing Of Bridal Wear

Members of Nu Phi Mu Sorority enjoyed an entirely different type of meeting last Tuesday, when they met for a private showing of bridal wear. They also heard an informal talk on the planning which is the necessary prelude to the perfect wedding.

An experienced bridal consultant, Mrs. Marie K. Barley, told her audience "careful planning is the key to composure on the wedding day itself." She explained that in three months even the most formal wedding can be planned, although, "it's been done in much less time too."

After the date has been set, she said, there are many details which can be planned well in advance of the ceremony. Her resume stretched from consultation with the officiating clergyman, through invitation lists, arrangements with the florist, photographer, and musicians, the wedding party's clothes, beauty appointments, final fittings, and the wedding rehearsal. She also mentioned the order of the processional, recessional, and the grouping at the altar. Mrs. Barley's talk was concluded with a question and answer period.

During the fashion showing, Mrs. Barley emphasized the importance of perfect fitting. "Each girl," she said, "is an individual, and may have an individual figure problem."

As each bride's or bridesmaid's gown appeared, the speaker described the material, ornamentation, and style, recommending princess lines for the full figure, and bouffant effects for the slim.

At the short business meeting which followed, sorority members made plans for their coming card party. Tea was also served, with Miss Mary Bowcock pouring.

Eating of sausage was prohibited by the Roman emperor, Constantine the Great, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Mrs. Kissling Is Speaker at Nurses' Dinner Thursday

A dinner in honor of Mrs. Eugenia Kissling, guest speaker, marked the regular monthly meeting of the Ulster County Division of Practical Nurses, Inc., held Thursday at Judie's. Mrs. Kissling, who is senior medical social worker for the Prevention of Blindness, spoke on that subject.

The essentials of eye hygiene, Mrs. Kissling explained, are plenty of rest, fresh air, and relaxation. By promoting better health, persons in turn promote better sight. Styes, inflammation of the eyelid, and corneal ulcers may be caused in part by faulty nutrition. The speaker advised a diet of nourishing foods to insure a healthy body, and healthy eyes.

Good reading habits, Mrs. Kissling continued, are also essential. These include adequate light, holding books and newspapers at a comfortable distance from the eyes, and avoiding small print and reading for long periods of time. Reading in bed, she added, is not harmful under favorable conditions. Those reading in bed should sit upright, and should have sufficient light.

Some eye defects, as myopia, are aggravated by poor posture, Mrs. Kissling pointed out, while middle age can bring certain eye problems which often go unrecognized until they become serious. An eye physician should be consulted regularly. On the other hand, there are some difficulties which glasses cannot correct.

Good lighting, Mrs. Kissling said, is essential to sight. It should be free from glare, and dark surfaces, which absorb light, should be avoided. The group, which was on hand to meet the maestro when he arrived at the municipal auditorium, revived the "good old days" during breathers and intermissions throughout the evening. Immediately following the ball the Vaughn Monroe Caravan, and the Kingston Footlighters were guests of the Embassy Restaurant.

Sgt. Alva H. McGinnis, station commander of the Ulster and Sullivan Counties Army and Air Force Recruiting Service, had more than one pleasant memory to recall during the visit. As an Army and Air Force public relations officer in the Rome, Utica, and Oneonta area, he and Vaughn Monroe had teamed together for U.S.O. shows there.

Back from War

Sergeant McGinnis also recalled the travelling team of enlisted men just back from the Far East, on tour of the country. Mr. Monroe took them under his wing, made them "stars" of one of his many shows, and treated them like the royalty they were. And there was the more dramatic meeting overseas, in the days when "South Pacific" was more than the name of a smash hit musical, and Vaughn Monroe was working tirelessly to lighten the task of men in that area. Many of these tales were vividly recounted when Sergeant McGinnis interviewed the singer for his "Pass in Parade" radio show on Saturday.

Older Memories

George Walsh's friendship with Mr. Monroe dates back further. Mr. Walsh, who is currently starring with the George Walsh Trio at the Embassy Restaurant, and is author of the area's theme song, In The Land of Rip Van Winkle, was born and brought up in Framingham, Mass., not a stone's throw from Vaughn Monroe's The Meadows. Both musicians were members of the musician's locals in Boston and Framingham, and both worked through the Jack Marschard circuit in the days when Vaughn Monroe was hardly famous. Ziggy Talent, the Caravan's novelty singer and star saxophone player, not only grew up in the same town with Mr. Walsh, but at one time, both shared romantic difficulties dating the same girl.

Miss Nan Merriman Shows Charm, Skill During Local Concert

A dark-haired mezzo-soprano, Miss Nan Merriman, with an easy charm, a sense of theatre, and an excellent vocal technique was guest artist last night at the final Community Concert Association offering of the '50-'51 season. Accompanist for Miss Merriman was Ralph Linsley, an accomplished artist in his own right, who played two solo selections; Nocturne in D flat major by Faure, and Debussy's Prelude, "Pour le Piano."

Miss Merriman, who seems to project her entire personality into each song, handled her voice remarkably well. It is a well-trained voice, and Miss Merriman has learned her technique to the bottom of her fingertips. Some types of music she sings uncommonly well, as Falla's dramatic Pollo from Seven Spanish Popular Songs, and Gavotte (Me voici dans son boudoir), "Mignon" by Thomas. But Miss Merriman, who is a full bodied mezzo-soprano, falls down when she attempts the lighter, more lilting melodies, and the folk songs. Her voice has, moreover, a certain sense of strain and harshness in the upper registers. This was particularly evident in opening selections: Down by the Sally Gardens, The Kerry Dance, and The Londonderry Air.

During the program Miss Merriman introduced two unexpected songs as tribute to two composers she spotted in the audience. The first was Dark Lady by Henry Cowell, whose summer home is in Shady; the second was Sam written by Bard College's Paul Nordoff. Encore selections included Leonard Bernstein's humorous I Hate Music, and that haunting and lovely Mexican folk song, Estrellita. For her intermission encore, Miss Merriman chose the newest Parisian waltz, a memory of her recent European tour, Voyage a Paris.

Taken as a whole, last night's concert program swept over a wide range, wide enough certainly, to satisfy even the most diversified music tastes. It was a case of the charmingly ridiculous, (Dougherty's Declaration of Independence) and the dramatic, (Romance de Solita by Pittaluga.) Operatic, romantic, and folk music fell side by side. Above all, it was an interesting program, well thought out, and, for the most part, beautifully sung.

Sorority Sees Private Showing Of Bridal Wear

Members of Nu Phi Mu Sorority enjoyed an entirely different type of meeting last Tuesday, when they met for a private showing of bridal wear. They also heard an informal talk on the planning which is the necessary prelude to the perfect wedding.

An experienced bridal consultant, Mrs. Marie K. Barley, told her audience "careful planning is the key to composure on the wedding day itself." She explained that in three months even the most formal wedding can be planned, although, "it's been done in much less time too."

After the date has been set, she said, there are many details which can be planned well in advance of the ceremony. Her resume stretched from consultation with the officiating clergyman, through invitation lists, arrangements with the florist, photographer, and musicians, the wedding party's clothes, beauty appointments, final fittings, and the wedding rehearsal. She also mentioned the order of the processional, recessional, and the grouping at the altar. Mrs. Barley's talk was concluded with a question and answer period.

During the fashion showing, Mrs. Barley emphasized the importance of perfect fitting. "Each girl," she said, "is an individual, and may have an individual figure problem."

As each bride's or bridesmaid's gown appeared, the speaker described the material, ornamentation, and style, recommending princess lines for the full figure, and bouffant effects for the slim.

At the short business meeting which followed, sorority members made plans for their coming card party. Tea was also served, with Miss Mary Bowcock pouring.

Eating of sausage was prohibited by the Roman emperor, Constantine the Great, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Mrs. Kissling Is Speaker at Nurses' Dinner Thursday

A dinner in honor of Mrs. Eugenia Kissling, guest speaker, marked the regular monthly meeting of the Ulster County Division of Practical Nurses, Inc., held Thursday at Judie's. Mrs. Kissling, who is senior medical social worker for the Prevention of Blindness, spoke on that subject.

The essentials of eye hygiene, Mrs. Kissling explained, are plenty of rest, fresh air, and relaxation. By promoting better health, persons in turn promote better sight. Styes, inflammation of the eyelid, and corneal ulcers may be caused in part by faulty nutrition. The speaker advised a diet of nourishing foods to insure a healthy body, and healthy eyes.

Good reading habits, Mrs. Kissling continued, are also essential. These include adequate light, holding books and newspapers at a comfortable distance from the eyes, and avoiding small print and reading for long periods of time. Reading in bed, she added, is not harmful under favorable conditions. Those reading in bed should sit upright, and should have sufficient light.

Some eye defects, as myopia, are aggravated by poor posture, Mrs. Kissling pointed out, while middle age can bring certain eye problems which often go unrecognized until they become serious. An eye physician should be consulted regularly. On the other hand, there are some difficulties which glasses cannot correct.

Good lighting, Mrs. Kissling said, is essential to sight. It should be free from glare, and dark surfaces, which absorb light, should be avoided. Those wearing glasses should take care of them, by washing them daily, and using a soft cloth to clean them. It is necessary to adjust glasses' frames frequently, the speaker continued, and eyes should be examined every two years.

In discussing a specific eye disease, glaucoma, Mrs. Kissling told the group it may result in the loss of sight if not controlled, although many cases can be arrested, and all cases should be treated adequately. A disease which often occurs during middle age, (between the 40th and 50th year) acute forms of glaucoma are marked by the sudden onset of pain, headache, and nausea. Sometimes loss of sight comes gradually, and if eye trouble continues, a doctor specializing in eye diseases should be consulted, Mrs. Kissling added.

Those wishing further information should write to the Prevention of Blindness, Commission for the Blind, Department of Social Welfare, 205 East 42 street, New York, Mrs. Kissling concluded.

Kingston, N. Y., Mar. 20—Swing into spring with new coiffure smartness, styled in the latest mode and skillfully adapted to your facial contours. Let Mickey show you the new spring "musts" in perfect hair grooming.

Though the tendency may be to straight hair, remember hair itself hasn't enough body to stand up to a really smart hair do without falling into wisps. If your hair isn't naturally wavy, a permanent wave is your answer.

You must have a permanent wave — but the right permanent wave — one of the soft natural ones. It gives your hair the necessary background for arranging and staying arranged.

The Rev. Austin Carey Exhorts Students To Be Faithful to Nursing Profession

A colorful and impressive ceremony, when 22 members of the class of '53 were capped by senior and intermediate class members, were held at the Benedictine Hospital Saturday afternoon. Seniors presented pre-clinical students with green carnation corsages before proceeding to the chapel with lighted candles, where they sang the musical version of the Florence Nightingale Pledge. Speaker during the ceremony was the Rev. Austin Carey, chaplain, who exhorted the students to follow their faithful calling.

Pointing out that Jesus valued not only man's soul, but also his body, the Rev. Fr. Carey reminded the group that "He manifested again the dignity and the sacredness of man's human nature, of his physical body." The speaker then ennumerated the many instances when Jesus ministered to men's bodies, saving sight and hearing and curing diseases and insanity. The speaker also emphasized, by retelling the story of Christ's transfiguration, that in every man "there is a spark of that divinity."

Noble Work

"You students have today finished the first phase of your training," the Rev. Fr. Carey continued. "You have chosen a noble work, something more than a profession. It is imbued with the ideals held before you . . . But even the noblest vocation can be debased by the lack or loss of ideals." He then reminded them of Judas Iscariot, who somewhere lost his ideals. "You, too," the speaker said, "can betray a noble profession for 30 pieces of silver."

The Rev. Fr. Carey then told the students the story of a Baptist mission hospital in the Chinese city of Wuchow, where the superintendent, a young doctor named Wallace, was arrested on "trumped-up charges."

Sacrifice and Love

Like Christ, the speaker continued, it could be said of Wallace "he went about doing good." Not a single citizen in Wuchow joined in the Communist officials' denunciation of him. After his death in prison last February, a Catholic missionary in Wuchow, who had known Wallace well, wrote the New York Times, explaining that his was "a vocation of sacrifice and love."

The speaker concluded by exhorting the students before him to "hold fast to the Christian doctrines that have been taught you . . . Then, perhaps, when your work is finished it can be said of you, as it was said of the Saviour, and as it was said of Dr. Wallace, she 'went about doing good.'"

Following the benediction, a tea attended by parents and friends, was served in honor of the newly capped students.

New York Author Was Guest Here

Pauline Woodruff Titus, author of "How to Conquer Shyness," and "How to Conquer Loneliness," returned to New York today after a short stay at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

A frequent visitor to Kingston, Miss Titus has done much work on her books while staying here, and is at present working on a third "self-help" book, the nature of which she is not at present ready to disclose. She is "very fond" of Kingston and this area, and has talked to local persons and made use of the Kingston City Library in gathering material for her work. Her home is at 317 West 45th street in New York. In addition to her writing, she conducts a home study course in conquering shyness, and is a lecturer on that and related subjects.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Sound (?) Doubles Can Boomerang

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

When four spades was bid against him in today's hand, West took it as a personal affront. He could hardly believe his ears, but he doubled with vim, vigor, and vitality. The outcome took a little of the starch out of him.

West opened the king of diamonds and shifted to the king of clubs on seeing the dummy. He then sat back, wondering how many tricks he could collect besides a trump, two or three hearts, and perhaps a club or two.

Declarer won the second trick with dummy's ace of clubs and toyed with the idea of leading the jack of spades just in case East had both of the missing spades and happened to be foolish enough to cover the jack. He finally decided that West probably had a trump trick and that even if East had both of the missing trumps, he would play low and there would be a terrible guess.

Hence declarer returned a club from dummy and ruffed in his own hand. Next he laid down the ace of spades, hoping to catch the king. When that card failed to drop, he ruffed a diamond in dummy and ruffed a club to return. He then ruffed his last diamond in dummy and ruffed dummy's last club. This eliminated clubs and diamonds from both the South and the North hand.

With the stage thus set, South led a trump and gave the lead to West. That worthy was then hooked. If he led the last diamond, dummy would ruff while South discarded a heart. If West returned a heart, South would easily make two tricks in that suit.

Boy, 8, 'Registers' For Call From Navy

The navy wouldn't have to look far for recruits if young men of enlistment age had the same love for ships as Michael Appollonia, Catskill first grader.

He called at the Selective Service office recently and announced he wanted to register.

The clerk obliged Mike, who is eight years old, by letting him print his name and address. "When do I leave," he asked as he returned the pencil.

"We'll send for you," the clerk replied.

Why did he prefer the navy? Well, Mike wants to be a gunner's mate on a ship.

While he's awaiting notice to report, Mike will continue with his studies in the first grade at St. Patrick's School.

The youngster's brother and sister-in-law are Kingstonians, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Appollonia of 81 Hasbrouck avenue.

Little Mike may have inherited his love of the sea from Anthony and another brother, Arthur, both of whom were in the maritime service.

No Ceiling on Flowers

Washington, March 20 (AP)—Senator Cain (R-Wash.) said today the floral industry probably will be exempted from price ceilings by the end of this week. Cain told a reporter his information came from the Office of Price Stabilization but he did not identify his source further. Prices of flowers were not controlled in World War 2.

There were no children born in the month of January before the year 700 B. C. The month of January did not exist until that time.

Chamber to Show Local Articles

Letters were mailed by the Chamber of Commerce today inviting Kingston manufacturers to exhibit locally made articles at the Chamber's booth at the Lions Club Exposition at the state armory here April 3 to 7.

President Lawrence J. MacAvery of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce said that the exhibit is a part of the Chamber's program to recognize local established industries "and the important part they play in the economy of our city."

MacAvery stated that several unusual items will be on display and that the public will be interested in seeing the wide variety of articles manufactured here.

Manufacturers taking part in the exhibit will be charged a small fee to cover the cost of uniform identification cards and decorative material.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Sound (?) Doubles Can Boomerang

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

When four spades was bid against him in today's hand, West took it as a personal affront. He could hardly believe his ears, but he doubled with vim, vigor, and vitality. The outcome took a little of the starch out of him.

West opened the king of diamonds and shifted to the king of clubs on seeing the dummy. He then sat back, wondering how many tricks he could collect besides a trump, two or three hearts, and perhaps a club or two.

Declarer won the second trick with dummy's ace of clubs and toyed with the idea of leading the jack of spades just in case East had both of the missing spades and happened to be foolish enough to cover the jack. He finally decided that West probably had a trump trick and that even if East had both of the missing trumps, he would play low and there would be a terrible guess.

Hence declarer returned a club from dummy and ruffed in his own hand. Next he laid down the ace of spades, hoping to catch the king. When that card failed to drop, he ruffed a diamond in dummy and ruffed a club to return. He then ruffed his last diamond in dummy and ruffed dummy's last club. This eliminated clubs and diamonds from both the South and the North hand.

With the stage thus set, South led a trump and gave the lead to West. That worthy was then hooked. If he led the last diamond, dummy would ruff while South discarded a heart. If West returned a heart, South would easily make two tricks in that suit.

Boy, 8, 'Registers' For Call From Navy

The navy wouldn't have to look far for recruits if young men of enlistment age had the same love for ships as Michael Appollonia, Catskill first grader.

He called at the Selective Service office recently and announced he wanted to register.

The clerk obliged Mike, who is eight years old, by letting him print his name and address. "When do I leave," he asked as he returned the pencil.

"We'll send for you," the clerk replied.

Why did he prefer the navy? Well, Mike wants to be a gunner's mate on a ship.

While he's awaiting notice to report, Mike will continue with his studies in the first grade at St. Patrick's School.

The youngster's brother and sister-in-law are Kingstonians, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Appollonia of 81 Hasbrouck avenue.

Little Mike may have inherited his love of the sea from Anthony and another brother, Arthur, both of whom were in the maritime service.

Purim at Temple

The story of Esther will be read in connection with the celebration of Purim on Wednesday at 7:45 p. m. at the Temple Emanuel. The public and especially children are invited.

He's a Real Planter

El Dorado, Ark. (AP)—Sid Pepper, 67, has planted by hand 40,000 pine seedlings—by his own count—on his 140 acre farm in Union county, in south Arkansas, during the past four years.

Hi-Y Scrap Drive

The Bookwalter Chapter of Hi-Y will hold a series of scrap drives on March 27, 29 and 31 to augment the club's fund, from which the club has pledged this year $250 for the Y.M.C.A. annual drive, $250 for a scholarship and $150 to the Kingston Hospital building fund. Persons having scrap metal or old papers to donate to Hi-Y may arrange to have the material collected by calling James Young, telephone 41, or Clarence Correll, telephone 1100.

No Ceiling on Flowers

Washington, March 20 (AP)—Senator Cain (R-Wash.) said today the floral industry probably will be exempted from price ceilings by the end of this week. Cain told a reporter his information came from the Office of Price Stabilization but he did not identify his source further. Prices of flowers were not controlled in World War 2.

There were no children born in the month of January before the year 700 B. C. The month of January did not exist until that time.

Chamber to Show Local Articles

Letters were mailed by the Chamber of Commerce today inviting Kingston manufacturers to exhibit locally made articles at the Chamber's booth at the Lions Club Exposition at the state armory here April 3 to 7.

President Lawrence J. MacAvery of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce said that the exhibit is a part of the Chamber's program to recognize local established industries "and the important part they play in the economy of our city."

MacAvery stated that several unusual items will be on display and that the public will be interested in seeing the wide variety of articles manufactured here.

Manufacturers taking part in the exhibit will be charged a small fee to cover the cost of uniform identification cards and decorative material.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Sound (?) Doubles Can Boomerang

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

When four spades was bid against him in today's hand, West took it as a personal affront. He could hardly believe his ears, but he doubled with vim, vigor, and vitality. The outcome took a little of the starch out of him.

West opened the king of diamonds and shifted to the king of clubs on seeing the dummy. He then sat back, wondering how many tricks he could collect besides a trump, two or three hearts, and perhaps a club or two.

Declarer won the second trick with dummy's ace of clubs and toyed with the idea of leading the jack of spades just in case East had both of the missing spades and happened to be foolish enough to cover the jack. He finally decided that West probably had a trump trick and that even if East had both of the missing trumps, he would play low and there would be a terrible guess.

Hence declarer returned a club from dummy and ruffed in his own hand. Next he laid down the ace of spades, hoping to catch the king. When that card failed to drop, he ruffed a diamond in dummy and ruffed a club to return. He then ruffed his last diamond in dummy and ruffed dummy's last club. This eliminated clubs and diamonds from both the South and the North hand.

With the stage thus set, South led a trump and gave the lead to West. That worthy was then hooked. If he led the last diamond, dummy would ruff while South discarded a heart. If West returned a heart, South would easily make two tricks in that suit.

He called at the Selective Service office recently and announced he wanted to register.

The clerk obliged Mike, who is eight years old, by letting him print his name and address. "When do I leave," he asked as he returned the pencil.

"We'll send for you," the clerk replied.

Why did he prefer the navy? Well, Mike wants to be a gunner's mate on a ship.

While he's awaiting notice to report, Mike will continue with his studies in the first grade at St. Patrick's School.

The youngster's brother and sister-in-law are Kingstonians, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Appollonia of 81 Hasbrouck avenue.

Little Mike may have inherited his love of the sea from Anthony and another brother, Arthur, both of whom were in the maritime service.

No Ceiling on Flowers

Washington, March 20 (AP)—Senator Cain (R-Wash.) said today the floral industry probably will be exempted from price ceilings by the end of this week. Cain told a reporter his information came from the Office of Price Stabilization but he did not identify his source further. Prices of flowers were not controlled in World War 2.

There were no children born in the month of January before the year 700 B. C. The month of January did not exist until that time.

Chamber to Show Local Articles

Letters were mailed by the Chamber of Commerce today inviting Kingston manufacturers to exhibit locally made articles at the Chamber's booth at the Lions Club Exposition at the state armory here April 3 to 7.

President Lawrence J. MacAvery of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce said that the exhibit is a part of the Chamber's program to recognize local established industries "and the important part they play in the economy of our city."

MacAvery stated that several unusual items will be on display and that the public will be interested in seeing the wide variety of articles manufactured here.

Manufacturers taking part in the exhibit will be charged a small fee to cover the cost of uniform identification cards and decorative material.

Sue Heins Sets All-Time Woman's Bowling Record With 289 Single

Has 683 Series; Rolls Thirteen Strikes in Row

Beats Former 279 Held by Dot Flemings

Sue Heins, one of Kingston's star keglerettes of the future, set a new all-time Kingston high single record of 289 for women bowlers in last night's Women's Major rolling at the Bowlodrome.

Miss Heins had other scores of 212 and 182 for a 683, the third highest series ever rolled in Kingston.

Mrs. Rose Schatzel holds the all-time mark with 697 and also has a 696 to her credit.

Miss Heins' 289 eclipses the former high of 279 rolled by Dot Flemings in a summer mixed league three years ago.

Five open frames—four misses, two in each of the first two games and a second game split—deprived Miss Heins of a possible "700" series. She carried a 161 average going into last night's action.

13 Strikes in Row

A stubborn 5-pin tap robbed the tall, angular keglerette of a shot at the coveted "300" score. After striking out for 182 in the middle set, Miss Heins rolled 10 straight strikes in the third game for a string of 13 in succession before she left the 5-pin. She converted the spare and filled with 10 for the new all-time record.

Her 683 overshadowed the field by a wide margin, of course, last night and was another oustanding bowling chore by a young star who seems destined for a spot in the city's "Big Five."

Runnerup Elizabeth Schoonmaker, who is knocking off "500" triples at a steady pace of late, cracked 555 for the runnerup spot. Elizabeth Bruck posted 214—523; Rose Schatzel 499; Miriam Posner 495; Marge Jansen 490; Charlotte Lapine 489; Jo Smith 478; Kay Brodhead 471 and Betty Bailey 468.

Inter-City Golden Gloves Uncover Two Good Heavyweight Prospects

New York, March 20 (AP)—The professional ring world, always on the lookout for a good new heavyweight, cast covetous glances today in the direction of Golden Glovers Norvel Lee and Michael Maye.

These two strong-knuckled lads led a stirring rally that gave New York's championship team a fourth straight 8-8 draw last night with Chicago's hand-picked gladiators in the annual Inter-City matches at Madison Square Garden.

Neither is a Joe Louis, the cold-visaged chiller who came out of the Detroit auto plants in the early 30s to win Golden Gloves fame and become one of the great heavyweight champions of all time. But these are lean times that would be satisfied with something less than the Brown Bomber.

Lee is a Howard University graduate who fights out of Washington, D. C. At 26, he's not young to launch a pro career but he apparently has a lot of good licks left in his system.

With Maye it's different. He's 20, strong and eager. He's a roofer by trade and might be lured by the prospect of easy gold in the ring.

Maye gave a trenmendous performance in winning the climactic bout last night before a crowd of a little more than 9,000 at the Garden. Rocked by one of Ernest Fann's right hands in the second round and sent reeling into the ropes, the bloodied Bronx roofer battled back to win the decision. He showed the kind of heart and punch that excite paying customers.

Lee, winning his second Inter-City assignment, outslugged Toxey Hall, a 22-year-old Chicago porter.

Third Straight For Ferrier

Jacksonville, Fla., March 20 (AP)—Big Jim Ferrier's steady golf game keeps paying him dividends of $2,000 a week.

The Australian-born professional had a comfortable margin of 11 strokes when he won the $10,000 Jacksonville Open yesterday with 272. He shot 68 each of the four days. He won a week earlier at Miami Beach and two weeks ago at St. Petersburg.

Ferrier's 16 under par 272 was a competitive record for the rolling 6,508-yard Hyde Park links.

Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago managed to keep Ferrier from displacing him as leading money winner of the year.

Mangrum shared second place with Jack Shields of Cedar Rapids, Ia. Each collected $1,200 for his 283 score. And Mangrum's cash brought his total for 1951 to $8,326. Ferrier's third straight $2,000 lifted him to $8,262.

Mosconi Upset In Greenleaf Play

Philadelphia, March 20 (AP)—World pocket billiard champion Willie Mosconi of Havertown, Pa., tries for his first victory in the second round of play in the Ralph Greenleaf Memorial tournament today.

Mosconi, upset yesterday 125-111 in 26 innings by Philadelphia district champ, Al Coslosky, meets Onofrio Lauri, New York city, in one of four matches today. Lauri, New York state champ, also lost an opening match, 125-74 in 14 innings to Joe Canton, Watervliet, N. Y.

Other winners yesterday were Chenier over Allen, 125-42 in 12 innings and Crane over Coslosky, 125-113 in 28 innings.

Amherst Captain

Amherst, Mass., March 20 (AP)—Robert G. McGrath of Freeport, N. Y., New England 177 pound champion, will captain the Amherst wrestling team next winter. Election of McGrath, also a half miler and football end, was reported yesterday. His brother John (Moose) captains Amherst's baseball team.

Bosox's Ted In Soup Again

Sarasota, Fla., March 20 (AP)—Next thing you know they'll be giving Ted Williams a saliva test.

Williams, left fielder for the Boston Red Sox and possibly the most misunderstood player in baseball, today denied that any moisture spewed from his mouth in an exhibition game at Tampa's Plant Field Sunday was meant for the fans.

"I did not spit at the fans," said Williams with emphasis. "I had something in my mouth and I just got rid of it on the ground."

Since yesterday there have been many versions of what happened in the game against Cincinnati.

At least six writers in the press box said they did not see Williams expectorate. One baseball official said he saw Williams look at the crowd, turn away and spit.

The official added that Williams had every right to spit. He had just been fanned twice in the same inning by the Reds' Ed Erautt.

Earlier in the game the fans booed Boston's $125,000 player when he failed to run out a ball hit to the pitcher. But when he hit a home run 380 feet from home plate to account for three runs in the fifth frame, the fans' Bronx cheers turned to legitimate applause. All Williams said as he crossed the plate was:

"What do you think of those silly fans?"

Veteran writers in Tampa feel that the entire incident has been magnified because Ted and some of the Boston writers do not see eye to eye.

Bee, Case and Meyer To Coach All Stars

Chicago, March 20 (AP)—Everett Case of North Carolina State has been named a co-coach of the Collegiate All-Star group which will meet the Harlem Globetrotters in a coast-to-coast basketball series beginning April 1.

Case joins Clair Bee of Long Island University and Ray Meyer of De Paul on the coaching staff for the first seven games of the tour. Two more coaches will be named to team with Bee and Mayer for the final two weeks of the series.

Abe Becker of New York University and Jim Slaughter of South Carolina are the only players named thus far for the 12-man collegiate squad.

Old Hurley, St. Peter's In Church Loop Finals

Old Hurley and St. Peter's the "Cinderella team" of the Church League Shaughnessy playoffs moved into the finals of their respective divisions, with impressive victories last night at the MJM gym.

Old Hurley led all the way to turn back St. Mark's, 38-27, while St. Peter's, who were undefeated in the regular season, overpowered a good St. Mark's quintet, 59 to 46.

St. Mary's and Old Hurley meet in the Junior finals tonight, while St. Peter's will eventually face the winner of tonight's semi-final contest between St. Mary's and St. Joseph's.

Smith High Scorer

Paul Smith led St. Peter's with 17 points as his club erased a 13-12 quarter deficit to move ahead 28-20 at halftime. Hutton and Farley shared 24 markers for the winners, while Jackson hit for 19 and Harris had 11 for the losers.

Meyers was the bellweather of the Old Hurley squad which started moving toward victory after a 8-8 quarter deadlock. He tossed in a dozen points, while Pilz and Hickey shared 17. Jackson's 13 paced St. Mark's, with Taylor tossing in 11.

Training Camp News in Brief

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 20 (AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics face former teammate Bill McCahan in today's exhibition baseball game against the Brooklyn Dodgers.

McCahan, on the comeback trail, hurled a no-hit game for the Athletics against the Senators in 1947. He is scheduled to take over the Dodgers' hurling duties after Ralph Branca has his turn on the mound.

For the A's Manager Jimmy Dykes has nominated Bobby Shantz and Carl Scheib to take care of the pitching.

Feller Confident

Los Angeles, March 20 (AP)—Bob Feller had another exhibition defeat on his record today, but the Cleveland Indians' ace hurler didn't take it too seriously.

Bob gave up three hits for two runs in his first two innings yesterday as the Pittsburgh Pirates won, 4-2 but he finished by blanking all comers in the third, fourth and fifth.

Rookie righthander Gerald Fahr served the Pirates the deciding pitches. Ralph Kiner belted him for a homer in the sixth and John Merson slammed another fourbagger in the eighth.

Until yesterday, the Indians had averaged nine runs per game in nine exhibitions.

Yanks Face Chisox

Glendale, Calif., March 20 (AP)—The Chicago White Sox today challenge the New York Yankees right in the home town of Manager Casey Stengel.

Glendale's small park is expected to be overflowing with 5,000 of Stengel's neighbors. Manager Paul Richards of the Sox plans to use Rookie pitchers Harold Brown of Seattle and Marv Rotblatt, former University of Illinois twirler.

Mantle Streaking

Los Angeles, March 20 (AP)—Mickey Mantle, the rookie 19-year-old from Commerce, Okla., has enthused veteran and rookie alike in the New York Yankee training camp. The switch hitting and speed of the Yankee youngster has everybody in camp talking.

On Saturday, Mickey socked a mighty homer that carried approximately 420 feet. Last night in the Yanks' 6-3 loss to Hollywood of the Pacific Coast League, he got a single in his only at bat to boost his average to .571—12 for 21.

Jansen Still Hot

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 20 (AP)—Larry Jansen appears to be as effective a pitcher this year as he was a year ago for the New York Giants.

He worked five scoreless innings against the Boston Red Sox yesterday in the Giants' 2 to 1 defeat and yielded only one hit. Altogether he has pitched a total of 11 innings to date and allowed only one run.

Snider Clicks

Vero Beach, Fla., March 20 (AP) Duke Snider is belting the ball hard for the Brooklyn Dodgers. The Brook outfielder got three in four at bats yesterday as the Dodgers whipped the Athletics, 5-1. This made his average .478 on 11 hits in eight games.

Players Demand Voice in Naming Happy's Successor

Lakeland, Fla., March 20 (AP)—The rank and file of the major leagues—the players—will demand that club owners give them a voice in picking a new baseball commissioner.

The unprecedented proposal comes publicly from pitcher Freddie Hutchinson of the Detroit Tigers, official player-representative of the American League.

Sharply critical of owner policy, Hutchinson said yesterday that the owners will be petitioned in July to give the players a part in selecting a successor to A. B. (Happy) Chandler.

And if the club owners don't agree to this, Hutchinson said the players may hire their own commissioner to represent them on the official Baseball Council.

The players now have two representatives, one from each league, serving on the Council. Their status is merely advisory.

"The first name suggested by players for their own commissioner was Happy Chandler," said Hutchinson.

The Detroit pitcher said most players favored retention of Chandler. The "average player" believed Chandler was fired by the owners because he did things for baseball players that were never done before, Hutch said.

She converted the spare and filled with 10 for the new all-time record.

Her 683 overshadowed the field by a wide margin, of course, last night and was another oustanding bowling chore by a young star who seems destined for a spot in the city's "Big Five."

The certificate of incorporation for the new organization was drawn up at a meeting yesterday and Addison Jones has been named temporary chairman.

The incorporation has been formed with a capital stock of $30,000.

Inter-City Golden Gloves Uncover Two Good Heavyweight Prospects

New York, March 20 (AP)—The professional ring world, always on the lookout for a good new heavyweight, cast covetous glances today in the direction of Golden Glovers Norvel Lee and Michael Maye.

These two strong-knuckled lads led a stirring rally that gave New York's championship team a fourth straight 8-8 draw last night with Chicago's hand-picked gladiators in the annual Inter-City matches at Madison Square Garden.

Neither is a Joe Louis, the cold-visaged chiller who came out of the Detroit auto plants in the early 30s to win Golden Gloves fame and become one of the great heavyweight champions of all time. But these are lean times that would be satisfied with something less than the Brown Bomber.

Lee is a Howard University graduate who fights out of Washington, D. C. At 26, he's not young to launch a pro career but he apparently has a lot of good licks left in his system.

With Maye it's different. He's 20, strong and eager. He's a roofer by trade and might be lured by the prospect of easy gold in the ring.

Maye gave a tremendous performance in winning the climactic bout last night before a crowd of a little more than 9,000 at the Garden. Rocked by one of Ernest Fann's right hands in the second round and sent reeling into the ropes, the bloodied Bronx roofer battled back to win the decision. He showed the kind of heart and punch that excite paying customers.

Third Straight For Ferrier

Jacksonville, Fla., March 20 (AP)—Big Jim Ferrier's steady golf game keeps paying him dividends of $2,000 a week.

The Australian-born professional had a comfortable margin of 11 strokes when he won the $10,000 Jacksonville Open yesterday with 272. He shot 68 each of the four days. He won a week earlier at Miami Beach and two weeks ago at St. Petersburg.

Ferrier's 16 under par 272 was a competitive record for the rolling 6,508-yard Hyde Park links.

Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago managed to keep Ferrier from displacing him as leading money winner of the year.

Mangrum shared second place with Jack Shields of Cedar Rapids, Ia. Each collected $1,200 for his 283 score. And Mangrum's cash brought his total for 1951 to $8,326. Ferrier's third straight $2,000 lifted him to $8,262.

Mosconi Upset In Greenleaf Play

Philadelphia, March 20 (AP)—World pocket billiard champion Willie Mosconi of Havertown, Pa., tries for his first victory in the second round of play in the Ralph Greenleaf Memorial tournament today.

Mosconi, upset yesterday 125-111 in 26 innings by Philadelphia district champ, Al Coslosky, meets Onofrio Lauri, New York city, in one of four matches today. Lauri, New York state champ, also lost an opening match, 125-74 in 14 innings to Joe Canton, Watervliet, N. Y.

Other winners yesterday were Chenier over Allen, 125-42 in 12 innings and Crane over Coslosky, 125-113 in 28 innings.

Amherst Captain

Amherst, Mass., March 20 (AP)—Robert G. McGrath of Freeport, N. Y., New England 177 pound champion, will captain the Amherst wrestling team next winter. Election of McGrath, also a half miler and football end, was reported yesterday. His brother John (Moose) captains Amherst's baseball team.

Bosox's Ted In Soup Again

Sarasota, Fla., March 20 (AP)—Next thing you know they'll be giving Ted Williams a saliva test.

Williams, left fielder for the Boston Red Sox and possibly the most misunderstood player in baseball, today denied that any moisture spewed from his mouth in an exhibition game at Tampa's Plant Field Sunday was meant for the fans.

"I did not spit at the fans," said Williams with emphasis. "I had something in my mouth and I just got rid of it on the ground."

Since yesterday there have been many versions of what happened in the game against Cincinnati.

At least six writers in the press box said they did not see Williams expectorate. One baseball official said he saw Williams look at the crowd, turn away and spit.

The official added that Williams had every right to spit. He had just been fanned twice in the same inning by the Reds' Ed Erautt.

Earlier in the game the fans booed Boston's $125,000 player when he failed to run out a ball hit to the pitcher. But when he hit a home run 380 feet from home plate to account for three runs in the fifth frame, the fans' Bronx cheers turned to legitimate applause. All Williams said as he crossed the plate was:

"What do you think of those silly fans?"

Veteran writers in Tampa feel that the entire incident has been magnified because Ted and some of the Boston writers do not see eye to eye.

Bee, Case and Meyer To Coach All Stars

Chicago, March 20 (AP)—Everett Case of North Carolina State has been named a co-coach of the Collegiate All-Star group which will meet the Harlem Globetrotters in a coast-to-coast basketball series beginning April 1.

Case joins Clair Bee of Long Island University and Ray Meyer of De Paul on the coaching staff for the first seven games of the tour. Two more coaches will be named to team with Bee and Mayer for the final two weeks of the series.

Abe Becker of New York University and Jim Slaughter of South Carolina are the only players named thus far for the 12-man collegiate squad.

Old Hurley and St. Peter's the "Cinderella team" of the Church League Shaughnessy playoffs moved into the finals of their respective divisions, with impressive victories last night at the MJM gym.

Old Hurley led all the way to turn back St. Mark's, 38-27, while St. Peter's, who were undefeated in the regular season, overpowered a good St. Mark's quintet, 59 to 46.

St. Mary's and Old Hurley meet in the Junior finals tonight, while St. Peter's will eventually face the winner of tonight's semi-final contest between St. Mary's and St. Joseph's.

Paul Smith led St. Peter's with 17 points as his club erased a 13-12 quarter deficit to move ahead 28-20 at halftime. Hutton and Farley shared 24 markers for the winners, while Jackson hit for 19 and Harris had 11 for the losers.

Meyers was the bellweather of the Old Hurley squad which started moving toward victory after a 8-8 quarter deadlock. He tossed in a dozen points, while Pilz and Hickey shared 17. Jackson's 13 paced St. Mark's, with Taylor tossing in 11.

Training Camp News in Brief

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 20 (AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics face former teammate Bill McCahan in today's exhibition baseball game against the Brooklyn Dodgers.

McCahan, on the comeback trail, hurled a no-hit game for the Athletics against the Senators in 1947. He is scheduled to take over the Dodgers' hurling duties after Ralph Branca has his turn on the mound.

For the A's Manager Jimmy Dykes has nominated Bobby Shantz and Carl Scheib to take care of the pitching.

Feller Confident

Los Angeles, March 20 (AP)—Bob Feller had another exhibition defeat on his record today, but the Cleveland Indians' ace hurler didn't take it too seriously.

Bob gave up three hits for two runs in his first two innings yesterday as the Pittsburgh Pirates won, 4-2 but he finished by blanking all comers in the third, fourth and fifth.

Rookie righthander Gerald Fahr served the Pirates the deciding pitches. Ralph Kiner belted him for a homer in the sixth and John Merson slammed another four-bagger in the eighth.

Until yesterday, the Indians had averaged nine runs per game in nine exhibitions.

Yanks Face Chisox

Glendale, Calif., March 20 (AP)—The Chicago White Sox today challenge the New York Yankees right in the home town of Manager Casey Stengel.

Glendale's small park is expected to be overflowing with 5,000 of Stengel's neighbors. Manager Paul Richards of the Sox plans to use Rookie pitchers Harold Brown of Seattle and Marv Rotblatt, former University of Illinois twirler.

Mantle Streaking

Los Angeles, March 20 (AP)—Mickey Mantle, the rookie 19-year-old from Commerce, Okla., has enthused veteran and rookie alike in the New York Yankee training camp. The switch hitting and speed of the Yankee youngster has everybody in camp talking.

On Saturday, Mickey socked a mighty homer that carried approximately 420 feet. Last night in the Yanks' 6-3 loss to Hollywood of the Pacific Coast League, he got a single in his only at bat to boost his average to .571—12 for 21.

Jansen Still Hot

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 20 (AP)—Larry Jansen appears to be as effective a pitcher this year as he was a year ago for the New York Giants.

He worked five scoreless innings against the Boston Red Sox yesterday in the Giants' 2 to 1 defeat and yielded only one hit. Altogether he has pitched a total of 11 innings to date and allowed only one run.

Snider Clicks

Vero Beach, Fla., March 20 (AP) Duke Snider is belting the ball hard for the Brooklyn Dodgers. The Brook outfielder got three in four at bats yesterday as the Dodgers whipped the Athletics, 5-1. This made his average .478 on 11 hits in eight games.

Players Demand Voice in Naming Happy's Successor

Lakeland, Fla., March 20 (AP)—The rank and file of the major leagues—the players—will demand that club owners give them a voice in picking a new baseball commissioner.

The unprecedented proposal comes publicly from pitcher Freddie Hutchinson of the Detroit Tigers, official player-representative of the American League.

Sharply critical of owner policy, Hutchinson said yesterday that the owners will be petitioned in July to give the players a part in selecting a successor to A. B. (Happy) Chandler.

And if the club owners don't agree to this, Hutchinson said the players may hire their own commissioner to represent them on the official Baseball Council.

The players now have two representatives, one from each league, serving on the Council. Their status is merely advisory.

"The first name suggested by players for their own commissioner was Happy Chandler," said Hutchinson.

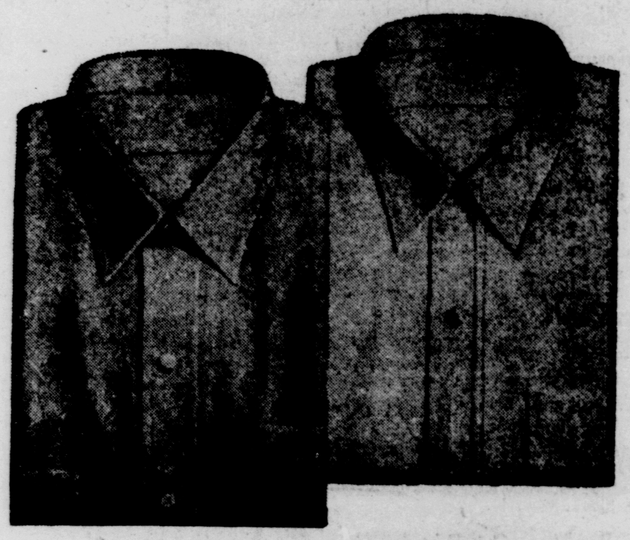

The Detroit pitcher said most players favored retention of Chandler. The "average player" believed Chandler was fired by the owners because he did things for baseball players that were never done before, Hutch said.

Sue Heins Sets All-Time Woman's Bowling Record With 289 Single

Has 683 Series; Rolls Thirteen Strikes in Row

Beats Former 279 Held by Dot Flemings

Sue Heins, one of Kingston's star keglerettes of the future, set a new all-time Kingston high single record of 289 for women bowlers in last night's Women's Major rolling at the Bowlodrome.

Miss Heins had other scores of 212 and 182 for a 683, the third highest series ever rolled in Kingston.

Mrs. Rose Schatzel holds the all-time mark with 697 and also has a 696 to her credit.

Miss Heins' 289 eclipses the former high of 279 rolled by Dot Flemings in a summer mixed league three years ago.

Five open frames—four misses, two in each of the first two games and a second game split—deprived Miss Heins of a possible "700" series. She carried a 161 average going into last night's action.

13 Strikes in Row

A stubborn 5-pin tap robbed the tall, angular keglerette of a shot at the coveted "300" score. After striking out for 182 in the middle set, Miss Heins rolled 10 straight strikes in the third game for a string of 13 in succession before she left the 5-pin. She converted the spare and filled with 10 for the new all-time record.

Her 683 overshadowed the field by a wide margin, of course, last night and was another oustanding bowling chore by a young star who seems destined for a spot in the city's "Big Five."

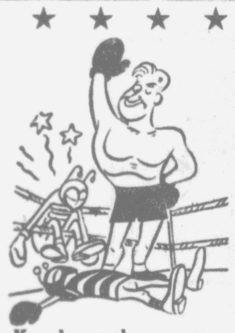

Runnerup Elizabeth Schoonmaker, who is knocking off "500" triples at a steady pace of late, cracked 555 for the runnerup spot. Elizabeth Bruck posted 214—523; Rose Schatzel 499; Miriam Posner 495; Marge Jansen 490; Charlotte Lapine 489; Jo Smith 478; Kay Brodhead 471 and Betty Bailey 468.

For the A's Manager Jimmy Dykes has nominated Bobby Shantz and Carl Scheib to take care of the pitching.

Feller Confident

Los Angeles, March 20 (AP)—Bob Feller had another exhibition defeat on his record today, but the Cleveland Indians' ace hurler didn't take it too seriously.

Bob gave up three hits for two runs in his first two innings yesterday as the Pittsburgh Pirates won, 4-2 but he finished by blanking all comers in the third, fourth and fifth.

Rookie righthander Gerald Fahr served the Pirates the deciding pitches. Ralph Kiner belted him for a homer in the sixth and John Merson slammed another fourbagger in the eighth.

Until yesterday, the Indians had averaged nine runs per game in nine exhibitions.

Yanks Face Chisox

Glendale, Calif., March 20 (AP)—The Chicago White Sox today challenge the New York Yankees right in the home town of Manager Casey Stengel.

Glendale's small park is expected to be overflowing with 5,000 of Stengel's neighbors. Manager Paul Richards of the Sox plans to use Rookie pitchers Harold Brown of Seattle and Marv Rotblatt, former University of Illinois twirler.

Mantle Streaking

Los Angeles, March 20 (AP)—Mickey Mantle, the rookie 19-year-old from Commerce, Okla., has enthused veteran and rookie alike in the New York Yankee training camp. The switch hitting and speed of the Yankee youngster has everybody in camp talking.

On Saturday, Mickey socked a mighty homer that carried approximately 420 feet. Last night in the Yanks' 6-3 loss to Hollywood of the Pacific Coast League, he got a single in his only at bat to boost his average to .571—12 for 21.

Jansen Still Hot

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 20 (AP)—Larry Jansen appears to be as effective a pitcher this year as he was a year ago for the New York Giants.

He worked five scoreless innings against the Boston Red Sox yesterday in the Giants' 2 to 1 defeat and yielded only one hit. Altogether he has pitched a total of 11 innings to date and allowed only one run.

Snider Clicks

Vero Beach, Fla., March 20 (AP) Duke Snider is belting the ball hard for the Brooklyn Dodgers. The Brook outfielder got three in four at bats yesterday as the Dodgers whipped the Athletics, 5-1. This made his average .478 on 11 hits in eight games.

Players Demand Voice in Naming Happy's Successor

Lakeland, Fla., March 20 (AP)—The rank and file of the major leagues—the players—will demand that club owners give them a voice in picking a new baseball commissioner.

The unprecedented proposal comes publicly from pitcher Freddie Hutchinson of the Detroit Tigers, official player-representative of the American League.

Sharply critical of owner policy, Hutchinson said yesterday that the owners will be petitioned in July to give the players a part in selecting a successor to A. B. (Happy) Chandler.

And if the club owners don't agree to this, Hutchinson said the players may hire their own commissioner to represent them on the official Baseball Council.

The players now have two representatives, one from each league, serving on the Council. Their status is merely advisory.

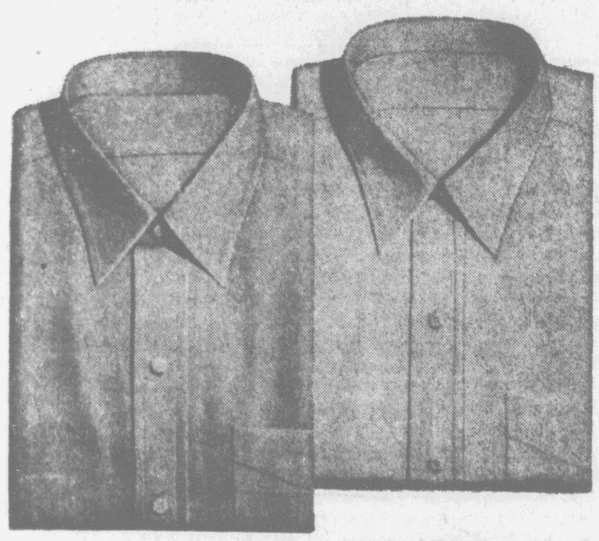

"The first name suggested by players for their own commissioner was Happy Chandler," said Hutchinson.

The Detroit pitcher said most players favored retention of Chandler. The "average player" believed Chandler was fired by the owners because he did things for baseball players that were never done before, Hutch said.

• Bagatelles:

Has Big Joe Mahar, exponent of the "700" triple in bowling, accepted the City Baseball League presidency that was offered him several weeks ago? Getting four qualified, acceptable and interested baseball personalities to handle Little League managerial posts isn't as easy as it seems. Ask Bob Umpleby, the K.A.A. president.

Johnny Ferraro's 759 was his fifth "700" of the season and coming events cast their shadow in the Trailways' 3306 blast last week against Ruzzo's. That day Ferraro clicked for 657 despite nearly a dozen solid 10-pin "taps." It was only a matter of time before the percentages went Johnny's way and, presto, a sensational series. Jacobson Mixed League, Silver Palace and Y Mercantile-Federation leagues have set dates for annual banquets. Andy Parmerton, who opened the Tick-Tock alleys in West Coxsackie several years ago, is now connected with the Ridgefield Bowling Center in Ridgefield, Conn.; has converted the town from duckpins to tenpins and lists among his patrons such renowned personalities as Geraldine Farrar, James Melton and Claire Luce Booth. George Van Hoesen, who served briefly as manager of the Ruzzo Bowlatorium, pounded 712 with 289-258-225 as his team won the Nassau-Suffolk tournament championship with a 3185 score. Van is hooked up in a 20-game $1,000 showdown with Eddie Heineman, the Long Island sharpshooter, who recently clipped him in a 10-game series.

"Bo" Gill's suggestion that Kingston High draft Mary Ann Bruck and Ellen Koenig from St. Ursula's championship basketball team packs a lot of horse sense. At least, we're sure the girls would stay in condition.

The New York Giant rooters in the house haven't taken over the sports department yet, but after the recent indignities they heaped on the Dodgers, we fear for the worst.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

Poughkeepsie Bowling Association's 209-team registration adds up to 29 per cent which isn't very good for a town that size. Whitey Tulacz returns to a player-manager role with the Polonias in the Bridge City twi-league this season. Lou Schafer has canceled plans for the annual Y.M.C.A.-Mid-Hudson basketball tournament. "Manpower troubles and no high school team to represent us" were the reasons advanced. Fred Smith, baseball operator in Catskill for more than a quarter century, is readying his 1951 edition. Maynard Peloke and Charlie Howard have been added to an already strong roster. Basketball coach Phog Allen's .729 won-lost percentage with Kansas since he took over in 1920 is remarkable, yet it was his worst! At Warrensburg, Kans. Teachers, Allen went 107 and 7 for .938; at Baker College, 46 and 2 for .958 and at Haskell, the record was 27 and 5 for .843.

Kingston Bowling Association will honor city tournament trophy winner at a "Dinner of Champions" banquet on Wednesday, April 18, at the Stuyvesant Hotel. All bowlers in the city are invited. Lou Pelz, Poughkeepsie sportscaster in town Saturday night, arranging details with Pomoter Bill Johnston for mat card in Poughkeepsie in near future. Having lowered the boom on the DUSO for the third time in four years, Coach Sig Makofski, of Mont Pleasant's Red Raiders, is heading for Southern Pines, N. C., to sharpen his golf game. Although he competes as an "amateur," area experts rate the Schenectady coach on a par with Kingston's Alex Gerlak, Milon Marusic of Albany and his hometown colleague, Armand Farina.

Section 9 basketball champions for 1950-51 were: Class A—Newburgh Academy; Class B—Ellenville; Class C—Fallsburg, and Class D—Piermont. In the finals, Ellenville beat Nyack, 68 to 59; Piermont beat Roscoe, 42 to 39; and Fallsburg stopped New Paltz, 60 to 55.

Harry Gayson attributes two reasons for Joe DiMaggio's decision to hang up his spikes at the end of this season. First, DiMag believes Mickey Mantle will be ready to take over a year from now. Secondly, and most important, DiMag is a man of deep self-respect with a profound sense of obligation to his public. He fears the opposite of the cheer when his spirit is willing but the flesh is weak. Joe DiMaggio would like to bow out in style.

NCAA Tournament Opens at Garden

New York, March 20 (AP)—College basketball's No. One 1951 tournament—the NCAA—opens tonight with Kentucky, rated the top five in the country, and Columbia, the nation's only unbeaten team, in the spotlight.

Kentucky, champion of the Southeastern Conference, meets Louisville at Raleigh, N. C. Columbia, the Ivy League titleholder, is paired against Illinois, the Big Ten champion, at Madison Square Garden.

In other games North Carolina State is paired against Villanova at Raleigh and St. John's of Brooklyn meets Connecticut at the Garden.

Newark, N. J.—Bill Bossio, 125, Pittsburgh, stopped Johnny Arudini, 124½, Washington, 3.

Holyoke, Mass.—Sammy Walker, 157, Springfield, Mass., outpointed Otis Graham, 160, Philadelphia, 10.

Kingston AZA Cagers Capture Regional Tourney

BIG THREE—Allie Reynolds, Eddie Lopat and Vic Raschi, left to right, are the Yankees' pitching dependables, getting ready in California to do it again. Casey Stengel is banking on Tommy Byrne to locate the plate, replace Whitey Ford, and make it a foursome. (NEA)

They Qualify For Sectionals In New York City

Syracuse, Utica, Niagara Bow to Locals

The Kingston AZA basketball team qualified for the New York state district tournament in Madison Square Garden in May, by winning the regional tourney in Syracuse over the week-end.

En route to the regional finals, the brilliant young local basketeers knocked off teams representing Utica, Syracuse and Niagara Falls.

The competition was held at the Syracuse Boys Club in Syracuse.

(AZA is a branch of B'nai B'rith that sponsors youth sports activities).

Harry Levy was the most consistent scorer as the locals defeated Utica, 27 to 17, in the first round. Miles Bahl's 16 points were instrumental in a 40-33 second round triumph over Syracuse, while Levy again took charge as AZA turned back Niagara Falls in the finals, 24 to 13.

Levy Hits 34

Levy accounted for 34 points in the three contests and Bahl had 26.

Kingston got off to a fast start against Syracuse, rolling up a 11-1 lead in the first period, but a 17-point third period put Syracuse back in the game, before the AZA's regained command with a 10-4 edge in the stretch period.

A strong second half finish was responsible for the win over Utica, after an 11-11 halftime deadlock, while the locals got the jump on Niagara Falls in the finals and stayed ahead all the way.

Philip Mandel, Herman Perlowin and Louis Adler played an excellent defensive game and controlled the backboards in all three victories.

Kingston was outmanned in size and height against a crack Syracuse team that had won the tournament three years in a row, but Levy and Bahl sparked the opening drive that furnished the momentum on which the locals rode to victory.

Bowling

Colonials Hit 1,108

Bill Schabot tossed a gross 674 (187-220-231-net), to win first prize of $50 in the week-end handicap singles sweepstakes a the Ruzzo Bowlatorium. Harold Broskie's 244-182-136-662 was good for scratch prize of $25, while Ken Williams won $7 with a 244 for high single out of the money. Miriam Posner's 233 high single for women was worth $5. The sweepstakes will continue next week with a $50 prize for gross and $35 for scratch.

Now, if Joe Maurer, the sensational young bowler with Epstein's in the City Minor League, could only forget the first game he rolled last week and add on the first one he tossed last night, add the three games, you know what he would find? A 777 triple!

Remember last week Joe finished with 244 and 255 and a 673 series. Last night he opened with a new individual single high of 279. He added 200 and then the reaction set in with a 159. Still his 638 was good enough to lead the minor League in a heavy scoring session that produced 26 triples of "500" or better.

Joe Misasi finished with 214-247-621 for the runnerup slot. Other high counts included Joe Dulin's 563; Ed Smedes 556; Leo Mellert 223-553; Ed Thomas 233-549; Bill Murray 540; Leo Bechtold 538; Gus Greco 537; Art Buddenhagen 202-533; Ken Radel 212-532; Ralph Garafola 532; Harry Secreto 530; Jim Benicase 526; Joe Sills 526.

Murray Greene's 588, with 196, 191 and 201, was the top triple in the Good Neighbor League, with Mitzie Arlensky rolling 202-579 for the runnerup slot. Eddie Bahl fashioned 553; Ben Marcus 532; Joe Singer 531; Bill Dean 531; Herm Arlensky 522; George Goldfarb 521; Larry Jacobs 215-517; Lou Kantrowitz 510; Meyer Basch 507.

Billy Bahl stepped out as the Tavern Association high triple leader last night with 197-185-191-573. Other good pinfall was credited to Don "Slugger" Koeppen with 550; George Magley 544; W. Smith 538; Bill Pieper 212-538; C. Kershaw 530; R. Enright 220-527; C. Rappleyea 522; Joe Messinger 522; Clarence Fromer 511; W. Sickler 511; H. DeGraff 511 and K. Miller 510.

Using different methods, Milt Cole Sr. and Ralph Halbert wound up in a 572 tie for high series honors in the Independent League. Cole posted high single of 218 and Halbert's best singleton was 205. Eddie Marks hit for 203-551; Jake Francis 234-544; Jim Daniels 543; Tom Welsch 538; Charlie Grunenwald 548; Jack Hartman 534; F. Schick 531; Ward DuBois 531; Leon Studt 528; J. Davis 528; W. Woodstock Varsity Compiles 8-4 Record; Bill Kleine Leads Scorers With 232

Jayvees Have 7-4 Record

Woodstock, March 20—The Varsity basketball squad's 72-39 victory over Phoenicia in the Red Cross benefit game here last week gave Coach Walter Van Wagenen's team a record of eight wins and four losses.

Big Bill Kleine is the individual scoring leader with 232 points in 12 games for a standout 19-point average. Fritzie Schroder averaged 9.5 per contest with 115 markers in 12 games.

Kleine also holds the scoring record for a single game with 33 points.

The Varsity has outscored the opposition, 635 points to 600, but committed 205 fouls to 174 for the visitors. Woodstock's foul shooting percentage was 44 per cent—107 out of 241—and fell below the opposition's 126 for 250 fouls for a better than 50 per cent effort.

Use Tight Zone

Coach Van Wagenen attributed the Varsity's success to effective use of a tight zone defense and had high praise for the outstanding work of Don West and Joe Holdridge in the guard positions. Although both are comparatively small players, they snagged many rebounds off the defensive backboards, while Ken Harder got his share of rebounds off the offensive boards.

In the same period, the Jayvees won seven games and lost four, taking the last five in succession. They outscored the opposition 518 to 442, converted 76 out of 191 foul shots for a poor average of 39 per cent. The visitors dropped 45 out of 145 free throws for a 34 per cent mark.

Foster Tops Jayvees

Norman Foster, the golfer-basketeer, averaged 11.5 points per game to lead the Jayvees in scoring with 129 tallies in 11 contests. H. Waterous compiled the best average with 98 points in eight games for a 12.5 mark. Paul Van Wagenen was third with 94 points in eight games and holds the seasonal record for a single contest with 30 points.

The individual scoring totals for the season for Varsity and Jayvee squads follow:

Varsity—Waterous 78; Schroeder 115; P. Van Wagenen 21; Harder 68; Kleine 232; Holdridge 88; West 38; Snyder 11; Raymond 2.

Jayvees—J. Hilton 19; R. Hilton 10; Peters 41; Foster 129; Reynolds 21; Becker 12; Mayhew 7; H. Waterous 9; C. Van Wagenen 71; P. Van Wagenen 94; B. Waterous 98.

ORDINARY SHOE Foot Rolls Inward — RIGHT FOOT — GUIDE-STEP Foot Supported In Strong Position

Men! these are the only Men's Shoes Ever Made that Start at the Beginning!

Your shoes control the way you walk. For real walking comfort the trick is to get the shoe that helps your foot stay in the strong outer position from the start to the finish of the step. For years people have tried to hold the foot in the strong position by starting in the middle . . . with built-up arches, arch supports etc. The foot can't be held in the strong position this way.

Designed by a famous medical school, these Guide-Step Shoes start to control your step at the logical place . . . the heel! The inner edge of Guide-Step Shoes are built up from the heel forward along the inner arch. By so doing your weight is directed to the strong outer edge of the foot and held in that position from the beginning to the end of your step . . . just as Nature intended. • Bagatelles:

Has Big Joe Mahar, exponent of the "700" triple in bowling, accepted the City Baseball League presidency that was offered him several weeks ago? Getting four qualified, acceptable and interested baseball personalities to handle Little League managerial posts isn't as easy as it seems. Ask Bob Umpleby, the K.A.A. president.

Johnny Ferraro's 759 was his fifth "700" of the season and coming events cast their shadow on the Trailways' 3306 blast last week against Ruzzo's. That day Ferraro clicked for 657 despite nearly a dozen solid 10-pin "taps." It was only a matter of time before the percentages went Johnny's way and, presto, a sensational series. Jacobson Mixed League, Silver Palace and Y Mercantile-Federation leagues have set dates for annual banquets. Andy Parmerton, who opened the Tick-Tock alleys in West Coxsackie several years ago, is now connected with the Ridgefield Bowling Center in Ridgefield, Conn.; has converted the town from duckpins to tenpins and lists among his patrons such renowned personalities as Geraldine Farrar, James Melton and Claire Luce Booth. George Van Hoesen, who served briefly as manager of the Ruzzo Bowlatorium, pounded 712 with 289-258-225 as his team won the Nassau-Suffolk tournament championship with a 3185 score. Van is hooked up in a 20-game $1,000 showdown with Eddie Heineman, the Long Island sharpshooter, who recently clipped him in a 10-game series.

"Bo" Gill's suggestion that Kingston High draft Mary Ann Bruck and Ellen Koenig from St. Ursula's championship basketball team packs a lot of horse sense. At least, we're sure the girls would stay in condition.

The New York Giant rooters in the house haven't taken over the sports department yet, but after the recent indignities they heaped on the Dodgers, we fear for the worst.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

Poughkeepsie Bowling Association's 209-team registration adds up to 29 per cent which isn't very good for a town that size. Whitey Tulacz returns to a player-manager role with the Polonias in the Bridge City twi-league this season. Lou Schafer has canceled plans for the annual Y.M.C.A.-Mid-Hudson basketball tournament. "Manpower troubles and no high school team to represent us" were the reasons advanced. Fred Smith, baseball operator in Catskill for more than a quarter century, is readying his 1951 edition. Maynard Peloke and Charlie Howard have been added to an already strong roster. Basketball coach Phog Allen's .729 won-lost percentage with Kansas since he took over in 1920 is remarkable, yet it was his worst! At Warrensburg, Kans. Teachers, Allen went 107 and 7 for .938; at Baker College, 46 and 2 for .958 and at Haskell, the record was 27 and 5 for .843.

Kingston Bowling Association will honor city tournament trophy winner at a "Dinner of Champions" banquet on Wednesday, April 18, at the Stuyvesant Hotel. All bowlers in the city are invited. Lou Pelz, Poughkeepsie sportscaster in town Saturday night, arranging details with Pomoter Bill Johnston for mat card in Poughkeepsie in near future. Having lowered the boom on the IDUSO for the third time in four years, Coach Sig Makofski, of Mont Pleasant's Red Raiders, is heading for Southern Pines, N. C., to sharpen his golf game. Although he competes as an "amateur," area experts rate the Schenectady coach on a par with Kingston's Alex Gerlak, Milon Marusic of Albany and his hometown colleague, Armand Farina.

Section 9 basketball champions for 1950-51 were: Class A—Newburgh Academy; Class B—Ellenville; Class C—Fallsburg, and Class D—Piermont. In the finals, Ellenville beat Nyack, 68 to 59; Piermont beat Roscoe, 42 to 39; and Fallsburg stopped New Paltz, 60 to 55.

Harry Gayson attributes two reasons for Joe DiMaggio's decision to hang up his spikes at the end of this season. First, DiMag believes Mickey Mantle will be ready to take over a year from now. Secondly, and most important, DiMag is a man of deep self-respect with a profound sense of obligation to his public. He fears the opposite of the cheer when his spirit is willing but the flesh is weak. Joe DiMaggio would like to bow out in style.

NCAA Tournament Opens at Garden

New York, March 20 (AP)—College basketball's No. One 1951 tournament—the NCAA—opens tonight with Kentucky, rated the top five in the country, and Columbia, the nation's only unbeaten team, in the spotlight.

Kentucky, champion of the Southeastern Conference, meets Louisville at Raleigh, N. C. Columbia, the Ivy League titleholder, is paired against Illinois, the Big Ten champion, at Madison Square Garden.

In other games North Carolina State is paired against Villanova at Raleigh and St. John's of Brooklyn meets Connecticut at the Garden.

Newark, N. J.—Bill Bossio, 125, Pittsburgh, stopped Johnny Arudini, 124½, Washington, 3.

Holyoke, Mass.—Sammy Walker, 157, Springfield, Mass., outpointed Otis Graham, 160, Philadelphia, 10.

Kingston AZA Cagers Capture Regional Tourney

BIG THREE—Allie Reynolds, Eddie Lopat and Vic Raschi, left to right, are the Yankees' pitching dependables, getting ready in California to do it again. Casey Stengel is banking on Tommy Byrne to locate the plate, replace Whitey Ford, and make it a foursome. (NEA)

They Qualify For Sectionals In New York City

Syracuse, Utica, Niagara Bow to Locals

The Kingston AZA basketball team qualified for the New York state district tournament in Madison Square Garden in May, by winning the regional tourney in Syracuse over the week-end.

En route to the regional finals, the brilliant young local basketeers knocked off teams representing Utica, Syracuse and Niagara Falls.

The competition was held at the Syracuse Boys Club in Syracuse.

(AZA is a branch of B'nai B'rith that sponsors youth sports activities).

Harry Levy was the most consistent scorer as the locals defeated Utica, 27 to 17, in the first round. Miles Bahl's 16 points were instrumental in a 40-33 second round triumph over Syracuse, while Levy again took charge as AZA turned back Niagara Falls in the finals, 24 to 13.

Levy Hits 34

Levy accounted for 34 points in the three contests and Bahl had 26.

Kingston got off to a fast start against Syracuse, rolling up a 11-1 lead in the first period, but a 17-point third period put Syracuse back in the game, before the AZA's regained command with a 10-4 edge in the stretch period.

A strong second half finish was responsible for the win over Utica, after an 11-11 halftime deadlock, while the locals got the jump on Niagara Falls in the finals and stayed ahead all the way.

Philip Mandel, Herman Perlowin and Louis Adler played an excellent defensive game and controlled the backboards in all three victories.

Kingston was outmanned in size and height against a crack Syracuse team that had won the tournament three years in a row, but Levy and Bahl sparked the opening drive that furnished the momentum on which the locals rode to victory.

Bowling

Bill Schabot tossed a gross 674 (187-220-231-net), to win first prize of $50 in the week-end handicap singles sweepstakes a the Ruzzo Bowlatorium. Harold Broskie's 244-182-136-662 was good for scratch prize of $25, while Ken Williams won $7 with a 244 for high single out of the money. Miriam Posner's 233 high single for women was worth $5. The sweepstakes will continue next week with a $50 prize for gross and $35 for scratch.

Now, if Joe Maurer, the sensational young bowler with Epstein's in the City Minor League, could only forget the first game he rolled last week and add on the first one he tossed last night, add the three games, you know what he would find? A 777 triple!

Remember last week Joe finished with 244 and 255 and a 673 series. Last night he opened with a new individual single high of 279. He added 200 and then the reaction set in with a 159. Still his 638 was good enough to lead the minor League in a heavy scoring session that produced 26 triples of "500" or better.

Joe Misasi finished with 214-247-621 for the runnerup slot. Other high counts included Joe Dulin's 563; Ed Smedes 556; Leo Mellert 223-553; Ed Thomas 233-549; Bill Murray 540; Leo Bechtold 538; Gus Greco 537; Art Buddenhagen 202-533; Ken Radel 212-532; Ralph Garafola 532; Harry Secreto 530; Jim Benicase 526; Joe Sills 526.

Murray Greene's 588, with 196, 191 and 201, was the top triple in the Good Neighbor League, with Mitzie Arlensky rolling 202-579 for the runnerup slot. Eddie Bahl fashioned 553; Ben Marcus 532; Joe Singer 531; Bill Dean 531; Herm Arlensky 522; George Goldfarb 521; Larry Jacobs 215-517; Lou Kantrowitz 510; Meyer Basch 507.

Billy Bahl stepped out as the Tavern Association high triple leader last night with 197-185-191-573. Other good pinfall was credited to Don "Slugger" Koeppen with 550; George Magley 544; W. Smith 538; Bill Pieper 212-538; C. Kershaw 530; R. Enright 220-527; C. Rappleyea 522; Joe Messinger 522; Clarence Fromer 511; W. Sickler 511; H. DeGraff 511 and K. Miller 510.

Using different methods, Milt Cole Sr. and Ralph Halbert wound up in a 572 tie for high series honors in the Independent League. Cole posted high single of 218 and Halbert's best singleton was 205. Eddie Marks hit for 203-551; Jake Francis 234-544; Jim Daniels 543; Tom Welsch 538; Charlie Grunenwald 548; Jack Hartman 534; F. Schick 531; Ward DuBois 531; Leon Studt 528; J. Davis 528; W. Davis 523; Harry Jump 520 and Harry Wilber 520.

John Howard and John Reid had identical high triples of 538 in the Scranton Lace League. Reid hitting 197-141-200, while Howard had 163-190-185. Andy Krom had 216-528; W. Cameron 502; F. Colao 466 and Ed Hinkley 455.

Woodstock Varsity Compiles 8-4 Record; Bill Kleine Leads Scorers With 232

Jayvees Have 7-4 Record

Woodstock, March 20—The Varsity basketball squad's 72-39 victory over Phoenicia in the Red Cross benefit game here last week gave Coach Walter Van Wagenen's team a record of eight wins and four losses.

Big Bill Kleine is the individual scoring leader with 232 points in 12 games for a standout 19-point average. Fritzie Schroder averaged 9.5 per contest with 115 markers in 12 games.

Kleine also holds the scoring record for a single game with 33 points.

The Varsity has outscored the opposition, 635 points to 600, but committed 205 fouls to 174 for the visitors. Woodstock's foul shooting percentage was 44 per cent—107 out of 241—and fell below the opposition's 126 for 250 fouls for a better than 50 per cent effort.

Use Tight Zone

Coach Van Wagenen attributed the Varsity's success to effective use of a tight zone defense and had high praise for the outstanding work of Don West and Joe Holdridge in the guard positions. Although both are comparatively small players, they snagged many rebounds off the defensive backboards, while Ken Harder got his share of rebounds off the offensive boards.

In the same period, the Jayvees won seven games and lost four, taking the last five in succession. They outscored the opposition 518 to 442, converted 76 out of 191 foul shots for a poor average of 39 per cent. The visitors dropped 45 out of 145 free throws for a 34 per cent mark.

Foster Tops Jayvees

Norman Foster, the golfer-basketeer, averaged 11.5 points per game to lead the Jayvees in scoring with 129 tallies in 11 contests. H. Waterous compiled the best average with 98 points in eight games for a 12.5 mark. Paul Van Wagenen was third with 94 points in eight games and holds the seasonal record for a single contest with 30 points.

The individual scoring totals for the season for Varsity and Jayvee squads follow:

Varsity—Waterous 78; Schroeder 115; P. Van Wagenen 21; Harder 68; Kleine 232; Holdridge 88; West 38; Snyder 11; Raymond 2.

Jayvees—J. Hilton 19; R. Hilton 10; Peters 41; Foster 129; Reynolds 21; Becker 12; Mayhew 7; H. Waterous 9; C. Van Wagenen 71; P. Van Wagenen 94; B. Waterous 98.

• Bagatelles:

Has Big Joe Mahar, exponent of the "700" triple in bowling, accepted the City Baseball League presidency that was offered him several weeks ago? Getting four qualified, acceptable and interested baseball personalities to handle Little League managerial posts isn't as easy as it seems. Ask Bob Umpleby, the K.A.A. president.

Johnny Ferraro's 759 was his fifth "700" of the season and coming events cast their shadow in the Trailways' 3306 blast last week against Ruzzo's. That day Ferraro clicked for 657 despite nearly a dozen solid 10-pin "taps." It was only a matter of time before the percentages went Johnny's way and, presto, a sensational series. Jacobson Mixed League, Silver Palace and Y Mercantile-Federation leagues have set dates for annual banquets. Andy Parmerton, who opened the Tick-Tock alleys in West Coxsackie several years ago, is now connected with the Ridgefield Bowling Center in Ridgefield, Conn.; has converted the town from duckpins to tenpins and lists among his patrons such renowned personalities as Geraldine Farrar, James Melton and Claire Luce Booth. George Van Hoesen, who served briefly as manager of the Ruzzo Bowlatorium, pounded 712 with 229-258-225 as his team won the Nassau-Suffolk tournament championship with a 3185 score. Van is hooked up in a 20-game $1,000 showdown with Eddie Heineman, the Long Island sharpshooter, who recently clipped him in a 10-game series.

"Bo" Gill's suggestion that Kingston High draft Mary Ann Bruck and Ellen Koenig from St. Ursula's championship basketball team packs a lot of horse sense. At least, we're sure the girls would stay in condition.

The New York Giant rooters in the house haven't taken over the sports department yet, but after the recent indignities they heaped on the Dodgers, we fear for the worst.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

Poughkeepsie Bowling Association's 209-team registration adds up to 29 per cent which isn't very good for a town that size. Whitey Tulacz returns to a player-manager role with the Polonias in the Bridge City twi-league this season. Lou Schafer has canceled plans for the annual Y.M.C.A.-Mid-Hudson basketball tournament. "Manpower troubles and no high school team to represent us" were the reasons advanced. Fred Smith, baseball operator in Catskill for more than a quarter century, is readying his 1951 edition. Maynard Peloke and Charlie Howard have been added to an already strong roster. Basketball coach Phog Allen's .729 won-lost percentage with Kansas since he took over in 1920 is remarkable, yet it was his worst! At Warrensburg, Kans. Teachers, Allen went 107 and 7 for .938; at Baker College, 46 and 2 for .958 and at Haskell, the record was 27 and 5 for .843.

Kingston Bowling Association will honor city tournament trophy winner at a "Dinner of Champions" banquet on Wednesday, April 18, at the Stuyvesant Hotel. All bowlers in the city are invited. Lou Pelz, Poughkeepsie sportscaster in town Saturday night, arranging details with Pomoter Bill Johnston for mat card in Poughkeepsie in near future. Having lowered the boom on the IHUSO for the third time in four years, Coach Sig Makofski, of Mont Pleasant's Red Raiders, is heading for Southern Pines, N. C., to sharpen his golf game. Although he competes as an "amateur," area experts rate the Schenectady coach on a par with Kingston's Alex Gerlak, Milon Marusic of Albany and his hometown colleague, Armand Farina.

Section 9 basketball champions for 1950-51 were: Class A—Newburgh Academy; Class B—Ellenville; Class C—Fallsburg, and Class D—Piermont. In the finals, Ellenville beat Nyack, 68 to 59; Piermont beat Roscoe, 42 to 39; and Fallsburg stopped New Paltz, 60 to 55.

Harry Gayson attributes two reasons for Joe DiMaggio's decision to hang up his spikes at the end of this season. First, DiMag believes Mickey Mantle will be ready to take over a year from now. Secondly, and most important, DiMag is a man of deep self-respect with a profound sense of obligation to his public. He fears the opposite of the cheer when his spirit is willing but the flesh is weak. Joe DiMaggio would like to bow out in style.

ORDINARY SHOE — Foot Rolls Inward — RIGHT FOOT — GUIDE-STEP — Foot Supported In Strong Position

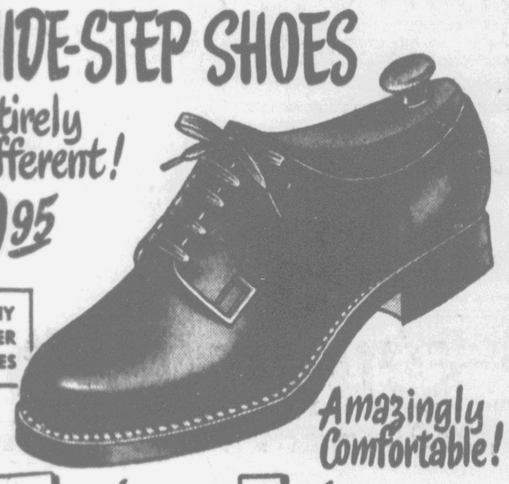

Men! these are the only Men's Shoes Ever Made that Start at the Beginning!

Your shoes control the way you walk. For real walking comfort the trick is to get the shoe that helps your foot stay in the strong outer position from the start to the finish of the step. For years people have tried to hold the foot in the strong position by starting in the middle . . . with built-up arches, arch supports etc. The foot can't be held in the strong position this way.

Designed by a famous medical school, these Guide-Step Shoes start to control your step at the logical place . . . the heel! The inner edge of Guide-Step Shoes are built up from the heel forward along the inner arch. By so doing your weight is directed to the strong outer edge of the foot and held in that position from the beginning to the end of your step . . . just as Nature intended. Stop in our store and examine a pair!

Kingston AZA Cagers Capture Regional Tourney

BIG THREE—Allie Reynolds, Eddie Lopat and Vic Raschi, left to right, are the Yankees' pitching dependables, getting ready in California to do it again. Casey Stengel is banking on Tommy Byrne to locate the plate, replace Whitey Ford, and make it a foursome. (NEA)

They Qualify For Sectionals In New York City

Syracuse, Utica, Niagara Bow to Locals

The Kingston AZA basketball team qualified for the New York state district tournament in Madison Square Garden in May, by winning the regional tourney in Syracuse over the week-end.

En route to the regional finals, the brilliant young local basketeers knocked off teams representing Utica, Syracuse and Niagara Falls.

The competition was held at the Syracuse Boys Club in Syracuse.

(AZA is a branch of B'nai B'rith that sponsors youth sports activities).

Harry Levy was the most consistent scorer as the locals defeated Utica, 27 to 17, in the first round. Miles Bahl's 16 points were instrumental in a 40-33 second round triumph over Syracuse, while Levy again took charge as AZA turned back Niagara Falls in the finals, 24 to 13.

Levy Hits 34

Levy accounted for 34 points in the three contests and Bahl had 26.

Kingston got off to a fast start against Syracuse, rolling up a 11-1 lead in the first period, but a 17-point third period put Syracuse back in the game, before the AZA's regained command with a 10-4 edge in the stretch period.

A strong second half finish was responsible for the win over Utica, after an 11-11 halftime deadlock, while the locals got the jump on Niagara Falls in the finals and stayed ahead all the way.

Philip Mandel, Herman Perlowin and Louis Adler played an excellent defensive game and controlled the backboards in all three victories.

Kingston was outmanned in size and height against a crack Syracuse team that had won the tournament three years in a row, but Levy and Bahl sparked the opening drive that furnished the momentum on which the locals rode to victory.

Bill Schabot tossed a gross 674 (187-220-231-net), to win first prize of $50 in the week-end handicap singles sweepstakes a the Ruzzo Bowlatorium. Harold Broskie's 244-182-136-662 was good for scratch prize of $25, while Ken Williams won $7 with a 244 for high single out of the money. Miriam Posner's 233 high single for women was worth $5. The sweepstakes will continue next week with a $50 prize for gross and $35 for scratch.

Now, if Joe Maurer, the sensational young bowler with Epstein's in the City Minor League, could only forget the first game he rolled last week and add on the first one he tossed last night, add the three games, you know what he would find? A 777 triple!

Remember last week Joe finished with 244 and 255 and a 673 series. Last night he opened with a new individual single high of 279. He added 200 and then the reaction set in with a 159. Still his 638 was good enough to lead the minor League in a heavy scoring session that produced 26 triples of "500" or better.

Joe Misasi finished with 214-247-621 for the runnerup slot. Other high counts included Joe Dulin's 563; Ed Smedes 556; Leo Mellert 223-553; Ed Thomas 233-549; Bill Murray 540; Leo Bechtold 538; Gus Greco 537; Art Buddenhagen 202-533; Ken Radel 212-532; Ralph Garafola 532; Harry Secreto 530; Jim Benicase 526; Joe Sills 526.

Murray Greene's 588, with 196, 191 and 201, was the top triple in the Good Neighbor League, with Mitzie Arlensky rolling 202-579 for the runnerup slot. Eddie Bahl fashioned 553; Ben Marcus 532; Joe Singer 531; Bill Dean 531; Herm Arlensky 522; George Goldfarb 521; Larry Jacobs 215-517; Lou Kantrowitz 510; Meyer Basch 507.

Billy Bahl stepped out as the Tavern Association high triple leader last night with 197-185-191-573. Other good pinfall was credited to Don "Slugger" Koeppen with 550; George Magley 544; W. Smith 538; Bill Pieper 212-538; C. Kershaw 530; R. Enright 220-527; C. Rappleyea 522; Joe Messinger 522; Clarence Fromer 511; W. Sickler 511; H. DeGraff 511 and K. Miller 510.

Using different methods, Milt Cole Sr. and Ralph Halbert wound up in a 572 tie for high series honors in the Independent League. Cole posted high single of 218 and Halbert's best singleton was 205. Eddie Marks hit for 203-551; Jake Francis 234-544; Jim Daniels 543; Tom Welsch 538; Charlie Grunenwald 548; Jack Hartman 534; F. Schick 531; Ward DuBois 531; Leon Studt 528; J. Davis 528; W. Davis 523; Harry Jump 520 and Harry Wilber 520.

John Howard and John Reid had identical high triples of 538 in the Scranton Lace League, Reid hitting 197-141-200, while Howard had 163-190-185. Andy Krom had 216-528; W. Cameron 502; F. Colao 466 and Ed Hinkley 455.

Woodstock Varsity Compiles 8-4 Record; Bill Kleine Leads Scorers With 232

Jayvees Have 7-4 Record

Woodstock, March 20—The Varsity basketball squad's 72-39 victory over Phoenicia in the Red Cross benefit game here last week gave Coach Walter Van Wagenen's team a record of eight wins and four losses.

Big Bill Kleine is the individual scoring leader with 232 points in 12 games for a standout 19-point average. Fritzie Schroder averaged 9.5 per contest with 115 markers in 12 games.

Kleine also holds the scoring record for a single game with 33 points.

The Varsity has outscored the opposition, 635 points to 600, but committed 205 fouls to 174 for the visitors. Woodstock's foul shooting percentage was 44 per cent—107 out of 241—and fell below the opposition's 126 for 250 fouls for a better than 50 per cent effort.

Use Tight Zone

Coach Van Wagenen attributed the Varsity's success to effective use of a tight zone defense and had high praise for the outstanding work of Don West and Joe Holdridge in the guard positions. Although both are comparatively small players, they snagged many rebounds off the defensive backboards, while Ken Harder got his share of rebounds off the offensive boards.

In the same period, the Jayvees won seven games and lost four, taking the last five in succession. They outscored the opposition 518 to 442, converted 76 out of 191 foul shots for a poor average of 39 per cent. The visitors dropped 45 out of 145 free throws for a 34 per cent mark.

Foster Tops Jayvees

Norman Foster, the golfer-basketeer, averaged 11.5 points per game to lead the Jayvees in scoring with 129 tallies in 11 contests. H. Waterous compiled the best average with 98 points in eight games for a 12.5 mark. Paul Van Wagenen was third with 94 points in eight games and holds the seasonal record for a single contest with 30 points.

The individual scoring totals for the season for Varsity and Jayvee squads follow:

Varsity—Waterous 78; Schroeder 115; P. Van Wagenen 21; Harder 68; Kleine 232; Holdridge 88; West 38; Snyder 11; Raymond 2.

Jayvees—J. Hilton 19; R. Hilton 10; Peters 41; Foster 129; Reynolds 21; Becker 12; Mayhew 7; H. Waterous 9; C. Van Wagenen 71; P. Van Wagenen 94; B. Waterous 98.

Girl Scouts Present Program at School

Woodstock, March 20—A Girl Scout program was the feature of Friday afternoon's assembly at the Woodstock School. After a salute to the flag and the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner," Brownie Troop 27, under the leadership of Mrs. Alice Wolven, sang a new Brownie song to the Girl Scouts.

Mrs. Theodore Lee conducted a short quizz program, revolving around the history of Girl Scouting. Following the quizz, the members of the intermediate troop gave a series of charades depicting the eleven fields of interest in Girl Scouting. Eleven girls in turn explained the fields in scouting, which were as follows: agriculture, arts and crafts, community life, health and safety, homemaking, international friendship, music and dancing, nature, out-of-doors, lecturing and dramatics and sports and games.

During the program the girls demonstrated a waltz square dance.

Mrs. Mary Rapp, chairman of the Girl Scout committee in Woodstock, reported that there are 25 Brownies and 15 intermediate Girl Scouts in the village. The leaders for the Intermediate Troop 74 are Mrs. Theodore Lee, Mrs. Donald Jackson, Mrs. Ber Barth and Mrs. Malcolm Rose who is instructing in first aid. The leaders for Brownie Troop 27 are Mrs. Newton Shultis of Bearsville, Mrs. R. J. Lapo, Mrs. John B. Wolven, Mrs. Montcena DeWitt, Mrs. Donald Twine and Mrs. Gerald Green.

Mrs. Rapp said that the success of the program depends upon the time and energy that the leaders are willing to devote to the work.

Mrs. Rapp also stated that Girl Scouting in Woodstock has no organization in back of the group, but has been run by a community chairman and a committee. Members of the committee are Mrs. Charles Rapp, chairman; Mrs. William Mower, vice-chairman; Mrs. Warren Hutty, secretary; Mrs. Charles King, treasurer.

On April 7, the Brownies and Girl Scouts will go to Kingston by chartered bus to participate in the annual Girl Scout birthday celebration. Further details on the trip will be announced.

Red Cross Donors Urged to Give in Proportion to Need

G. Wallace Codwise, chairman of the Ulster County Chapter of the American Red Cross, has received a personal message from the national president of Red Cross, discussing certain aspects of the current national situation which affect the planning for the remainder of the 1951 fund campaign.

The response from corporation and industrial leadership to the appeal for a higher level of giving than last year has been very good. Many are giving what they gave in 1946. They recognize that the serious situation which faces the nation and the Red Cross today is comparable with the years following United States entrance into World War 2.

However, with the exception of a few chapters that have already achieved the desired result, the Red Cross must broaden the base of Red Cross support by making every citizen in every community aware of his individual responsibility for the tasks that have been assigned to the Red Cross in the interests of national defense.

When the campaign goal of $85,000,000 was established, it was assumed that active fighting in Korea would be over by June 30, 1951, and that there would not be the greatly expanded services to the armed forces overseas that have since been necessary. Since November, however, the national world crisis has deepened. Plans for minimum defense have been repeatedly revised upward. Each increase in the size of the armed forces is directly reflected in increased Red Cross expenditures.

The minimum goal is $85,000,000. If the Red Cross is to do the job effectively, all chapters must exceed their minimum goal for this campaign. Each chapter must greatly intensify its individual campaign efforts and not be satisfied until such over-subscriptions are obtained.

"We need," concluded Chairman Codwise, "a contribution from every individual in Ulster county to attain more than our minimum quota of $37,137.00. If anyone has not been reached by a campaign worker, he may send his contribution to the Ulster County Chapter, 308 Clinton avenue.

Lindbergh carried the first air mail to British Honduras, by way of Havana, in 1929.

WOODSTOCK NEWS

By RICHARD E. THIBAUT, JR.

Girl Scouts Present Program at School

Woodstock, March 20—A Girl Scout program was the feature of Friday afternoon's assembly at the Woodstock School. After a salute to the flag and the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner," Brownie Troop 27, under the leadership of Mrs. Alice Wolven, sang a new Brownie song to the Girl Scouts.

Mrs. Theodore Lee conducted a short quizz program, revolving around the history of Girl Scouting. Following the quizz, the members of the intermediate troop gave a series of charades depicting the eleven fields of interest in Girl Scouting. Eleven girls in turn explained the fields in scouting, which were as follows: agriculture, arts and crafts, community life, health and safety, homemaking, international friendship, music and dancing, nature, out-of-doors, lecturing and dramatics and sports and games.

During the program the girls demonstrated a waltz square dance.

Mrs. Mary Rapp, chairman of the Girl Scout committee in Woodstock, reported that there are 25 Brownies and 15 intermediate Girl Scouts in the village. The leaders for the Intermediate Troop 74 are Mrs. Theodore Lee, Mrs. Donald Jackson, Mrs. Ber Barth and Mrs. Malcolm Rose who is instructing in first aid. The leaders for Brownie Troop 27 are Mrs. Newton Shultis of Bearsville, Mrs. R. J. Lapo, Mrs. John B. Wolven, Mrs. Montcena DeWitt, Mrs. Donald Twine and Mrs. Gerald Green.

Mrs. Rapp said that the success of the program depends upon the time and energy that the leaders are willing to devote to the work.

Mrs. Rapp also stated that Girl Scouting in Woodstock has no organization in back of the group, but has been run by a community chairman and a committee. Members of the committee are Mrs. Charles Rapp, chairman; Mrs. William Mower, vice-chairman; Mrs. Warren Hutty, secretary; Mrs. Charles King, treasurer.

On April 7, the Brownies and Girl Scouts will go to Kingston by chartered bus to participate in the annual Girl Scout birthday celebration. Further details on the trip will be announced.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Red Cross Donors Urged to Give in Proportion to Need

G. Wallace Codwise, chairman of the Ulster County Chapter of the American Red Cross, has received a personal message from the national president of Red Cross, discussing certain aspects of the current national situation which affect the planning for the remainder of the 1951 fund campaign.

The response from corporation and industrial leadership to the appeal for a higher level of giving than last year has been very good. Many are giving what they gave in 1946. They recognize that the serious situation which faces the nation and the Red Cross today is comparable with the years following United States entrance into World War 2.

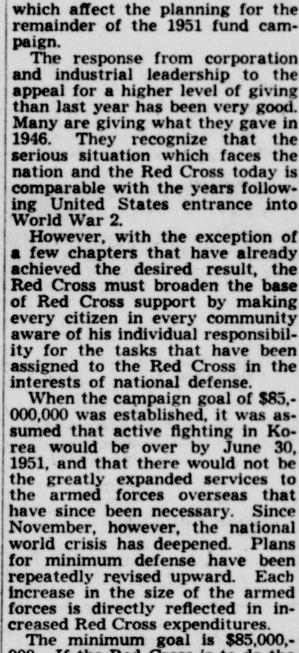

However, with the exception of a few chapters that have already achieved the desired result, the Red Cross must broaden the base of Red Cross support by making every citizen in every community aware of his individual responsibility for the tasks that have been assigned to the Red Cross in the interests of national defense.

When the campaign goal of $85,000,000 was established, it was assumed that active fighting in Korea would be over by June 30, 1951, and that there would not be the greatly expanded services to the armed forces overseas that have since been necessary. Since November, however, the national world crisis has deepened. Plans for minimum defense have been repeatedly revised upward. Each increase in the size of the armed forces is directly reflected in increased Red Cross expenditures.

The minimum goal is $85,000,000. If the Red Cross is to do the job effectively, all chapters must exceed their minimum goal for this campaign. Each chapter must greatly intensify its individual campaign efforts and not be satisfied until such over-subscriptions are obtained.

"We need," concluded Chairman Codwise, "a contribution from every individual in Ulster county to attain more than our minimum quota of $37,137.00. If anyone has not been reached by a campaign worker, he may send his contribution to the Ulster County Chapter, 308 Clinton avenue.

Lindbergh carried the first air mail to British Honduras, by way of Havana, in 1929.

BEST-TRESSED GAL—Bamboo blonde and a yard high is the three-pound coiffure worn by Joyce Mathews to show how it was with a French lady of the Louis XVI period on a New York television show. Atop the waves is a ship, commemorating a French naval victory.

Sheriff Gets Car

A new Buick sedan has been placed in service by the Ulster County Sheriff's Department. A mobile telephone will be installed in the new automobile to maintain communication between the sheriff's office in Kingston and deputies who are on the road. Other sheriff's department automobiles includes a 1947 Chevrolet and a 1948 Chevrolet, also equipped with mobile telephone. The vehicles are now owned by the county, whereas prior to this year they were the property of the sheriff, who was reimbursed for mileage.

Father Cox Dies

Pittsburgh, March 20 (AP)—The Rev. James R. Cox, one of the most striking figures of the depression years and one time nominee for the presidency on a short-lived ticket, died last night. The 65-year-old Catholic priest, nationally famous as a leader of a job-seekers' march to Washington in 1932, was stricken by a cerebral hemorrhage. He had been in failing health for several years.

Senator More Comfortable

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 20 (AP)—Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg was reported "slightly more comfortable" today after a "relatively good night." Dr. A. B. Smith, his personal physician, said, however, the senator's condition remained serious. Vandenberg, who will be 67 Thursday, has undergone a series of major operations in the past 17 months. He suffered a serious relapse Feb. 26.

WOODSTOCK NEWS

By RICHARD E. THIBAUT, JR.

Girl Scouts Present Program at School

Woodstock, March 20—A Girl Scout program was the feature of Friday afternoon's assembly at the Woodstock School. After a salute to the flag and the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner," Brownie Troop 27, under the leadership of Mrs. Alice Wolven, sang a new Brownie song to the Girl Scouts.

Mrs. Theodore Lee conducted a short quizz program, revolving around the history of Girl Scouting. Following the quizz, the members of the intermediate troop gave a series of charades depicting the eleven fields of interest in Girl Scouting. Eleven girls in turn explained the fields in scouting, which were as follows: agriculture, arts and crafts, community life, health and safety, homemaking, international friendship, music and dancing, nature, out-of-doors, lecturing and dramatics and sports and games.

During the program the girls demonstrated a waltz square dance.

Mrs. Mary Rapp, chairman of the Girl Scout committee in Woodstock, reported that there are 25 Brownies and 15 intermediate Girl Scouts in the village. The leaders for the Intermediate Troop 74 are Mrs. Theodore Lee, Mrs. Donald Jackson, Mrs. Ber Barth and Mrs. Malcolm Rose who is instructing in first aid. The leaders for Brownie Troop 27 are Mrs. Newton Shultis of Bearsville, Mrs. R. J. Lapo, Mrs. John B. Wolven, Mrs. Montcena DeWitt, Mrs. Donald Twine and Mrs. Gerald Green.

Mrs. Rapp said that the success of the program depends upon the time and energy that the leaders are willing to devote to the work.

Mrs. Rapp also stated that Girl Scouting in Woodstock has no organization in back of the group, but has been run by a community chairman and a committee. Members of the committee are Mrs. Charles Rapp, chairman; Mrs. William Mower, vice-chairman; Mrs. Warren Hutty, secretary; Mrs. Charles King, treasurer.

On April 7, the Brownies and Girl Scouts will go to Kingston by chartered bus to participate in the annual Girl Scout birthday celebration. Further details on the trip will be announced.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Red Cross Donors Urged to Give in Proportion to Need

G. Wallace Codwise, chairman of the Ulster County Chapter of the American Red Cross, has received a personal message from the national president of Red Cross, discussing certain aspects of the current national situation which affect the planning for the remainder of the 1951 fund campaign.

The response from corporation and industrial leadership to the appeal for a higher level of giving than last year has been very good. Many are giving what they gave in 1946. They recognize that the serious situation which faces the nation and the Red Cross today is comparable with the years following United States entrance into World War 2.

However, with the exception of a few chapters that have already achieved the desired result, the Red Cross must broaden the base of Red Cross support by making every citizen in every community aware of his individual responsibility for the tasks that have been assigned to the Red Cross in the interests of national defense.

When the campaign goal of $85,000,000 was established, it was assumed that active fighting in Korea would be over by June 30, 1951, and that there would not be the greatly expanded services to the armed forces overseas that have since been necessary. Since November, however, the national world crisis has deepened. Plans for minimum defense have been repeatedly revised upward. Each increase in the size of the armed forces is directly reflected in increased Red Cross expenditures.

The minimum goal is $85,000,000. If the Red Cross is to do the job effectively, all chapters must exceed their minimum goal for this campaign. Each chapter must greatly intensify its individual campaign efforts and not be satisfied until such over-subscriptions are obtained.

"We need," concluded Chairman Codwise, "a contribution from every individual in Ulster county to attain more than our minimum quota of $37,137.00. If anyone has not been reached by a campaign worker, he may send his contribution to the Ulster County Chapter, 308 Clinton avenue.

Lindbergh carried the first air mail to British Honduras, by way of Havana, in 1929.

Sheriff Gets Car

A new Buick sedan has been placed in service by the Ulster County Sheriff's Department. A mobile telephone will be installed in the new automobile to maintain communication between the sheriff's office in Kingston and deputies who are on the road. Other sheriff's department automobiles includes a 1947 Chevrolet and a 1948 Chevrolet, also equipped with mobile telephone. The vehicles are now owned by the county, whereas prior to this year they were the property of the sheriff, who was reimbursed for mileage.

Father Cox Dies

Pittsburgh, March 20 (AP)—The Rev. James R. Cox, one of the most striking figures of the depression years and one time nominee for the presidency on a short-lived ticket, died last night. The 65-year-old Catholic priest, nationally famous as a leader of a job-seekers' march to Washington in 1932, was stricken by a cerebral hemorrhage. He had been in failing health for several years.

Senator More Comfortable

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 20 (AP)—Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg was reported "slightly more comfortable" today after a "relatively good night." Dr. A. B. Smith, his personal physician, said, however, the senator's condition remained serious. Vandenberg, who will be 67 Thursday, has undergone a series of major operations in the past 17 months. He suffered a serious relapse Feb. 26.

Gross Is Free Man At Least 5 Weeks

New York, March 20 (AP)—Harry Gross, one-time boss bookie, was a free man today—for at least five weeks.

He was released from the Brooklyn civil prison late yesterday in $25,000 bail. Gross had been in jail since four days after his arrest last Sept. 15.

Gross will have to go to court April 23 for sentencing on his plea of guilty to 65 counts of bookmaking and one of conspiracy.

The 34-year-old Gross was scheduled for sentencing yesterday, but it was postponed again and he was paroled.

This action, plus the fact that his bail as a witness was cut from $250,000 to $25,000 last week, tended to bolster reports that he is naming police grafters.

Gross, who headed a ring which did an estimated $20,000,000-a-year business, admitted he paid $1,000,000 a year in graft to police for protection. For many months he refused to name names.

He is under bail as a material witness in the Brooklyn grand jury investigation of gambling, other rackets and graft.

For several days after the huge cut in bail, Gross had difficulty in raising the $25,000. A relative and a friend posted a deed to a house and life insurance policies as security for his bail bond yesterday.

Feld Awaits Sentence

New York, March 20 (AP)—Retired Patrolman Aaron Feld, convicted of perjury, was in jail today awaiting sentence.

A Brooklyn jury found the 44-year-old Feld guilty last night of lying to a grand jury in a bookmaking case.

Judge Louis Goldstein, refusing to allow Feld to remain free in bail, set sentencing for March 27.

The case grew out of the arrest of Irving (The Weeper) Goldstein last Sept. 14 as a stand-in for Bookie Arthur (Artie) Karp. Karp was an underling of Harry Gross, whose bookmaking ring was smashed that week.

The prosecution charged that Karp gave Feld $350 not to arrest him, and that the pair arranged to have some one else submit to an "accommodation" arrest so that police arrest records could be bolstered. Karp paid Goldstein $100 to take the rap, according to the evidence.

The perjury charge was based on Feld's denial before the grand jury that he had seen Karp on Sept. 14.

Agency Makes Proposal

Washington, March 20 (AP)—The Social Security Administration says the government should close what the agency described as a large gap in security for American workers by adding health insurance to the Social Security program. The agency made the recommendation yesterday in its annual report to Congress. Congress has thus far been cool to administration suggestions for a health insurance program paid for by compulsory pay roll deductions. The report said private health insurance cannot meet the needs of all the people and that government-subsidized private insurance would be "costly, complicated and only partially effective."

England's automobile manufacturing center is located at Coventry, 90 miles from London, where 13 makes are produced.

Seven Are Held On Dope Charges

New York, March 20 (AP)—One of seven men and youths arrested in a Bronx narcotics round-up last night was taken into custody after the suspect reportedly remarked to a disguised policeman that "you've got to be very careful who you sell to today—there's a lot of cops posing as addicts."

This account of the arrest was given by Patrolman William Ambrose, Negro, after he seized William Bennett, 25, Negro, of 1143 Forest avenue, the Bronx, on a charge of selling narcotics.

James Brown, 20, Negro, of 818 East 163rd street, the Bronx, also was arrested for allegedly selling to Ambrose.

District Attorney George B. De Luca said the round-up was a continuation of a series of arrests intended to prevent "a breather" for offenders.

Arrested for allegedly using heroin was Thomas Franklin, 18, Negro, of 759 East 155th street, the Bronx.

The police took into custody for selling narcotics the following: Louis Ortiz, 24, and Julio R. Dominguez, 27, both Puerto Ricans; Leonard Austin, 21, Negro, of 1068 Franklin avenue, the Bronx; and Ralph McCullough, Negro, 29, of 532 East 171st street, the Bronx.

In the possession of the suspects were a total of 11 "sticks" of marijuana, 23 heroin capsules and a quantity of heroin, according to De Luca.

Gross Is Free Man At Least 5 Weeks

New York, March 20 (AP)—Harry Gross, one-time boss bookie, was a free man today—for at least five weeks.

He was released from the Brooklyn civil prison late yesterday in $25,000 bail. Gross had been in jail since four days after his arrest last Sept. 15.

Gross will have to go to court April 23 for sentencing on his plea of guilty to 65 counts of bookmaking and one of conspiracy.

The 34-year-old Gross was scheduled for sentencing yesterday, but it was postponed again and he was paroled.

This action, plus the fact that his bail as a witness was cut from $250,000 to $25,000 last week, tended to bolster reports that he is naming police grafters.

Gross, who headed a ring which did an estimated $20,000,000-a-year business, admitted he paid $1,000,000 a year in graft to police for protection. For many months he refused to name names.

He is under bail as a material witness in the Brooklyn grand jury investigation of gambling, other rackets and graft.

For several days after the huge cut in bail, Gross had difficulty in raising the $25,000. A relative and a friend posted a deed to a house and life insurance policies as security for his bail bond yesterday.

Feld Awaits Sentence

New York, March 20 (AP)—Retired Patrolman Aaron Feld, convicted of perjury, was in jail today awaiting sentence.

A Brooklyn jury found the 44-year-old Feld guilty last night of lying to a grand jury in a bookmaking case.

Judge Louis Goldstein, refusing to allow Feld to remain free in bail, set sentencing for March 27.

The case grew out of the arrest of Irving (The Weeper) Goldstein last Sept. 14 as a stand-in for Bookie Arthur (Artie) Karp. Karp was an underling of Harry Gross, whose bookmaking ring was smashed that week.

The prosecution charged that Karp gave Feld $350 not to arrest him, and that the pair arranged to have some one else submit to an "accommodation" arrest so that police arrest records could be bolstered. Karp paid Goldstein $100 to take the rap, according to the evidence.

The perjury charge was based on Feld's denial before the grand jury that he had seen Karp on Sept. 14.

Agency Makes Proposal

Washington, March 20 (AP)—The Social Security Administration says the government should close what the agency described as a large gap in security for American workers by adding health insurance to the Social Security program. The agency made the recommendation yesterday in its annual report to Congress. Congress has thus far been cool to administration suggestions for a health insurance program paid for by compulsory pay roll deductions. The report said private health insurance cannot meet the needs of all the people and that government-subsidized private insurance would be "costly, complicated and only partially effective."

England's automobile manufacturing center is located at Coventry, 90 miles from London, where 13 makes are produced.

Seven Are Held On Dope Charges

New York, March 20 (AP)—One of seven men and youths arrested in a Bronx narcotics round-up last night was taken into custody after the suspect reportedly remarked to a disguised policeman that "you've got to be very careful who you sell to today—there's a lot of cops posing as addicts."

This account of the arrest was given by Patrolman William Ambrose, Negro, after he seized William Bennett, 25, Negro, of 1143 Forest avenue, the Bronx, on a charge of selling narcotics.

James Brown, 20, Negro, of 818 East 163rd street, the Bronx, also was arrested for allegedly selling to Ambrose.

District Attorney George B. De Luca said the round-up was a continuation of a series of arrests intended to prevent "a breather" for offenders.

Arrested for allegedly using heroin was Thomas Franklin, 18, Negro, of 759 East 155th street, the Bronx.

The police took into custody for selling narcotics the following: Louis Ortiz, 24, and Julio R. Dominguez, 27, both Puerto Ricans; Leonard Austin, 21, Negro, of 1068 Franklin avenue, the Bronx; and Ralph McCullough, Negro, 29, of 532 East 171st street, the Bronx.

In the possession of the suspects were a total of 11 "sticks" of marijuana, 23 heroin capsules and a quantity of heroin, according to De Luca.
